Iran, Defying Russia, Appeals to UNO

Oil-Rich Nation Asks Assistance In Getting Reds Out of Territory

Dispute Heads toward Climax at New York Meeting Next Week

U. S. OFFICIALS ARE PLEASED WITH MOVE

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, March 19. (AP)—Oil-rich Iran defied a Russian warning today and appealed to the United Nations Security Council for help in getting Soviet troops out of its territory.

It asked UNO for a "just determination" of the case, emphasizing that Russia was violating a written agreement, and that Moscow agents were interfering in Iran's affairs.

The action, taken here by Ambassador Hurrein Ala on orders from Premier Qavam Es Sultaneh, shoved Iran's dispute with her big neighbor toward a climax at the council's meeting in New York next week.

The appeal threw into doubt the continued existence of Qavam's government since the Soviet charge d'affaires in Moscow had warned him last week that any such move to take the case before the Security Council would be considered as an "unfriendly act."

The Russian warning was reported in official dispatches to Washington. However, some diplomats believe that the full publicity given Iran's action may be a strong protection to Qavam.

Not "Unfriendly" Act

After the appeal was made to the Security council, Ambassador Ala declared that his government's action "should not be interpreted as an act of unfriendliness by the other party," meaning Russia. His government was compelled to take this action, he said in a statement,

Selective Service Urges Indefinite Renewal of Draft

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—Selective Service appealed today for extension of the draft indefinitely and spurred along a congressional drive for action.

On the heels of a letter from Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, military committees of Senate and House ordered immediate closed door hearings on the law which is due to expire May 15.

Hershey, writing the House committee, was reported by members to have recommended:

1. No time limit on extension but provisions for termination by presidential order or joint congressional action.

2. Length of service, domestic and overseas, of men inducted in the future be limited to eighteen months. The present law permits retention of inductees until six months after the war is declared ended.

3. No change in present draft ages, 18 through 45. Under executive order the top age for inductees is 26 at present.

Chairman May of the House committee, announced hearings will start Thursday morning with army heads as first witnesses.

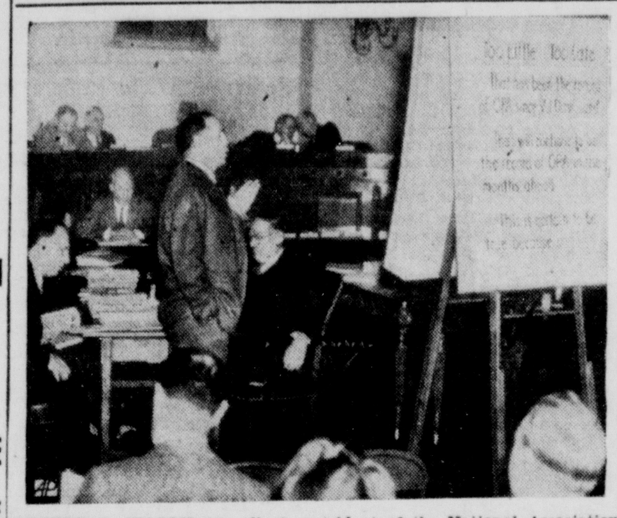

Simultaneously, Chairman Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) set the stage for Senate Military committee hearings starting probably tomorrow. He said he expected Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson to be the first witness, followed by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal and Secretary of State James P. Byrnes.

There is strong sentiment in both Senate and House commitees for a definite time limit on any extension that might be recommended.

Chairman Thomas had suggested an extension only until July 1, which would permit Selective Service to induct thousands of students deferred until the end of the high school year. But he told reporters that if the heads of the army, the navy and the State department made convicting statements to the committee, he would be willing to favor continuance for "quite a while."

Chairman May has introduced legislation for a six-months extension and has proposed that the maximum age for inductions be lowered to 30 years and the minimum raised to 21, with all fathers exempted.

U. S. Prosecutor Flays Goering's Conduct at Trial

Jackson Calls Defendant "Arrogant, Contemptuous Witness"

NUERNBERG, March 19—(AP)—Hermann Goering, already jolted by the testimony of his own star defense witness, was branded today as an "arrogant and contemptuous witness" by Chief United States Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson, who asked the international military tribunal to rebuke him.

Goering had returned to the stand late in the afternoon after his own witness, the amateur Swedish diplomat and writer, Birger Dahlerus, admitted he was used as a Nazi tool for prewar peace negotiations. Dahlerus said he realized later the negotiations were intended merely to separate Britain from Poland and permit Germany to smash the Polish without interference.

The clash between Goering and Jackson occurred when the latter attempted by documentary evidence to show that Goering had perjured himself in testimony concerning meetings of the Reich's defense council and the remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Tawes Declares PAC Discussion Is "Phony Issue"

Baldwin Urges Elimination of "Radicals" from Government

BALTIMORE, March 19 (AP) — State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes declared tonight that the CIO-PAC discussion in the current campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination is "a phony issue."

Tawes, one of three candidates for the nomination, charged that Rep. Baldwin (D-Md), another aspirant, raised the issue but that when "the Political Action Committee had its measures before Congress he was not only not there fighting them, but he was not there even to vote against many of them."

Tawes, Baldwin and W. Preston Lane, Jr., are the three contenders for the nomination.

In his speech prepared for an East Baltimore political rally, Tawes referred to statements attributed to Rep. Baldwin that he has the support of the "Curran organization" in Baltimore.

"Each of my two opponents," he said, "is the operating and active head of the political organization dominant in his county. Both of my opponents have sought the support of the city organization; they failed to get it. Now one of them is raising the phony issue that it is a terrible thing for a Democratic candidate for governor to have the support of the city organization."

In another political rally, Claude A. Hanley, Towson attorney, asserted that a "sorry state of affairs" exists in Baltimore county "because the office holders and the government of Baltimore county are subject to the absolute overlordship, leadership and domination of one man, H. Streett Baldwin."

Baldwin was in Leonardtown today, addressing a rally in which he called for the elimination of "radical" elements from the government.

Gov. O'Conor, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, spoke both at Leonardtown and to political clubs of the First district of Baltimore. At Leonardtown he advocated reduction of the federal debt and in Baltimore he declared that labor-

Wallace Urges U. S. To Reach Understanding With Soviet Russia

NEW YORK, March 19. (AP)—Secretary Wallace declared tonight "the United States has nothing to gain but on the contrary everything to lose by beating the tomtoms against Russia."

The Commerce department head, in a speech prepared for a dinner in honor of W. Averell Harriman, recently retired United States ambassador to Russia, appealed for "a special effort to talk things over with the Soviet leaders and to come to a friendly understanding."

"The thought of a war between the United States and Russia is to me as monstrous and preposterous as would be a United States war with England and France," said Wallace.

Scientists in Helicopters Will Scout Bikini after A-Bomb Test

NORFOLK, Va., March 19 (AP) — Scientists, flying from the carrier Shangri La in helicopters, will scout Bikini atoll after the atom bomb test to safety check for deadly radioactivity.

The patrol of scientists, armed with Geiger counters to tell them of the presence of dangerous rays, will advise the other members of the expedition when it is safe for them to move into the lagoon and land on the islands.

The Shangri La was outward bound from this port today, with a load of equipment more fantastic than any she carried in her wartime strikes against Japan. Aboard was a fleet of drone planes, F6F "Ghost Hellcats," piloted by remote radio control and intended to fly through the atom bomb cloud to bring back samples of the poisonous material. Each of the brilliant red drones has a "queen" plane from which the controls are operated after a catapault launching from the carrier's deck.

Because the drones may get out of sight of the control planes, the Shangri La will use her radar equipment to track the drones and report them to the control planes. The plan is to land the drones at Roi island, in the Kwajalein atoll about 180 miles from Bikini. The carrier will send up the drones when twenty and forty miles from the target.

The Shangri La, commanded by Capt. E. A. Cruise, Hebron, Mich., had abroad a complement of 1,700 officers and men and about sixty of her own planes, in addition to the drones, when she sailed from this great naval port at dusk yesterday.

The navy drone planes have a ceiling of about 36,000 feet, an altitude which would be somewhat above the center of the atomic cloud column.

Carrier and drone officers said it was quite possible all drone planes launched might not reach Roi with data. While radioactivity is not expected to upset the radio controls, the terrific turbulence near the cloud column may toss them on their back. Once drones have been tipped beyond a certain angle they can not be pulled back into flight attitude and come tumbling down out of the sky. It is hoped, however, that if this happens, some instruments on the planes, with their recordings, can be salvaged.

Similar instrumentation by drone planes will be carried out by army air forces, using B-17 Flying Fortresses.

Coal Talks Open After Ultimatum From UMW Chief

Lewis Demands Operators Choose between "War or Peace"

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — After a "war or peace" ultimatum from John L. Lewis, bituminous coal operators and miners got down to actual bargaining on a new contract today.

Each side professed readiness to negotiate on the other's demands.

"We want to make a contract," said Charles O'Neill, the operators' spokesman.

Lewis, who renewed his demand for greater mine safety measures and asked the owners whether they wanted "peace" or "war," declared:

"We'll negotiate with you from here out."

He was referring to the operators' demand for guarantees from the United Mine Workers against wildcat strikes.

As the week of open meetings gave way to closed sessions, a committee of six operators, two alternates and two technicians and a similar number of miners was appointed to attempt to write a new agreement before the present one is terminated by Lewis at midnight March 31. He has prepared the way for a nationwide coal strike of 400,000 bituminous workers if he finds it necessary.

Lewis Raps Burke

Lewis asked for a shorter work week at higher pay and adjustment of the controversy over unionization of foremen which provoked a strike last October. But he devoted most of a week of meetings attended by his 250-man policy committee and industry representatives to emphasizing his demand for safer working conditions and a health and welfare fund.

The producers requested substitution of a standard forty-hour week for the industry's historic thirty-five-hour basic week along with a guarantee against wildcat strikes.

Commenting on the latter, Lewis said that "we'll meet you halfway."

"Tit or tat—a Roland for your Oliver," he added. "It's negotiable."

But before that he took another rap at Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association. He said Burke had attempted to "conspire" with Rep. May (D-Ky) to legislate on "matters covered by our contract" and called that "nocturnal skullduggery."

Lewis Appeals to Operators

Lewis appealed to the operators to discontinue what he called "the dog in the manger attitude that too long has characterized their acts."

Lehman Declares Rationing Must Be Brought Back

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 19 (AP)—The world must return to wartime rationing, UNRRA's Director General Herbert H. Lehman told a council meeting today after it had listened to stories of mounting misery from the two hemispheres.

He told the council that "an enduring peace cannot be written in the midst of hunger and famine. I know that far greater sacrifices can be made without injury from all exporting areas—the United States, Canada, all the republics of South and Central America, and the southern dominions of the British commonwealth.

"Rationing of commodities in short supply is not only required but it will be supported by consumers when they understand that it will provide food for people who fought the common enemy, and to help insure fair distribution in the supplying countries."

Nikola Petrovic, of Yugoslavia, gave statistics in painting a picture of destruction in his country—1,685,000 people dead, 3,300,000 homeless, and 289,000 farms destroyed.

He urged, as did Vladimir Hurban, of Czechoslovakia, that the world's limited food supplies be given first to "those who have fought with us."

Hurban said "we cannot put the victim and the aggressor on the same level."

Vets Will Try To Block Gen. Clark's Promotion

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Veterans of the Thirty-sixth (Texas) division disclosed today they will attempt to block promotion of Gen. Mark Clark in their effort to obtain congressional investigation of the costly Rapido river crossing in Italy.

The House Military committee rejected today the division's request that an investigation be made, expressing belief nothing could be accomplished by it.

Truman Pledges All-Out Support Of UNO Charter

President Accounts to Congress on First Work of Organization

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — President Truman accounted to Congress today on the first work of the United Nations Organization and pledged all-out support to the peace preserving principles of its charter.

By doing its utmost to perfect the charter, he said, the United States will "give new and full expression to the meaning of 'America' to the world."

Mr. Truman passed along to Congress a report by Secretary of State Byrnes on the American delegation's first activities in the United Nations Assembly in London.

Asserting that this nation's part in setting up the institutions provided in the UNO Charter "is vital to all Americans," the president's message said:

U. S. Seeks To Perfect Charter

"The United States supports the charter. The United States supports the fullest implementation of the principles of the charter. The United States seeks to achieve the purposes of the charter. And the United States seeks to perfect the charter as experience lights the way.

"To do less than our utmost in this essential effort of peace-loving nations, whatever may be the obstacles and difficulties, would be a betrayal of the trust of those who fought to win the opportunity to have a world at peace with security and well-being, for all. To do our utmost will be to give new and full expression to the meaning of 'America' to the world."

Secretary Byrnes's report covered the first part of the first session of the general assembly, which was chiefly organizational.

Truman To Miss UNO Meeting

"We have taken a constructive step on the long road to peace and all that peace can bring to man. That step, though a modest one, has been strong and sure. The next one can take us further. How well we can advance on the way will depend x x x upon the support given the United Nations by the governments and peoples which compose it. Their support should be forthcoming because their common interest far outweight any conflict in interest that might divide them."

Although President Truman told his last news conference he would like to attend the next UNO activity —the meeting of the Security council opening in New York next Monday—the White House said today he "finds it utterly impossible to get away."

Hoover Will Confer With French Officials

PARIS, March 19—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, arriving by plane on a fact-finding study of Europe's food crisis, said today producing nations would ship 14,000,000 tons of food abroad between now and the July harvest, but that it would not be enough to satisfy all wants.

Much depends on the world's July harvest for a speedy solution to the threat of famine, he said.

Hoover said he planned to remain in Paris a few days, setting up his headquarters and conferring with French officials, and then would leave for Rome.

He said he hoped to visit all food-short areas of Europe, but that he "probably will not go to Spain," which he classed among the needy nations.

BERN, March 19. (AP)—Switzerland and Russia have re-established diplomatic relations after a twenty-two-year-long break, the Swiss political department said today.

GM Emphasizes That Strike Must End in All Its Plants

Henry Wallace's "Purge" Proposal Arouses Congress

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—Charges that Henry A. Wallace favors a political "purge" system akin to Hitler's or Stalin's were hurled in Congress today as legislators hotly opposed his proposal to expel dissidents from the Republican and Democratic parties.

The commerce secretary, in a speech before the Women's Democratic Club yesterday, declared senators and representatives who oppose their own parties on fundamental issues should be barred from seeking re-election on their party tickets.

Sen. Johnston (D-SC) started a discussion in the Senate by reading a newspaper account of the address in which Wallace called for party discipline on such major questions as the British loan, foreign relations, full employment, and atomic energy.

"Do you think Henry has gone Fascist?" asked Sen. Wiley (R-Wis).

Sen. Chavez (D-NM) interjected that it was the "philosophy of Hitler and Himmler that they did not want members to think for themselves, but to follow the party movement."

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) said: "It sounds like he is proposing the continental purge system—if a man doesn't agree minutely, purge him. It is the most peculiar political policy I have heard announced."

"I can tell Henry Wallace one thing," Johnston snorted. "He cannot ride me out of my Democratic party and let Mr. Joe Stalin take my place."

Wallace had said that Stalin issued a "challenge to democracy in his speech of March 6 when he said democracy has 'booms, busts and war.' It is interesting to note that during the 30s Russia had neither. I suggest that we accept this challenge in the most peaceful way possible and see if we can't have full employment to prevent 'booms, busts and wars.'"

"I will not follow one man," Johnston continued, "whether it be Henry Wallace or any other, blindly. I will make up my own mind. I believe that is what the people want us to do."

Corporation Declares It Must Assume That Walkout Continues

UAW SAYS PACT DIDN'T COVER LOCAL ISSUES

"No Time To Quibble over Procedural Matters," Reuther States

DETROIT, March 19 (AP)—General Motors Corporation today told the CIO United Auto Workers that "until we receive notification from the international union that the strike is ended in all our plants, we will have to assume that the strike continues."

The corporation, acting shortly after the UAW notified it that the rank and file of GM workers had approved the national strike settlement, declared in a telegram to Walter P. Reuther, UAW vice president:

"We are in receipt of your telegram of March 19 in which you state x x x the settlement of March 13 'has been ratified by a majority vote of local unions' but that 'in certain unions the membership has voted to remain on strike until a satisfactory settlement occurs with respect to their local demands.'

"In keeping with the agreement which we entered into with your union officers, your telegram should officially end the strike in all GM plants."

Reuther Answers Statement

"Until we receive notification from the international union that the strike is ended in all our plants, we will have to assume that the strike continues and that the resumption of production will be delayed until that time.

"You are aware that our manufacturing is so geared that we can not start production in a part of our plants with others still out on strike."

The corporation's statement was signed by Harry W. Anderson, GM vice president.

Reuther, in a reply telegraphed to Anderson tonight, asserted, "this no time to quibble over procedural matters."

The union statement continued, "The officers of the UAW-CIO and the top GM negotiating committee

Nimitz Says It Would Take Six Months To Restore Navy Strength

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Demobilization—of men and ships—has so pared the navy that at least six months would be required to restore its fighting strength of last fall, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said today.

Nimitz, who led the world's greatest navy in the Pacific war, made the estimate in reply to inquiries from members of the House Naval committee.

He disclosed that the budget bureau had sought to cut the navy's appropriation for the next fiscal year from $6,325,000,000 to $3,960,000,000 but had put the total at $4,225,000,000 after his protest.

The chief of naval operations, slight, gray, tanned by his years at tropical bases, declared the proposed cut of $2,100,000,000 would have a "very serious" effect on United States leadership in world affairs.

If the original slash of the budget bureau had remained effective, he said, it would have jeopardized not only the nation's world position but even defense of the country itself.

"You have warned Congress and warned the country that you require for proper defense and for the position the nation holds in world affairs an appropriation of $6,000,000,000," declared Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) as Nimitz concluded his testimony.

Earlier the chairman told the committee that he felt Nimitz had provided ample warning to Congress and "I hope Congress will heed the advice he has given us."

Original navy requests for funds, Nimitz said, contemplated a fleet of 1,079 combatant craft in addition to necessary hundreds of supporting craft. As a result of the proposed reduction to $4,225,000,000, he declared, the total fighting fleet would be 965 ships, but many of these would be placed on inactive status.

26 in Army C-47 Perish; Wreckage Of Missing B-29 Bomber Is Found

Both Crashes Occur in California; Seven Were aboard Superfort

TRANSPORT CARRIED SEVERAL PERSONNEL

Ship Strikes Mountain Slope; Witnesses Report Plane Exploded

By EDWARD A. OLSEN

TRUCKEE, Calif., March 19. (AP) —Twenty-six army and navy men were killed today in a C-47 transport plane which strewed wreckage over a wide area of the crash scene in the snowy Sierras north of Lake Tahoe. Hours later, the wreckage of a B-29 army bomber was sighted near Livermore, 150 miles southwest of Truckee, with a probable loss of seven more lives.

The C-47, flying from Stockton army air base to Denver, crashed in mid-morning with some witnesses reporting it previously exploded aloft.

Late today, wreckage of the B-29, flying in from Honolulu and unreported since the last radio contact about 2 a. m., was sighted by a private pilot and later confirmed as the missing bomber by officials at Hamilton field, north of San Francisco.

More than twenty of the bodies already have been counted at the C-47 crash scene, a heavily-wooded sector difficult to reach.

Witnesses Report Explosion

Wreckage of a plane, which a private pilot said he felt certain was the missing Honolulu-to-San-Francisco B-29, was sighted late today near Livermore.

Some witnesses peering through snow from a distance thought they saw the C-47 blow up in the air, with the fuselage landing near Hobart Mills, seven miles north of Truckee.

The B-29, flying from Honolulu with seven persons reported aboard, was traced last by radio communication as possibly over the Sacramento valley at a point roughly 100 miles west of the C-47 crash scene. The big Superfortress, of the type which bombed Japan in the war, had engine trouble.

Ground searching parties, reaching the scene of the C-47 crash, counted twenty-three bodies, all service personnel, before dusk fell.

The bodies were scattered over a wide area, along with bits of wreckage.

In regard to the C-47, Lt. Stephen B. Cummings, commanding a

Red Forces May Soon Withdraw From Changchun

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Wednesday, March 20 (AP) — Russian troops are withdrawing west of Changchun amid indications they soon will quit the Manchurian capital itself, the semi-official Central news agency reported today.

The news of further Red Army withdrawals came as the Russians were reported to have complained that Chinese fighting along Manchuria's main north-south railway was imperiling Soviet supply lines to Port Arthur and Dairen.

Central news agency said the Russians had requested the Chinese to be ready to take over the building used as Soviet headquarters at Changchun.

Another indication of a possible early Russian withdrawal from Changchun, the agency added, was that the Soviets had shipped more than 10,000 puppet Manchurian troops northward from the capital by train.

The dispatch stated that the Soviet command had turned aside a new Chinese request to enter the southern port of Dairen.

Gen. Tung Yen-Ping, ranking Chinese officer at Changchun, was informed the question of unloading relief supplies at Dairen would have to be referred to Moscow, according to the Changchun account, although Dairen was to become a free port under the Chinese-Russian treaty.

The chief of staff to Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, Russian commander in Manchuria, then complained to the Chinese officer about the disruption of traffic on the Changchun railway and the shortage of coal, the dispatch said. The Soviet officer reportedly declared that Russia now had no troops south of Changchun except for a few purchasing food supplies.

Selective Service Urges Indefinite Renewal of Draft

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—Selective Service appealed today for extension of the draft indefinitely and spurred along a congressional drive for action.

On the heels of a letter from Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, military committees of Senate and House ordered immediate closed door hearings on the law which is due to expire May 15.

Hershey, writing the House committee, was reported by members to have recommended:

1. No time limit on extension but provisions for termination by presidential order or joint congressional action.

2. Length of service, domestic and overseas, of men inducted in the future be limited to eighteen months. The present law permits retention of inductees until six months after the war is declared ended.

3. No change in present draft ages, 18 through 45. Under executive order the top age for inductees is 26 at present.

Chairman May of the House committee, announced hearings will start Thursday morning with army heads as first witnesses.

Simultaneously, Chairman Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) set the stage for Senate Military committee hearings starting probably tomorrow. He said he expected Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson to be the first witness, followed by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

There is strong sentiment in both Senate and House commitees for a definite time limit on any extension that might be recommended.

Chairman Thomas had suggested an extension only until July 1, which would permit Selective Service to induct thousands of students deferred until the end of the high school year. But he told reporters that if the heads of the army, the navy and the State department made convicting statements to the committee, he would be willing to favor continuance for "quite a while."

Chairman May has introduced legislation for a six-months extension and has proposed that the maximum age for inductions be lowered to 30 years and the minimum raised to 21, with all fathers exempted.

Scientists in Helicopters Will Scout Bikini after A-Bomb Test

NORFOLK, Va., March 19 (AP) — Scientists, flying from the carrier Shangri La in helicopters, will scout Bikini atoll after the atom bomb test to safety check for deadly radioactivity.

The patrol of scientists, armed with Geiger counters to tell them of the presence of dangerous rays, will advise the other members of the expedition when it is safe for them to move into the lagoon and land on the islands.

The Shangri La was outward bound from this port today, with a load of equipment more fantastic than any she carried in her wartime strikes against Japan. Aboard was a fleet of drone planes, F6F "Ghost Hellcats," piloted by remote radio control and intended to fly through the atom bomb cloud to bring back samples of the poisonous material. Each of the brilliant red drones has a "queen" plane from which the controls are operated after a catapault launching from the carrier's deck.

Because the drones may get out of sight of the control planes, the Shangri La will use her radar equipment to track the drones and report them to the control planes. The plan is to land the drones at Roi island, in the Kwajalein atoll about 180 miles from Bikini. The carrier will send up the drones when twenty and forty miles from the target.

The Shangri La, commanded by Capt. E. A. Cruise, Hebron, Mich., had abroad a complement of 1,700 officers and men and about sixty of her own planes, in addition to the drones, when she sailed from this great naval port at dusk yesterday.

The navy drone planes have a ceiling of about 36,000 feet, an altitude which would be somewhat above the center of the atomic cloud column.

Carrier and drone officers said it was quite possible all drone planes launched might not reach Roi with data. While radioactivity is not expected to upset the radio controls, the terrific turbulence near the cloud column may toss them on their back. Once drones have been tipped beyond a certain angle they can not be pulled back into flight attitude and come tumbling down out of the sky. It is hoped, however, that if this happens, some instruments on the planes, with their recordings, can be salvaged.

Similar instrumentation by drone planes will be carried out by army air forces, using B-17 Flying Fortresses.

Coal Talks Open After Ultimatum From UMW Chief

Lewis Demands Operators Choose between "War or Peace"

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — After a "war or peace" ultimatum from John L. Lewis, bituminous coal operators and miners got down to actual bargaining on a new contract today.

Each side professed readiness to negotiate on the other's demands.

"We want to make a contract," said Charles O'Neill, the operators' spokesman.

Lewis, who renewed his demand for greater mine safety measures and asked the owners whether they wanted "peace" or "war," declared:

"We'll negotiate with you from here out."

He was referring to the operators' demand for guarantees from the United Mine Workers against wildcat strikes.

As the week of open meetings gave way to closed sessions, a committee of six operators, two alternates and two technicians and a similar number of miners was appointed to attempt to write a new agreement before the present one is terminated by Lewis at midnight March 31. He has prepared the way for a nationwide coal strike of 400,000 bituminous workers if he finds it necessary.

Lewis Raps Burke

Lewis asked for a shorter work week at higher pay and adjustment of the controversy over unionization of foremen which provoked a strike last October. But he devoted most of a week of meetings attended by his 250-man policy committee and industry representatives to emphasizing his demand for safer working conditions and a health and welfare fund.

The producers requested substitution of a standard forty-hour week for the industry's historic thirty-five-hour basic week along with a guarantee against wildcat strikes.

Commenting on the latter, Lewis said that "we'll meet you halfway."

"Tit or tat—a Roland for your Oliver," he added. "It's negotiable."

But before that he took another rap at Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association. He said Burke had attempted to "conspire" with Rep. May (D-Ky) to legislate on "matters covered by our contract" and called that "nocturnal skullduggery."

Lewis Appeals to Operators

Lewis appealed to the operators to discontinue what he called "the dog in the manger attitude that too long has characterized their acts."

Lehman Declares Rationing Must Be Brought Back

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 19 (AP)—The world must return to wartime rationing, UNRRA's Director General Herbert H. Lehman told a council meeting today after it had listened to stories of mounting misery from the two hemispheres.

He told the council that "an enduring peace cannot be written in the midst of hunger and famine. I know that far greater sacrifices can be made without injury from all exporting areas—the United States, Canada, all the republics of South and Central America, and the southern dominions of the British commonwealth.

"Rationing of commodities in short supply is not only required but it will be supported by consumers when they understand that it will provide food for people who fought the common enemy, and to help insure fair distribution in the supplying countries."

Nikola Petrovic, of Yugoslavia, gave statistics in painting a picture of destruction in his country—1,685,000 people dead, 3,300,000 homeless, and 289,000 farms destroyed.

He urged, as did Vladimir Hurban, of Czechoslovakia, that the world's limited food supplies be given first to "those who have fought with us."

Hurban said "we cannot put the victim and the aggressor on the same level."

Vets Will Try To Block Gen. Clark's Promotion

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Veterans of the Thirty-sixth (Texas) division disclosed today they will attempt to block promotion of Gen. Mark Clark in their effort to obtain congressional investigation of the costly Rapido river crossing in Italy.

The House Military committee rejected today the division's request that an investigation be made, expressing belief nothing could be accomplished by it.

Truman Pledges All-Out Support Of UNO Charter

President Accounts to Congress on First Work of Organization

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — President Truman accounted to Congress today on the first work of the United Nations Organization and pledged all-out support to the peace preserving principles of its charter.

By doing its utmost to perfect the charter, he said, the United States will "give new and full expression to the meaning of 'America' to the world."

Mr. Truman passed along to Congress a report by Secretary of State Byrnes on the American delegation's first activities in the United Nations Assembly in London.

Asserting that this nation's part in setting up the institutions provided in the UNO Charter "is vital to all Americans," the president's message said:

U. S. Seeks To Perfect Charter

"The United States supports the charter. The United States supports the fullest implementation of the principles of the charter. The United States seeks to achieve the purposes of the charter. And the United States seeks to perfect the charter as experience lights the way.

"To do less than our utmost in this essential effort of peace-loving nations, whatever may be the obstacles and difficulties, would be a betrayal of the trust of those who fought to win the opportunity to have a world at peace with security and well-being, for all. To do our utmost will be to give new and full expression to the meaning of 'America' to the world."

Secretary Byrnes's report covered the first part of the first session of the general assembly, which was chiefly organizational.

Truman To Miss UNO Meeting

"We have taken a constructive step on the long road to peace and all that peace can bring to man. That step, though a modest one, has been strong and sure. The next one can take us further. How well we can advance on the way will depend x x x upon the support given the United Nations by the governments and peoples which compose it. Their support should be forthcoming because their common interest far outweight any conflict in interest that might divide them."

Although President Truman told his last news conference he would like to attend the next UNO activity—the meeting of the Security council opening in New York next Monday—the White House said today he "finds it utterly impossible to get away."

Hoover Will Confer With French Officials

PARIS, March 19—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, arriving by plane on a fact-finding study of Europe's food crisis, said today producing nations would ship 14,000,000 tons of food abroad between now and the July harvest, but that it would not be enough to satisfy all wants.

Much depends on the world's July harvest for a speedy solution to the threat of famine, he said.

Hoover said he planned to remain in Paris a few days, setting up his headquarters and conferring with French officials, and then would leave for Rome.

He said he hoped to visit all food-short areas of Europe, but that he "probably will not go to Spain," which he classed among the needy nations.

BERN, March 19. (AP)—Switzerland and Russia have re-established diplomatic relations after a twenty-two-year-long break, the Swiss political department said today.

GM Emphasizes That Strike Must End in All Its Plants

Henry Wallace's "Purge" Proposal Arouses Congress

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—Charges that Henry A. Wallace favors a political "purge" system akin to Hitler's or Stalin's were hurled in Congress today as legislators hotly opposed his proposal to expel dissidents from the Republican and Democratic parties.

The commerce secretary, in a speech before the Women's Democratic Club yesterday, declared senators and representatives who oppose their own parties on fundamental issues should be barred from seeking re-election on their party tickets.

Sen. Johnston (D-SC) started a discussion in the Senate by reading a newspaper account of the address in which Wallace called for party discipline on such major questions as the British loan, foreign relations, full employment, and atomic energy.

"Do you think Henry has gone Fascist?" asked Sen. Wiley (R-Wis).

Sen. Chavez (D-NM) interjected that it was the "philosophy of Hitler and Himmler that they did not want members to think for themselves, but to follow the party movement."

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) said: "It sounds like he is proposing the continental purge system—if a man doesn't agree minutely, purge him. It is the most peculiar political policy I have heard announced."

"I can tell Henry Wallace one thing," Johnston snorted. "He cannot ride me out of my Democratic party and let Mr. Joe Stalin take my place."

Wallace had said that Stalin issued a "challenge to democracy in his speech of March 6 when he said democracy has 'booms, busts and war.' It is interesting to note that during the 30s Russia had neither. I suggest that we accept this challenge in the most peaceful way possible and see if we can't have full employment to prevent 'booms, busts and wars.'"

"I will not follow one man," Johnston continued, "whether it be Henry Wallace or any other, blindly. I will make up my own mind. I believe that is what the people want us to do."

Corporation Declares It Must Assume That Walkout Continues

"No Time To Quibble over Procedural Matters," Reuther States

DETROIT, March 19 (AP)—General Motors Corporation today told the CIO United Auto Workers that "until we receive notification from the international union that the strike is ended in all our plants, we will have to assume that the strike continues."

The corporation, acting shortly after the UAW notified it that the rank and file of GM workers had approved the national strike settlement, declared in a telegram to Walter P. Reuther, UAW vice president:

"We are in receipt of your telegram of March 19 in which you state x x x the settlement of March 13 'has been ratified by a majority vote of local unions' but that 'in certain unions the membership has voted to remain on strike until a satisfactory settlement occurs with respect to their local demands.'

"In keeping with the agreement which we entered into with your union officers, your telegram should officially end the strike in all GM plants."

Reuther Answers Statement

"Until we receive notification from the international union that the strike is ended in all our plants, we will have to assume that the strike continues and that the resumption of production will be delayed until that time.

"You are aware that our manufacturing is so geared that we can not start production in a part of our plants with others still out on strike."

The corporation's statement was signed by Harry W. Anderson, GM vice president.

Reuther, in a reply telegraphed to Anderson tonight, asserted, "this no time to quibble over procedural matters."

Nimitz Says It Would Take Six Months To Restore Navy Strength

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) — Demobilization—of men and ships—has so pared the navy that at least six months would be required to restore its fighting strength of last fall, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said today.

Nimitz, who led the world's greatest navy in the Pacific war, made the estimate in reply to inquiries from members of the House Naval committee.

He disclosed that the budget bureau had sought to cut the navy's appropriation for the next fiscal year from $6,325,000,000 to $3,960,000,000 but had put the total at $4,225,000,000 after his protest.

The chief of naval operations, slight, gray, tanned by his years at tropical bases, declared the proposed cut of $2,100,000,000 would have a "very serious" effect on United States leadership in world affairs.

If the original slash of the budget bureau had remained effective, he said, it would have jeopardized not only the nation's world position but even defense of the country itself.

"You have warned Congress and warned the country that you require for proper defense and for the position the nation holds in world affairs an appropriation of $6,000,000,000," declared Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) as Nimitz concluded his testimony.

Earlier the chairman told the committee that he felt Nimitz had provided ample warning to Congress and "I hope Congress will heed the advice he has given us."

Original navy requests for funds, Nimitz said, contemplated a fleet of 1,079 combatant craft in addition to necessary hundreds of supporting craft. As a result of the proposed reduction to $4,225,000,000, he declared, the total fighting fleet would be 965 ships, but many of these would be placed on inactive status.

26 in Army C-47 Perish; Wreckage Of Missing B-29 Bomber Is Found

Both Crashes Occur in California; Seven Were aboard Superfort

Ship Strikes Mountain Slope; Witnesses Report Plane Exploded

By EDWARD A. OLSEN

TRUCKEE, Calif., March 19. (AP) —Twenty-six army and navy men were killed today in a C-47 transport plane which strewed wreckage over a wide area of the crash scene in the snowy Sierras north of Lake Tahoe. Hours later, the wreckage of a B-29 army bomber was sighted near Livermore, 150 miles southwest of Truckee, with a probable loss of seven more lives.

The C-47, flying from Stockton army air base to Denver, crashed in mid-morning with some witnesses reporting it previously exploded aloft.

Late today, wreckage of the B-29, flying in from Honolulu and unreported since the last radio contact about 2 a. m., was sighted by a private pilot and later confirmed as the missing bomber by officials at Hamilton field, north of San Francisco.

More than twenty of the bodies already have been counted at the C-47 crash scene, a heavily-wooded sector difficult to reach.

Witnesses Report Explosion

Wreckage of a plane, which a private pilot said he felt certain was the missing Honolulu-to-San-Francisco B-29, was sighted late today near Livermore.

Some witnesses peering through snow from a distance thought they saw the C-47 blow up in the air, with the fuselage landing near Hobart Mills, seven miles north of Truckee.

The B-29, flying from Honolulu with seven persons reported aboard, was traced last by radio communication as possibly over the Sacramento valley at a point roughly 100 miles west of the C-47 crash scene. The big Superfortress, of the type which bombed Japan in the war, had engine trouble.

Ground searching parties, reaching the scene of the C-47 crash, counted twenty-three bodies, all service personnel, before dusk fell.

The bodies were scattered over a wide area, along with bits of wreckage.

In regard to the C-47, Lt. Stephen B. Cummings, commanding a

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Wednesday, March 20 (AP) — Russian troops are withdrawing west of Changchun amid indications they soon will quit the Manchurian capital itself, the semi-official Central news agency reported today.

The news of further Red Army withdrawals came as the Russians were reported to have complained that Chinese fighting along Manchuria's main north-south railway was imperiling Soviet supply lines to Port Arthur and Dairen.

Central news agency said the Russians had requested the Chinese to be ready to take over the building used as Soviet headquarters at Changchun.

Another indication of a possible early Russian withdrawal from Changchun, the agency added, was that the Soviets had shipped more than 10,000 puppet Manchurian troops northward from the capital by train.

The dispatch stated that the Soviet command had turned aside a new Chinese request to enter the southern port of Dairen.

Gen. Tung Yen-Ping, ranking Chinese officer at Changchun, was informed the question of unloading relief supplies at Dairen would have to be referred to Moscow, according to the Changchun account, although Dairen was to become a free port under the Chinese-Russian treaty.

The chief of staff to Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, Russian commander in Manchuria, then complained to the Chinese officer about the disruption of traffic on the Changchun railway and the shortage of coal, the dispatch said. The Soviet officer reportedly declared that Russia now had no troops south of Changchun except for a few purchasing food supplies.

Mrs. Dorothy Lapp Is Given Custody Of Her Daughter

A Fort Ashby, W. Va., woman, represented by Vernon E. Rankin and F. Brooke Whiting, yesterday was granted the custody of her daughter in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus against her estranged husband, Carlton L. Lapp, Oldtown road.

Mrs. Dorothy E. Lapp charged that her husband, a former soldier, took the girl from her home to the home of his parents here and refused to surrender the child. Lapp said yesterday that he will file suit for a divorce through his counsel, Paul M. Fletcher.

Harry M. Smith, Jr., Cumberland, had his petition for a writ of habeas corpus to gain his release from the state prison rejected in circuit court by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper. Smith was sentenced last April 4 by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in Trial Magistrates Court, to serve a year on a charge of larceny and unauthorized use of an automobile.

Smith asserted that he "broke no law" when he "walked away" from the grounds of the Maryland Reformatory for Males last July 7. He was apprehended a short time later and given an additional sentence of eighteen months when arraigned before Associate Judge Joseph D. Mish in Washington County Circuit Court.

A hearing will be held today on the petition of Edmund L. Shaffer for a writ of habeas corpus to gain the custody of his two children, Barbara A. and Teresa L. Shaffer. Shaffer alleges that the children are illegally detained by his divorced wife, Mrs. Elsie I. Shaffer, 515 Hill Top Drive. Shaffer, represented by Clarence Shutter, said he obtained a divorce last October and was awarded the custody of the two minor children. Julius E. Schindler is attorney for Mrs. Shaffer.

Election Day

know whether it's worth it or not". Incidentally he's the only one of the Post slate we saw in our tour.

Clifton E. Fuller was at Ward 4, Precinct 1, . . . that's the city hall. We didn't get to talk to "Tippy", but we did hear one worker say, "maybe he's picking out his office already".

All of the polling places seemed a little more alive yesterday than two weeks ago, and workers in the polls said time was passing faster because they had been kept busier. All seemed pleased because the vote was heavier than some expected, despite the fact that more votes cast mean more ballots for them to count.

The polling places are all well located and neat, clean and comfortable. We couldn't help but notice conditions at Ward 5, Precinct 1, state armory. The polling place was in the club rooms to the right of the entrance, and was adequate enough. However, the steps leading into the armory and the main hallway looked like a pig-sty. Numerous voters commented on the condition. It looked as if it hadn't been swept or scrubbed in months.

After the primary election, workers in all polling places did an excellent job, co-operating with the press. This seems like a good time to say thanks to them. Also thanks for last night and this morning too. You folk did a speedy job in the tabulation, and we appreciate it, because we can't put the paper to bed until we hear from each precinct. Thanks again.

Another observation made while touring the city might be worth mentioning here. We hope something is done very soon by the new mayor and city council, to provide playgrounds for youngsters. In every section of the city, we saw little folks playing in the streets. On Paca street, they were making a game of running in front of cars. Seems to us this is a problem for parents, teachers, and city officials. No wonder people complain about the police department.

The Post slate, including Mayor Thomas S. Post for mayor, H. Frank Hinze, Myers G. Light and John E. Sharp for council, had cars and workers out urging voters to vote.

There was no announced slate other than the Post slate, but in several sections of the city, we encountered sample ballots marked for Davis, Chaney, Fuller and Keegan. Some of these were also marked for Edwards. It was reported Edwards and Hutter were running independent of either slate.

Actually, only one slate was openly in the picture, but it is generally conceded that Davis had more candidates for council friendly to him, than Post could rally. Maybe that's why Post appealed for his slate to go into the city hall with him.

We heard one worker at one polling place tell a vote., "just mark the first name for mayor and the first four for council." That meant, according to our sample ballot, Davis, Chaney, Edwards, Fuller and Hinze. We asked the worker "whose slate is that," and he replied, "it's my own. I'm not being paid by anybody." He declined to tell us his name.

The first precinct to report returns last night was Ward 3, Precinct 3, located at 312 Bedford street where 403 voters are registered. A total of 190 votes were cast. Post polled 92 and Davis 91. This precinct is by far the smallest in the city, but is situated in the heart of the city. The report came in at 8:30 p. m. These workers here were also the first to report on primary day.

In Ward 1, Precinct 3, Mt. Royal avenue school, 390 votes were cast, 186 going to Davis and 187 to Post, indicating fairly even division of opinion and choice. However, two ballots were cast with write-in votes for Hunter B. Helfrich for mayor, while write-in votes were also cast for Arthur Gibson, Frank E. Smith and Charles Helmrich, for council.

books supplied by the moving van, and be of much more benefit to them in future years."

Shaefer, also ventured the opinion that the appropriation of $20,000 "will not stop at that figure, as experience has taught us, projects once on the levy are like, what I might term, similar to the roots of the Poison Ivy, most difficult to remove. Therefore, we have no assurance that the next year the sum will not be $30,000 and the following year $40,000."

In summing up, Shaefer said, "now gentlemen, I wish you to know that I am of the firm opinion, the same as a great many other people that I have contacted, that no new or unnecessary appropriations should be made at this time as our tax rate is already as high or higher than any other county in the state of Maryland, in fact our state of Maryland county and city tax rates are higher than in Baltimore City and look what trouble they are having, plenty from all accounts we read in the Baltimore Sun. Therefore, I earnestly request that this appropriation not be considered as I firmly believe that the benefit derived would not warrant the expenditure at this time, when we all should be economy-minded."

Another Communication

Shaefer, Delbert R. Kitzmiller and Harry B. Simpson, all spokesmen for the taxpayers' league, appeared before the commissioners yesterday charging that the approval of the proposed appropriation would mean "double taxation" for Cumberland residents.

Another communication received by the board was from W. A. McCreary, Cumberland, who said:

"I see in the paper that the annual levy will be passed next month. As a hunter and sportsman, I would appreciate it if you would consider putting in your budget about $20,000 to stock the woods and fields of the county with turkey, rabbits, quail, raccoon, opossum or any other game that one may eat. As a fisherman, I would also like you to stock the streams of Allegany county.

"You fellows seem to have plenty for everything else, especially you Mr. Wilkinson, and I am certain if you would make a motion to levy this amount Mr. Green and Mr. Holmes would gladly go along with you.

"We hunters and fishermen pay several thousand dollars for hunting and fishing licenses every year and get nothing in return. We also pay a terrible tax on our real estate in this county. I think it would be only fair if you men would spend something for the recreation of the working man.

Commissioners Are Silent

"The schools and libraries have ample reading matter for the leisure hours of the rest of the people, but we poor hunters and fishermen do not have anything to hunt for. So, since you have plenty of money for traveling libraries and everything else, I hope you will likewise help the poor hunter and fisherman of Allegany county."

The commissioners heard the reading of McCreary's communication without comment.

Mrs. A. J. Merkin, 205 Greene street, urged the board to make the appropriation for the benefit of adults and children in rural areas. A large number of women's clubs, Parent-Teacher associations and other organizations have endorsed the plan in recent months.

U. S. Prosecutor

Often smirking and taunting the prosecutor, Goering took issue with the documents, saying they were mistaken or misinterpreted. After a half-hour exchange, Jackson exploded. Turned to the court and said:

"I submit that it is perfectly futile to spend our time in cross-examination, if we cannot be given direct answers. This witness seems to me to have adopted an arrogant and contemptuous attitude toward this tribunal which is giving him a trial he never gave another living soul—or dead one either. I suggest he should be instructed to give direct answers."

British Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding over the trial of the Nazi war leaders, replied that the court repeatedly had given the witnesses instructions on how to conduct themselves. Then he adjourned the session.

Judge McLanahan, 64, Dies at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, March 19. (AP) — Judge James Craig McLanahan, former brigadier general of the Maryland National Guard, a leader of Republican politics in the state and a member of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore for eight years, died this afternoon at his home.

Judge McLanahan had been ill since 1942 and he had been inactive on the bench since 1943. He was 64 years old.

rescue squad from Hamilton field, said the plane did not burn. Other persons reported they saw it apparently explode and drop toward the ground.

Crashes near Ghost Town

Hobart Mills, a ghost lumber town in which one family resides, is at 6,500-feet elevation in the Sierras. The crash scene was one mile southwest of the town in a heavily-wooded area covered by about eight feet of snow.

Lt. Thomas M. Pickett at Stockton air field, said the plane, which left there this morning, cleared McClelland field at Sacramento at 1:50 p. m. and crashed about 2:45 p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

In Sacramento, Col. B. R. Ertwine, of McClelland field, said the twenty-six aboard comprised mixed army and navy personnel.

The scene of the tragedy is about forty miles west of Reno.

Clair Heater, caretaker at Hobart Mills, and three California highway maintenance workers from Sierraville, D. W. Roberts, Floyd V. Reed and Tom Dewrye, all said they saw the plane apparently explode in the air and break into pieces. The plane was at least a mile away at the time, and it was snowing.

Ground searchers on snowshoes then started for the crash area. Among them were soldiers of the Four-Hundred and Seventy-fifth base rescue unit of Hamilton field.

Right Wing Is Not Found

Capt. Harold Simer, commanding officer of the Reno, Nev., army air base, who made his way to the scene, said the right wing of the C-47 had not been found, perhaps having dropped away first.

The plane evidently had spiralled down crazily, striking a tree which sheered off the left wing. The fuselage had struck the mountain slope and nosed over into the snow, breaking open.

A huddled mass of bodies in the fuselage were so entangled first attempts to count them were unsuccessful. All were in army or navy uniforms, and for the most part were intact. There was no fire.

Meanwhile at Merced, the army dispatched the Four-Hundred and Seventy-fifth air base unit to make a search of the hills near Livermore for the B-29. Because of approaching darkness, only a ground rescue crew, consisting of jeeps and ambulances, started out.

Pacific division ATC headquarters said the superfortress was one of a group being ferried to the mainland from an advance base in the Pacific.

operators "to meticulously carry out" any safety recommendations of federal mine inspectors, conceding that it would cost money.

But it would "reduce the killings in West Virginia and other mining states," he declared, saying that 386 miners had died in mine accidents in West Virginia in the last fourteen months. Another 23,388 were injured, he added.

"Three hundred and eighty-six men carried out of the mines dead and limp and taken up to the company house where their families live and carried in the door dead," he declared. "Have you ever been in a company house when the breadwinner was carried in dead?"

"Another 23,388 hobbled or were carried to those same company houses. For an average of forty days per man they laid on their backs on their pallets in a company house while they watched the cracks in the ceilings and wondered if the rain would come through."

Talks Are Recessed

Urging the inclusion of his safety clause in the contract, he asked:

"Will you do it? Will you think it over? Will you chain your dogs while we talk about it? I mean the National Coal Association. I mean your press agents. I mean your mimeograph machines. I mean your propaganda statements."

The producers challenged Lewis's figures, argued that any abuses were "isolated" and denied his "indictment" point by point.

When the first closed session recessed tonight at 5 p. m. until 9:30 tomorrow morning a spokesman for the operators said it had been devoted to a more detailed discussion of Lewis's proposals. He said no conclusions were reached.

It was understood that a major part of the conference centered on efforts by the operators to learn from Lewis specifically what his health and welfare demand is, but that Lewis was indefinite.

had a clear understanding with the corporation that the strike settlement agreement covered only national issues and that upon ratification of the national strike agreement, certain local unions might vote to remain on strike because their plant managements had failed to settle local issues satisfactorily."

Calls for Negotiations

The UAW official asked the corporation "to advise local management to enter into continuous negotiation with local shop committees until plant issues are settled," and added, "x x x it is a fact that many of the corporation's plants can begin operations independently of any other unit. There is no justification for failure to resume production without further delay in such units."

Ratification of the peace terms reached on the one hundred and thirteenth day of the walkout of 175,000 men was announced as a "ninety per cent acceptance" by Reuther.

He said locals representing 154,400 workers had accepted the terms.

Blocking a resumption of work in at least twenty-one plants were local disputes which were still unsettled. The UAW-CIO international has promised to support unions in such plants if they wished to remain on strike.

GM's plants, which turn out fifty per cent of the nation's automobile production, remained closed or in only limited operation today for the one-hundred and nineteenth day.

Oil-Rich Nation

because of its responsibilities to its people and because of the obligations imposed upon it by the constitution of Iran. No Iranian government "could take any other course."

In his appeal to the council, which was actually filed last night but circulated to council members only today, Ala made these two charges:

1. Russia is keeping troops in Iran beyond last March 2, contrary to the Soviet-British-Iranian treaty of January, 1942, which provided that foreign troops should be withdrawn in six months after the end of the war. The war ended with the Japanese surrender last September 2.

2. Russia is "continuing to interfere in the internal affairs of Iran through the medium of Soviet agents, officials and armed forces."

Ala argued that such things violate the charter of the United Nations and the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin declaration at Tehran in the autumn of 1943 pledging support of Iranian sovereignty.

Placed on Provisional Agenda

Ala addressed his appeal technically to the president of the Security council, Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, the Chinese member. He transmitted a copy of it to Secretary General Tryvge Lie, of the United Nations, asking him to put it on the program of the council's meeting beginning March 25 in New York. In releasing the appeal, Lie said that it had been put on the provisional agenda, adoption of which will be up to the council at its first session. No nation will be able to veto discussion of the Iranian question by one vote since a simple majority of seven is all that is required for approval of a program.

United States officials in private comment were pleased with Ala's move. Qavam had sent word to Washington last week that he intended to take the case to the Security council. However, he was known to be under tremendous pressure in Tehran, and Secretary of State Byrnes had prepared an American appeal to get the case before the council if Iran failed to act.

Reds' Objective Is Obscure

Meanwhile, reports continued to arrive from Iran telling of Soviet troop movements and the long-range Russian objective remained as obscure as before. Evidently few top officials here believe that all the Russians want or intend to accomplish by the current maneuvers is a slice of control over Iran's rich oil deposits.

An Iranian embassy official disclosed that Ambassador Ala had conferred during the day with three representatives of countries holding membership on the Security council—Poland, Egypt and China.

The official said Dr. Oscar Lange, Polish ambassador; Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, of China, who will be chairman of the Security council for the next month, and Mahmoud Hassan, Egyptian minister, all called at the Iranian embassy to confer with Ala on the Iranian note.

The official refused, however, to disclose the nature of the discussions or to say whether the conferences were held at Ala's suggestion or those of the visitors.

Of a special interest was the visit of Lange because Poland is expected to follow Russia's lead in council deliberations on the Iranian matter.

S. L. Dodd, chairman of the hospital committee, reported no federal funds are available for the erection of new hospitals at the present time. Dodd also reported that a meeting of interested parties will be held Thursday, on a county-wide telephone system.

J. D. Anderson, chairman of the committee on the town park and recreation center, reported a budget of $875 had been set for the three-month season for new equipment and the life guard's salary at the swimming pool.

Windows Broken

A freak accident broke two large plate glass windows in the Coffman Fisher store front this morning when a wheel off a car driven by Floyd Brill crashed into the corner of the store.

Brill was rounding the corner to Main street from Winchester avenue when his rear wheel came off and rolled half a block through traffic and parked cars into the plate glass windows. The wheel hit squarely into the corner of the two windows, breaking both plates.

The windows were insured.

Child and Play Discussed

Miss Jewell Matthews, continuing her series of programs on "The Child and the Various Influences That Surround Him," presented a program on the child and play at the parent-teacher meeting Monday night at the graded school building.

Miss Matthews defined recreation as re-creation or renewal and spoke of its beneficial effects on adults. She emphasized the fact that play is not a waste of time but is actually a step in education. The child playing learns for the future, "learning by doing."

At the end of the talk, Miss Matthews presented the plea of the teen-agers in Moorefield for a place to play, a place where they might meet and dance and have ping-pong and other games and where, in the words of the young people themselves they might "go for a good time and you (the older generation) won't talk about us."

At the business meeting, preceding the program, it was announced that lights had been installed in the graded school building and that the order for blinds was still pending.

The organization is sponsoring a minstrel show in the near future and it was announced that Miss Mae Gwen Matthews and P. W. Clarke will direct it. Several committees from the P-T. A. were appointed. Mrs. Rose McWhorter, Mrs. David Hahn and Mrs. Stone were put in charge of costumes; Mrs. George T. Leatherman, Miss Leona Garrett and Miss Elsie Lou Hendrickson will have charge of advertising; Raymond Sindy, C. B. Hiett and S. P. Hawse will provide properties; and Mrs. Wade Stickley will head the finance committee.

Lawrence L. Malloy Dies

Lawrence L. Malloy, 67, Mt. Savage, Baltimore and Ohio railroad machinist who retired December 14 after about thirty years employment with the B. and O., died at 10:50 o'clock last night at his home. He had been in failing health for about a month.

A native of the Mt. Savage, Mr. Malloy was a son of the late George and Mary Malloy. He was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church, Mt. Savage, a charter member of the Knights of Columbus at Mt. Savage, and was a member of Local 212, International Association of Machinists.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Annie E. Wills Malloy; three sons, Joseph L. Malloy, Mt. Savage; Edward F. Malloy, Cumberland, and Lawrence W. Malloy, now serving in Tokyo with the army; and four daughters, Mrs. Lester Murphy, Mt. Savage; Mrs. Joseph Pinnicki, Baltimore; Miss Anna Louise Malloy, Baltimore, and Mrs. Joseph Porter, Mt. Savage.

One brother, George Malloy, and four sisters, Mrs. Margaret Graham, Mrs. Catherine McDermott, Mrs. Michael Fannon and Miss Gertrude Malloy, all of Mt. Savage; and twenty grandchildren and one great-grandchild also survive.

Edwards

so many good people supported me in my views and in my campaign."

Edwards Is Overwhelmed

William J. Edwards, the only candidate for re-election to council lead the council ticket and polled only six votes less than Mayor Post. When contacted at 1 a. m., Edwards said, "I am overwhelmed with the splendid support and confidence of the fine people of Cumberland. I sincerely thank all those who voted for me and all the good people who campaigned in my behalf. We will face many problems in the next two years, but I assure the citizens I shall continue faithfully in the performance of my duties in office, as I have in the years I have held public office."

William V. Keegan, successful candidate for council at 1 a. m. when informed that he had been elected to the council stated, "I am grateful to the people of Cumberland for my election to the city council. In my decisions, you may rest assured that I will give my best for you and you only".

The News tried repeatedly from 11:45 until 1:30 to reach Mayor Post for a statement but up to press time he could not be located.

Post carried a total of twelve precincts, with all of the seven precincts in Ward 6, South Cumberland land-sliding to him. The incumbent also received strong support in Ward 4 Precinct 2, East Side. One West Side precinct, Ward 1, Precinct three went to Post by one vote. Post also carried Ward 3 Precinct 2, Franklin street in North Cumberland by fifteen votes. He carried Ward 5, Precinct 2, by only seven votes.

A complete analysis of the unofficial returns clearly indicates that Post was elected by the strong majority he received in the South Cumberland section. He ran about the same in the primary, when he carried a total of ten precincts.

Davis carried eight of the twenty precincts and received his strongest support in Ward 1, on the West Side, but here he divided the four precincts three to one with his opponent. North Cumberland also gave Davis a nice vote, but his strength uptown was insufficient to overcome Post's lead in South Cumberland.

Mrs. Dorothy Lapp Is Given Custody Of Her Daughter

A Fort Ashby, W. Va., woman, represented by Vernon E. Rankin and F. Brooke Whiting, yesterday was granted the custody of her daughter in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus against her estranged husband, Carlton L. Lapp, Oldtown road.

Mrs. Dorothy E. Lapp charged that her husband, a former soldier, took the girl from her home to the home of his parents here and refused to surrender the child. Lapp said yesterday that he will file suit for a divorce through his counsel, Paul M. Fletcher.

Harry M. Smith, Jr., Cumberland, had his petition for a writ of habeas corpus to gain his release from the state prison rejected in circuit court by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper. Smith was sentenced last April 4 by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in Trial Magistrates Court, to serve a year on a charge of larceny and unauthorized use of an automobile.

Smith asserted that he "broke no law" when he "walked away" from the grounds of the Maryland Reformatory for Males last July 7. He was apprehended a short time later and given an additional sentence of eighteen months when arraigned before Associate Judge Joseph D. Mish in Washington County Circuit Court.

A hearing will be held today on the petition of Edmund L. Shaffer for a writ of habeas corpus to gain the custody of his two children, Barbara A. and Teresa L. Shaffer. Shaffer alleges that the children are illegally detained by his divorced wife, Mrs. Elsie I. Shaffer, 515 Hill Top Drive. Shaffer, represented by Clarence Shutter, said he obtained a divorce last October and was awarded the custody of the two minor children. Julius E. Schindler is attorney for Mrs. Shaffer.

know whether it's worth it or not" Incidentally he's the only one of the Post slate we saw in our tour.

Clifton E. Fuller was at Ward 4, Precinct 1, . . . that's the city hall. We didn't get to talk to "Tippy", but we did hear one worker say, "maybe he's picking out his office already".

All of the polling places seemed a little more alive yesterday than two weeks ago, and workers in the polls said time was passing faster because they had been kept busier. All seemed pleased because the vote was heavier than some expected, despite the fact that more votes cast mean more ballots for them to count.

The polling places are all well located and neat, clean and comfortable. We couldn't help but notice conditions at Ward 5, Precinct 1, state armory. The polling place was in the club rooms to the right of the entrance, and was adequate enough. However, the steps leading into the armory and the main hallway looked like a pig-sty. Numerous voters commented on the condition. It looked as if it hadn't been swept or scrubbed in months.

After the primary election, workers in all polling places did an excellent job, co-operating with the press. This seems like a good time to say thanks to them. Also thanks for last night and this morning too. You folk did a speedy job in the tabulation, and we appreciate it, because we can't put the paper to bed until we hear from each precinct. Thanks again.

Another observation made while touring the city might be worth mentioning here. We hope something is done very soon by the new mayor and city council, to provide playgrounds for youngsters. In every section of the city, we saw little folks playing in the streets. On Paca street, they were making a game of running in front of cars. Seems to us this is a problem for parents, teachers, and city officials. No wonder people complain about the police department.

The Post slate, including Mayor Thomas S. Post for mayor, H. Frank Hinze, Myers G. Light and John E. Sharp for council, had cars and workers out urging voters to vote.

There was no announced slate other than the Post slate, but in several sections of the city, we encountered sample ballots marked for Davis, Chaney, Fuller and Keegan. Some of these were also marked for Edwards. It was reported Edwards and Hutter were running independent of either slate.

Actually, only one slate was openly in the picture, but it is generally conceded that Davis had more candidates for council friendly to him, than Post could rally. Maybe that's why Post appealed for his slate to go into the city hall with him.

We heard one worker at one polling place tell a voter, "just mark the first name for mayor and the first four for council." That meant, according to our sample ballot, Davis, Chaney, Edwards, Fuller and Hinze. We asked the worker "whose slate is that," and he replied, "It's my own. I'm not being paid by anybody." He declined to tell us his name.

The first precinct to report returns last night was Ward 3, Precinct 3 located at 312 Bedford street where 403 voters are registered. A total of 190 votes were cast. Post polled 92 and Davis 91. This precinct is by far the smallest in the city, but is situated in the heart of the city. The report came in at 8:30 p. m. These workers here were also the first to report on primary day.

In Ward 1, Precinct 3, Mt. Royal avenue school, 390 votes were cast, 186 going to Davis and 187 to Post, indicating fairly even division of opinion and choice. However, two ballots were cast with write-in votes for Hunter B. Helfrich for mayor, while write-in votes were also cast for Arthur Gibson, Frank E. Smith and Charles Helmrich, for council.

books supplied by the moving van, and be of much more benefit to them in future years."

Shaefer, also ventured the opinion that the appropriation of $20,000 "will not stop at that figure, as experience has taught us, projects once on the levy are like, what I might term, similar to the roots of the Poison Ivy, most difficult to remove. Therefore, we have no assurance that the next year the sum will not be $30,000 and the following year $40,000."

In summing up, Shaefer said, "now gentlemen, I wish you to know that I am of the firm opinion, the same as a great many other people that I have contacted, that no new or unnecessary appropriations should be made at this time as our tax rate is already as high or higher than any other county in the state of Maryland, in fact our state of Maryland county and city tax rates are higher than in Baltimore City and look what trouble they are having, plenty from all accounts we read in the Baltimore Sun. Therefore, I earnestly request that this appropriation not be considered as I firmly believe that the benefit derived would not warrant the expenditure at this time, when we all should be economy-minded."

Another Communication

Shaefer, Delbert R. Kitzmiller and Harry B. Simpson, all spokesmen for the taxpayers' league, appeared before the commissioners yesterday charging that the approval of the proposed appropriation would mean "double taxation" for Cumberland residents.

Another communication received by the board was from W. A. McCreary, Cumberland, who said:

"I see in the paper that the annual levy will be passed next month. As a hunter and sportsman, I would appreciate it if you would consider putting in your budget about $20,000 to stock the woods and fields of the county with turkey, rabbits, quail, raccoon, opossum or any other game that one may eat. As a fisherman, I would also like you to stock the streams of Allegany county.

"You fellows seem to have plenty for everything else, especially you Mr. Wilkinson, and I am certain if you would make a motion to levy this amount Mr. Green and Mr. Holmes would gladly go along with you.

"We hunters and fishermen pay several thousand dollars for hunting and fishing licenses every year and get nothing in return. We also pay a terrible tax on our real estate in this county. I think it would be only fair if you men would spend something for the recreation of the working man.

Commissioners Are Silent

"The schools and libraries have ample reading matter for the leisure hours of the rest of the people, but we poor hunters and fishermen do not have anything to hunt for. So, since you have plenty of money for traveling libraries and everything else, I hope you will likewise help the poor hunter and fisherman of Allegany county."

The commissioners heard the reading of McCreary's communication without comment.

Mrs. A. J. Merkin, 205 Greene street, urged the board to make the appropriation for the benefit of adults and children in rural areas. A large number of women's clubs, Parent-Teacher associations and other organizations have endorsed the plan in recent months.

Often smirking and taunting the prosecutor, Goering took issue with the documents, saying they were mistaken or misinterpreted. After a half-hour exchange, Jackson exploded. Turned to the court and said:

"I submit that it is perfectly futile to spend our time in cross-examination, if we cannot be given direct answers. This witness seems to me to have adopted an arrogant and contemptuous attitude toward this tribunal which is giving him a trial he never gave another living soul—or dead one either. I suggest he should be instructed to give direct answers."

British Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding over the trial of the Nazi war leaders, replied that the court repeatedly had given the witnesses instructions on how to conduct themselves. Then he adjourned the session.

Judge McLanahan, 64, Dies at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, March 19. (AP) — Judge James Craig McLanahan, former brigadier general of the Maryland National Guard, a leader of Republican politics in the state and a member of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore for eight years, died this afternoon at his home.

Judge McLanahan had been ill since 1942 and he had been inactive on the bench since 1943. He was 64 years old.

rescue squad from Hamilton field, said the plane did not burn. Other persons reported they saw it apparently explode and drop toward the ground.

Crashes near Ghost Town

Hobart Mills, a ghost lumber town in which one family resides, is at 6,500-feet elevation in the Sierras. The crash scene was one mile southwest of the town in a heavily-wooded area covered by about eight feet of snow.

Lt. Thomas M. Pickett at Stockton air field, said the plane, which left there this morning, cleared McClelland field at Sacramento at 1:50 p. m. and crashed about 2:45 p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

In Sacramento, Col. B. R. Ertwine, of McClelland field, said the twenty-six aboard comprised mixed army and navy personnel.

The scene of the tragedy is about forty miles west of Reno.

Clair Heater, caretaker at Hobart Mills, and three California highway maintenance workers from Sierraville, D. W. Roberts, Floyd V. Reed and Tom Dewryz, all said they saw the plane apparently explode in the air and break into pieces. The plane was at least a mile away at the time, and it was snowing.

Ground searchers on snowshoes then started for the crash area. Among them were soldiers of the Four-Hundred and Seventy-fifth base rescue unit of Hamilton field.

Right Wing Is Not Found

Capt. Harold Simer, commanding officer of the Reno, Nev., army air base, who made his way to the scene, said the right wing of the C-47 had not been found, perhaps having dropped away first.

The plane evidently had spiralled down crazily, striking a tree which sheered off the left wing. The fuselage had struck the mountain slope and nosed over into the snow, breaking open.

A huddled mass of bodies in the fuselage were so entangled first attempts to count them were unsuccessful. All were in army or navy uniforms, and for the most part were intact. There was no fire.

Meanwhile at Merced, the army dispatched the Four-Hundred and Seventy-fifth air base unit to make a search of the hills near Livermore for the B-29. Because of approaching darkness, only a ground rescue crew, consisting of jeeps and ambulances, started out.

Pacific division ATG headquarters said the superfortress was one of a group being ferried to the mainland from an advance base in the Pacific.

operators "to meticulously carry out" any safety recommendations of federal mine inspectors, conceding that it would cost money.

But it would "reduce the killings in West Virginia and other mining states," he declared, saying that 386 miners had died in mine accidents in West Virginia in the last fourteen months. Another 23,388 were injured, he added.

"Three hundred and eighty-six men carried out of the mines dead and limp and taken up to the company house where their families live and carried in the door dead," he declared. "Have you ever been in a company house when the breadwinner was carried in dead?"

"Another 23,388 hobbled or were carried to those same company houses. For an average of forty days per man they laid on their backs on their pallets in a company house while they watched the cracks in the ceilings and wondered if the rain would come through."

Talks Are Recessed

Urging the inclusion of his safety clause in the contract, he asked:

"Will you do it? Will you think it over? Will you chain your dogs while we talk about it? I mean the National Coal Association. I mean your press agents. I mean your mimeograph machines. I mean your propaganda statements."

The producers challenged Lewis's figures, argued that any abuses were "isolated" and denied his "indictment" point by point.

When the first closed session recessed tonight at 5 p. m. until 9:30 tomorrow morning a spokesman for the operators said it had been devoted to a more detailed discussion of Lewis's proposals. He said no conclusions were reached.

It was understood that a major part of the conference centered on efforts by the operators to learn from Lewis specifically what his health and welfare demand is, but that Lewis was indefinite.

had a clear understanding with the corporation that the strike settlement agreement covered only national issues and that upon ratification of the national strike agreement, certain local unions might vote to remain on strike because their plant managements had failed to settle local issues satisfactorily."

Calls for Negotiations

The UAW official asked the corporation "to advise local management to enter into continuous negotiation with local shop committees until plant issues are settled," and added, "x x x it is a fact that many of the corporation's plants can begin operations independently of any other unit. There is no justification for failure to resume production without further delay in such units."

Ratification of the peace terms reached on the one hundred and thirteenth day of the walkout of 175,000 men was announced as a "ninety per cent acceptance" by Reuther.

He said locals representing 154,400 workers had accepted the terms.

Blocking a resumption of work in at least twenty-one plants were local disputes which were still unsettled. The UAW-CIO international has promised to support unions in such plants if they wished to remain on strike.

GM's plants, which turn out fifty per cent of the nation's automobile production, remained closed or in only limited operation today for the one-hundred and nineteenth day.

Oil-Rich Nation

because of its responsibilities to its people and because of the obligations imposed upon it by the constitution of Iran. No Iranian government "could take any other course."

In his appeal to the council, which was actually filed last night but circulated to council members only today, Ala made these two charges:

1. Russia is keeping troops in Iran beyond last March 2, contrary to the Soviet-British-Iranian treaty of January, 1942, which provided that foreign troops should be withdrawn in six months after the end of the war. The war ended with the Japanese surrender last September 2.

2. Russia is "continuing to interfere in the internal affairs of Iran through the medium of Soviet agents, officials and armed forces."

Ala argued that such things violate the charter of the United Nations and the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin declaration at Tehran in the autumn of 1943 pledging support of Iranian sovereignty.

Placed on Provisional Agenda

Ala addressed his appeal technically to the president of the Security council, Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, the Chinese member. He transmitted a copy of it to Secretary General Tryvge Lie, of the United Nations, asking him to put it on the program of the council's meeting beginning March 25 in New York. In releasing the appeal, Lie said that it had been put on the provisional agenda, adoption of which will be up to the council at its first session. No nation will be able to veto discussion of the Iranian question by one vote since a simple majority of seven is all that is required for approval of a program.

United States officials in private comment were pleased with Ala's move. Qavam had sent word to Washington last week that he intended to take the case to the Security council. However, he was known to be under tremendous pressure in Tehran, and Secretary of State Byrnes had prepared an American appeal to get the case before the council if Iran failed to act.

Reds' Objective Is Obscure

Meanwhile, reports continued to arrive from Iran telling of Soviet troop movements and the long-range Russian objective remained as obscure as before. Evidently few top officials here believe that all the Russians want or intend to accomplish by the current maneuvers is a slice of control over Iran's rich oil deposits.

An Iranian embassy official disclosed that Ambassador Ala had conferred during the day with three representatives of countries holding membership on the Security council—Poland, Egypt and China.

The official said Dr. Oscar Lange, Polish ambassador; Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, of China, who will be chairman of the Security council for the next month, and Mahmoud Hassan, Egyptian minister, all called at the Iranian embassy to confer with Ala on the Iranian note.

The official refused, however, to disclose the nature of the discussions or to say whether the conferences were held at Ala's suggestion or those of the visitors.

Of a special interest was the visit of Lange because Poland is expected to follow Russia's lead in council deliberations on the Iranian matter.

erans Administration, vocational training in the four Valley counties, explained the system for "on-the-job" training in the busines sestablishments under the G. I. bill. Dunkle pointed out that there are 188 veterans in Hardy county now drawing unemployment compensation who could be receiving valuable "on-the-job" training, learning a trade or business if enough firms qualified as a training school.

S. L. Dodd, chairman of the hospital committee, reported no federal funds are available for the erection of new hospitals at the present time. Dodd also reported that a meeting of interested parties will be held Thursday, on a county-wide telephone system.

J. D. Anderson, chairman of the committee on the town park and recreation center, reported a budget of $875 had been set for the three-month season for new equipment and the life guard's salary at the swimming pool.

Windows Broken

A freak accident broke two large plate glass windows in the Coffman Fisher store front this morning when a wheel off a car driven by Floyd Brill crashed into the corner of the store.

Brill was rounding the corner to Main street from Winchester avenue when his rear wheel came off and rolled half a block through traffic and parked cars into the plate glass windows. The wheel hit squarely into the corner of the two windows, breaking both plates.

The windows were insured.

Child and Play Discussed

Miss Jewell Matthews, continuing her series of programs on "The Child and the Various Influences That Surround Him," presented a program on the child and play at the parent-teacher meeting Monday night at the graded school building.

Miss Matthews defined recreation as re-creation or renewal and spoke of its beneficial effects on adults. She emphasized the fact that play is not a waste of time but is actually a step in education. The child playing learns for the future, "learning by doing."

At the end of the talk, Miss Matthews presented the plea of the teen-agers in Moorefield for a place to play, a place where they might meet and dance and have ping-pong and other games and where, in the words of the young people themselves they might "go for a good time and you (the older generation) won't talk about us."

At the business meeting, preceding the program, it was announced that lights had been installed in the graded school building and that the order for blinds was still pending.

The organization is sponsoring a minstrel show in the near future and it was announced that Miss Mae Gwen Matthews and P. W. Clarke will direct it. Several committees from the P-T. A. were appointed. Mrs. Rose McWhorter, Mrs. David Hahn and Mrs. Stone were put in charge of costumes; Mrs. George T. Leatherman, Miss Leona Garrett and Miss Elsie Lou Hendrickson will have charge of advertising; Raymond Sindy, C. B. Hiett and S. P. Hawse will provide properties; and Mrs. Wade Stickley will head the finance committee.

Lawrence L. Malloy Dies

Lawrence L. Malloy, 67, Mt. Savage, Baltimore and Ohio railroad machinist who retired December 14 after about thirty years employment with the B. and O., died at 10:50 o'clock last night at his home. He had been in failing health for about a month.

A native of the Mt. Savage, Mr. Malloy was a son of the late George and Mary Malloy. He was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church, Mt. Savage, a charter member of the Knights of Columbus at Mt. Savage, and was a member of Local 212, International Association of Machinists.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Annie E. Wills Malloy; three sons, Joseph L. Malloy, Mt. Savage; Edward F. Malloy, Cumberland, and Lawrence W. Malloy, now serving in Tokyo with the army; and four daughters, Mrs. Lester Murphy, Mt. Savage; Mrs. Joseph Pinnicki, Baltimore; Miss Anna Louise Malloy, Baltimore, and Mrs. Joseph Porter, Mt. Savage.

One brother, George Malloy, and four sisters, Mrs. Margaret Graham, Mrs. Catherine McDermott, Mrs. Michael Fannon and Miss Gertrude Malloy, all of Mt. Savage; and twenty grandchildren and one great-grandchild also survive.

Edwards

so many good people supported me in my views and in my campaign."

Edwards Is Overwhelmed

William J. Edwards, the only candidate for re-election to council lead the council ticket and polled only six votes less than Mayor Post. When contacted at 1 a. m., Edwards said, "I am overwhelmed with the splendid support and confidence of the fine people of Cumberland. I sincerely thank all those who voted for me and all the good people who campaigned in my behalf. We will face many problems in the next two years, but I assure the citizens I shall continue faithfully in the performance of my duties in office, as I have in the years I have held public office."

William V. Keegan, successful candidate for council at 1 a. m. when informed that he had been elected to the council stated, "I am grateful to the people of Cumberland for my election to the city council. In my decisions, you may rest assured that I will give my best for you and you only".

The News tried repeatedly from 11:45 until 1:30 to reach Mayor Post for a statement but up to press time he could not be located.

Post carried a total of twelve precincts, with all of the seven precincts in Ward 6, South Cumberland land-sliding to him. The incumbent also received strong support in Ward 4 Precinct 2, East Side. One West Side precinct, Ward 1, Precinct three went to Post by one vote. Post also carried Ward 3 Precinct 2, Franklin street in North Cumberland by fifteen votes. He carried Ward 5, Precinct 2, by only seven votes.

A complete analysis of the unofficial returns clearly indicates that Post was elected by the strong majority he received in the South Cumberland section. He ran about the same in the primary, when he carried a total of ten precincts.

Davis carried eight of the twenty precincts and received his strongest support in Ward 1, on the West Side, but here he divided the four precincts three to one with his opponent. North Cumberland also gave Davis a nice vote, but his strength uptown was insufficient to overcome Post's lead in South Cumberland.

THE MOST CONTEMPTIBLE CRIME

There ought to be a law. A tough law with teeth in it and plenty of painful penalties.

Who for?

Divorced people, in particular divorced people with children who involve said children in the anger and bitterness of their mutual brawl.

All divorces are tragic. There never yet was a divorce, however casual it might seem on the surface, that didn't leave a lasting trail of shame, regret and heartache.

That's bad enough when the quarrel is between two mature people and their adult circle of friends. But when an aggrieved woman and an infuriated man involved innocent youngsters in their anger, it becomes the most contemptible of crimes. And this happens in the great majority of cases for divorced couples will go to any extreme to hurt each other.

We would shriek in horror and speedily summon the police if we saw a child starved, beaten or brutally abused by a parent. Yet children's minds are foully twisted and their emotions warped for life because of divorce and we do not even comment. To the contrary we accept such conditions as justifiable and inevitable.

They are neither. They are no more justifiable than murder and they are far more cruel. They are no more inevitable than theft which we condemn and punish lustily. And in condoning such practices we make ourselves accessories — for "slaughter of the innocents" would largely cease if public opinion took a determined stand against it.

If people must separate, they should in common decency keep the hateful details from their children. The child will suffer enough as it is, for it needs the joint love and companionship of both parents and can never know normal growth without them. It is utterly unfair to burden the child further.

No divorce grounds, however serious, excuse the destruction of a child's faith in and love for either of its parents. It is not responsible for their difficulties. Nor, unless heckled, will it be greatly interested in them. Adult affairs are not nearly as important to a normal child as most parents like to think. The child doesn't care what papa has done or mama hasn't done. It simply wishes that both would come home and shut their mouths.

And in all shame I must admit that women are far more given to such unfair tactics than men. A disgusted man buries his grudge within him. A woman shrieks hers from the house tops. Perhaps male life has made men more impersonal. But modern women have every chance to learn the sporting rules. They know as well as any man what's foul and what's fair. They'd quit if they had to.

There ought to be a law.

Buckwheat Comes Into Its Own

A RECENT NEWS ITEM conveyed the information that buckwheat plants are now being used as a source of rutin, a drug employed in treating conditions arising from high blood pressure. Hitherto, the item further stated, rutin has been taken from flue-cured tobacco, and research shows that $10 worth of buckwheat plants will produce as much rutin as $1,000 worth of tobacco.

Now there is something that should appeal to the raisers of the rightly famous buckwheat in Preston county, W. Va., in Garrett county, Md., and continguous areas where conditions of weather and altitude are particularly favorable for it. And it should prove appealing to farmers in those counties who have not grown buckwheat.

To the mind of those who like buckwheat cakes—and their number is legion—anything that will stimulate the production and distribution of the grain and its flour is of importance in that with a profit incentive such as noted there may be still more and better buckwheat for the table as well as for medicinal purposes.

There is also another stimulus for the expansion of buckwheat production, this being the appeal by the federal government for the American people to eat buckwheat cakes instead of wheat cakes so that surplus wheat may be sent to the starving peoples of Europe and Asia.

To be informed that $10 worth of buckwheat has more rutin that $1,000 worth of tobacco is really interesting—more than one could have expected. But the opportunity for further utilization, which will bring added appreciation of the famous buckwheat of this region, is more than interesting because of its economic possibilities. Preston, Garrett and adjoining county people should sit up and take notice.

Bureaucratic Reluctance

ACTION by the OPA revising prices on men's suits with the announced object of permitting the release of thousands of these items without losses emphasizes the reluctance with which government control functions.

The government bureau announced that "many inequities and looseness of pricing" had crept into the control structure since 1943. To which butter consumers, among others, will add a fervent "amen." For some time an estimated 700,000 suits have been held back because to have marketed them at the old prices would have entailed a loss. During that time returning veterans have been combing the stores for civilia nclothes, often in vain.

Why the OPA could not have made this adjustment much earlier and relaxed the tightness of supply is a mystery. The only possible explanation is that procrastination generally enters into all the activities of a government bureau. Policy makers, as they call themselves, in Washington couldn't agree. While they were quarreling, the public did without the goods that would have been available had business been permitted to function in the American time-tested way of doing things.

It is to be hoped the OPA can crack some more bottlenecks through which goods are trickling to consumers when they might be coming in a flow. But perhaps that is too much to hope for, government control being what it is.

Hopeful Outlook For Prosperity

THERE IS so much dark news in the industrial picture that it comes as a relief to hear comment of brighter hue.

A portion of the latter was dished up by Benjamin H. Gordon, business consultant of the United States Department of Commerce, when he spoke before the Rotary club in New York city. He said that the business outlook was good not only for the fat years of pent-up demand which follow any war, but for many years to come, provided there is shown the necessary business acumen for the development of waiting markets.

He conceded that reconversion and full employment have been set back—four months, according to his estimate—as a consequence of strikes. But, except for areas which concentrated on war production, he said, "we already have converted all but ten per cent of our production facilities and by fall reconversion will be practically complete." He said he had found signs that retail profits for 1946 probably would exceed those of the year 1945, a record-breaker, by ten per cent.

Of course, there's always a fly in the ointment. Mr. Gordon, in looking beyond 1946 and 1947, said the time will come when urgent wants are filled and shelves are again restocked and uneemployment and deflation will threaten. To prevent these, he added, there will be needed technological improvements, which, in turn, will decrease costs so that lower-income bracket families will be able to buy products normally out of their reach. He also recommended development of distribution and advertising techniques, to make more readily available and more acutely desired, products which people have not been accustomed to buying.

Finally, he suggested a huge increase in foreign trade from the prewar level of $3,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000. He did not agree with those who say that industrialization of foreign countries will cut down American markets, contending that the greater the extent to which a foreign country becomes industrialized, the better customer it becomes as long as it specializes in the material and products it is best qualified to produce. He cited, as an example, Canada, which America helped to industrialize and which today is Uncle Sam's best customer in this hemisphere.

Of course, Mr. Gordon did not go into great details in his plans for bringing about the prosperity he sees possible. But he is on the right track. Salesmanship was neglected during the war when one single customer bought a great deal of the nation's goods. That art must be developed anew. Advertising also must prepare for the future. Foreign trade must be promoted if orders are to come to America. But when industry functions normally again, private enterprisee may be expected to make considerable progress in all these realms.

Significant Symptom Of Democratic Ferment

THE "MANIFESTO" issued by ex-Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes when he took over his new job as executive chairman of "The Independent Citizens' Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions" amounts to a declaration of independence by the leftish New Deal wing of the Democratic party.

This organization's purpose, Mr. Ickes said, is to mobilize the 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 independent voters of the nation. Its national president, James Roosevelt, added the significant comment that party labels are meaningless—an implied threat that Democratic leaders are not likely to overlook.

Mr. Ickes takes an optimistic view if he believe: that his organization can lead 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 independent voters out of the wilderness. Honest Harold is hardly that kind of Moses. It is significant that the membership of his committee is drawn largely from two geographical locations, New York and Hollywood—neither typical of the mass of America.

The average independent voter has little in common with Lillian Hellman, Orson Welles, Fiorella LaGuardia and Frank Sinatra, and he is likely to mistrust the lavish reiteration of that phrase, "peace and democracy." Those are good words, and the middle class independent believes in them, but he doesn't like the company they have been keeping recently.

Mr. Ickes's committee is a symptom of the ferment among the divergent elements that produced four Democratic victories, rather than a genuine mobilizaion of the independents. It represents an effort to hold the party of Franklin Roosevelt in line and keep it well to the left of center. Whether it can succeed, and, if so, whether that trend will suit the present mood of the American people, will be demonstrated in the elections of the next two years.

Crime Wave Calls For Swifter Justice

THE POSTWAR CRIME WAVE has started. The Federal Bureau of Investigation reveals a twelve per cent increase in serious crimes from 1944 to 1945. The increase was the highest in the fifteen years during which the FBI has been compiling nation-wide statistics.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark terms the report alarming and directs all federal attorneys to insist on "the severest penalties" for serious federal offenses. The situation is one also that should concern all state, county and municipal law enforcement authorities. If respect for law is to be restored all these officials must realize that redoubled effort and co-operation are imperative.

Swift and sure justice is the only answer. Not only do criminals take every advantage of antiquated police and sheriff methods in a day when speed must match speed, but they also know that they stand a good chance, if caught, of receiving mitigated sentences through endless delays in the courts. It is an interstate situation in which justice is called upon to keep abreast of the times.

Crime can be curbed by the certainty of punishment.

Winston Churchill says American universities should place emphasis on the study of the English language as "the means of contact between the most influential mass of human beings spread about the world." A lot of American newspaper editors will heartily indorse this for that and for other reasons also.

"Washington To Get World Bank"—headline. Translated, this means "World To Get Washington's Bankroll."

THE FIRST STITCH

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Thoreau tell of "Tom Hyde, the tinker, standing on the gallows." He was asked for a final statement, and his reply was: "Tell the tailors to remember to make a knot in their thread before they take the first stitch."

What a significant statement! It would save a world of crime and heartaches in this world if every boy, early in life, would tie a knot in honesty, in thrift, in decency of thought, and in dozens of other simple, fundamental virtues, and then go on to the important task of tailoring his life so that no part would remain weak in the seams.

The first stitch is like the first step. Its importance cannot be overestimated. FBI Hoover alarmingly states that juvenile delinquency is rapidly on the increase. Poor home training, or none at all, a disregard for the fundamentals of a good character, evil companions, and the love of cheap notoriety, each and all, pave the way for thousaands of Tom Hydes!

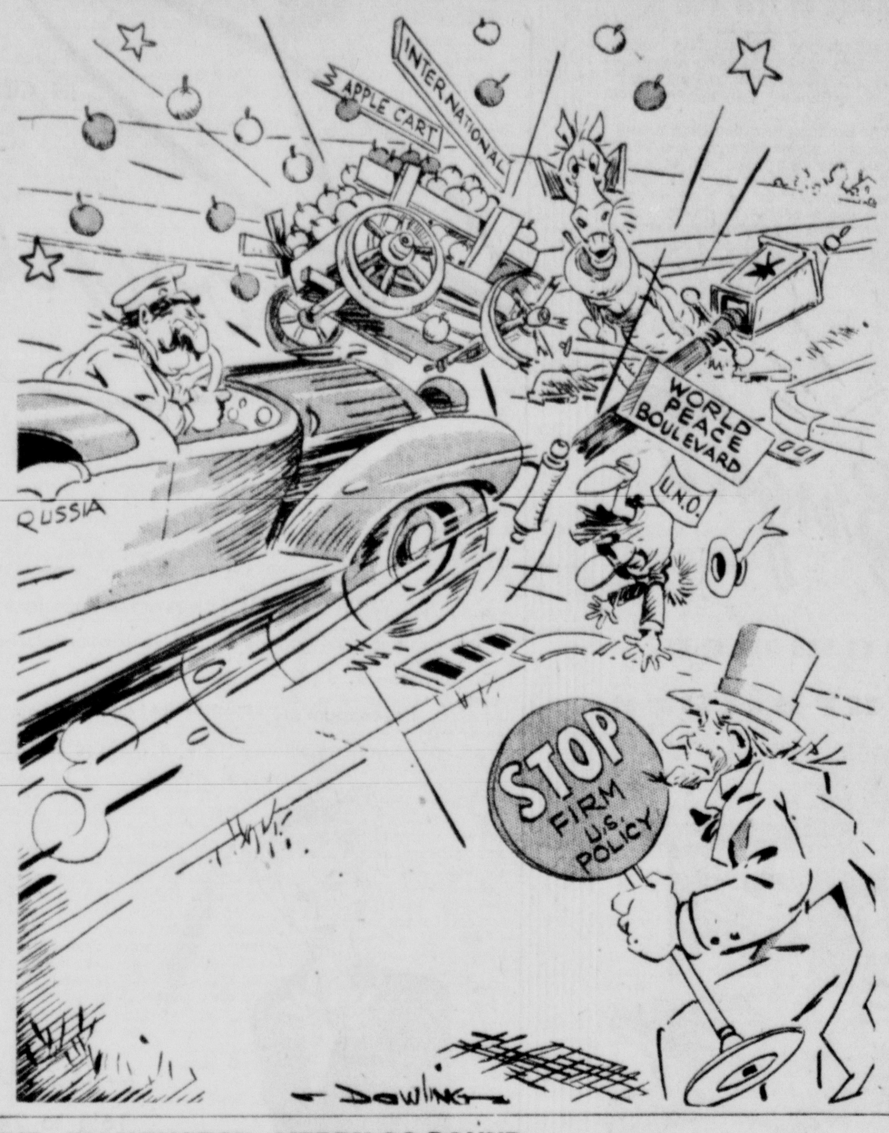

Men and women of principle and conviction live on, and stalk head high in any crowd. To them we give our love, our confidence and our fellowship, as well as our following. They embellish us with their deeds. One Lincoln overtops a thousand Napoleons, and whole brigades of pigmies, worshiping nothing but their dollars, their political power, or their cheap popularity.

The first stitch is the first lesson in securitly of character. With a knot in its thread, it paves the way to hope, the accomplishment of one's desires, and sets a standard for exemplary life.

A mother wrote to me of her boy in the war, to whom she had sent a clipping, which she asked him to read and abide by. The urge, one day, came to him to desert. He packed up his bag, and was about to leave, when the clipping fell from a diary which he kept. He picked it up, read it again, unpacked, and decided that he would not disgrace his mother and stayed at his post. That boy never came back, but a proud mother lives to revere the memory of a boy who had a knot tied to his first stitch!

WHAT A GOOD PLACE FOR A STOP SIGN!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Irish Leaders Favor Proposed U. S. Loan To Great Britain, Drew Pearson Reports

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 19—When former Congressman Joseph E. Casey, of Massachusetts, now a TWA executive, was in Ireland recently to attend the memorial services for the late Cardinal John Glennon, of St. Louis, he had several discussions with Prime Minister Eamon de Valera and Sean O'Kelly, president of the Irish Free State. He especially talked about the proposed $4,400,000,000 United States loan to Great Britain.

Much to Casey's surprise, both de Valera and O'Kelly told him that they strongly favored the British loan and sincerely hoped Congress would approve it. The loan would greatly help the economic stability of Great Britain, the Irish leaders argued, and this in turn would aid Ireland, which is dependent on Britain for most of its trade.

Note—Ireland ships large quantities of butter, eggs, ham, and other farm products to the British market; also linen.

Expensive Jackson Dinner

Some Democratic bigwigs in Washington are hot under the collar about having to pay what they consider a double price for the $100 Jackson day dinner, to be held next Saturday.

Last year, the Jackson day dinner in Washington was canceled because of Roosevelt's death — but after a great many of the $100 subscriptions to the banquet were already in. Some members of Congress had purchased as many as ten seats for the banquet, meaning that they shelled out $1,000.

Since they didn't get their money back, some of these politicoes think that the tickets they bought for last year's canceled dinner should be good for this year's affair.

However, the Democratic National Committee has replied, "No soap." It is telling the disgruntled politicoes that the tickets they bought for the 1945 dinner were technically subscriptions to "the $100 club," and they will have to dig down again if they want to attend this year's dinner.

Diplomatic Chaff

Last week Jimmy Byrnes and Secretary of War Patterson spoke to the House Military Affairs committee on the troubled international situation. However, both Byrnes and Patterson were not as frank as they might have been. If the crisis deepens and they tell Congress the truth, peacetime military conscription legislation will be reported out and passed in a week. . . . Gen. Jacob Devers, head of the army ground forces, plans to move a lot of desk officers back to active field duty in the next few weeks to provide the nucleus of a large field force—just in case President Truman decides to recall several million discharged combat veterans for a show of strength against Russia. . . French Foreign Minister Bidault is putting pressure on the State department for a still stronger stand on Franco. While the State department is moderately willing, the labor government in England balks. The laborites are getting more like Tories every day.

Auto Price Boost

Gangling, Kentucky-bred Paul Porter expected no bed of roses when he became boss man of the Office of Price Administration. He hasn't been disillusioned. However, he didn't bargain for some verbal brickbats he received the other day from a group of liberal congressmen who he thought were his supporters.

The skirmish occurred at a closed-door meeting on Capitol Hill, at which congressmen protested the OPA's recent announcement of "adjustable price increases" for new automobiles. This is a fancy name for another set of auto price boosts on top of the general increases announced last November.

It means that on autos sold after March 11, dealers may bill purchasers for additional amounts to be paid after new price schedules are announced by the OPA. Only three automobiles—Ford, Chrysler, and Hudson—were affected by the recent announcement, but others will be eligible for the added price hike upon application.

Inside fact is that this new policy was partly engineered by Fred Holder, assistant director of OPA's industrial materials and manufacturing division. By an interesting coincidence, Mr. Holder was formerly an executive of the Harrison radiator division of General Motors at Lockport, N. Y.

In fairness to him, however, it should be noted that the "adjustable price" formula will affect not only the auto industry, but all reconversion industries. It is based chiefly on pay increases to labor.

Holder the Talker

Holder accompanied Porter to the meeting and did most of the talking. He repeatedly emphasized that, due to higher labor and engineering costs, the auto makers faced losses on this year's models unless they got further price relief. To this argument the congressmen stubbornly insisted that OPA pricing policies had failed to take into account past profits of the auto makers, or increased labor production, or improved production techniques. The protesting congressmen included: Hook, of Michigan; Gore, of Tennessee; Biemiller, of Wisconsin; Holafield and Douglas, of California; Savage, of Washington; Sadowski, of Michigan, and others.

Congressman Hook bluntly charged that the OPA order violated the president's wage-price formula of February 14, which bases price relief on production profits for the next year.

"What can I say to my farmer constituents, who have been demanding higher prices for what they raise, if further auto price increases are allowed?" demanded young Congressman Gore.

"It looks mighty suspicious to me that this adjustable price announcement should come out just two days after the General Motors strike was settled," chimed in Michigan's Hook. He implied that GM waited until assured of higher prices before deciding to meet union wage demands.

OPA Boss Porter promised to make a complete study of the new price policy, but he did not indicate that he would change it. The chances are 100 to 1 he won't.

Merry-Go-Round

Final decision to recall Ed Pauley's nomination took place at a secret White House session last week attended by Pauley, Bob Hannegan, the president, and Maryland's Sen. Tydings. Tydings repeated what he had reported before, that there wasn't a chance of getting Pauley confirmed. Later that night, Pauley began drafting a letter asking the president to withdraw his name. He contacted at least three ghost-writers to help write the final whitewash memoranda in his case. . . . Republican Leader Joe Martin has again pledged his full support for the FEPC. . . . Postmaster General Bob Hannegan launched the most violent attack on the reactionary southern Democrats any Democratic chairman has ever made, the other night in Wilmington, Del. He accused them of thwarting the will of the majority of the American people.

Russian Friendship Is Seen Possible Despite Stalin

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Russia is one thing. Stalin is another. One can be a friend of Russia and yet oppose the tyranny of Stalin.

There is no reason why the Russian people and the the American people should not be friends. They have fewer friction points than almost any other people in the world. Each has vast resources and ample room to develop for decades without expanding their areas.

Others Progressed, Also

Our fellow travellers say that under Stalin the Russia people—those who survived!—have made long strides in education, manufacturing, farming, etc. But in these thirty years, what nation did not progress along technical lines, including Germany and Japan? But did communist butcheries advance or retard Russia's development? As pointed out in "Russia and the United States," by Pitirim Sorokin, a Russian liberal, Russia's population increased from 67,000,000 in 1850 to 176,000,000 before the Red revolution, a greater gain than we had, without benefit of any immigration. Seventy per cent of her children had primary schooling. All but ten per cent of arable land had already been restored to the peasants.

Russia, in 1914, had the world's fourth largest cotton industry; its railroad system was second only to ours; its coal industry tripled its production in the thirty years before 1914; her large scale industrial production quadrupled; she had 33,000 cooperative societies with 13,000,000 members; in the twenty years before World War I, Russia's inventions had doubled, her scientists were world-renowned; and in literature, music, drama and the ballet she held probably the foremost position in the world—all this under the czars.

Freedom Also Advancing

Before 1917 human freedom was advancing also. Serfdom was abolished in 1861; a constitutional monarchy was established in 1906; all citizens were equal before the law; all parties were represented in the Duma; the government was openly criticised in the Duma and in the press; the death penalty was abolished; the "Czarist prisons were a paradise compared with the communist infernos"; courts and juries often brought in verdicts of not guilty in political trials.

Then came the communist reign of terror. The rich, the middle and professional classes, the Kulaks or independent farmers, and finally communist leaders and workers themselves were liquidated in an orgy of blood. Free elections, free speech, free press, impartial courts, emigration and private business was blacked out. Millions were killed or starved including many of Russia's best brains; other millions were put—and are still held—in labor camps whose cruelties equal the Siberian of decades ago; at least twenty-eight bishops and 1219 priests were killed; churches were closed; religion was spat upon, and behind the iron curtain was erected the police state which "sees man as no more than an animal coming into the world without God—and then returning to the nothingness from which it came" to quote President O'Donnell, of Notre Dame university.

Quarantined for Years

For years the Russian people have been in quarantine. They are denied the fertilizing exchange of thoughts and ideas across the world's frontiers. They know only what they are told. Do their masters think that freedom would end their rule?

Does tyranny produce real progress? Can it be that Henry George was wrong when he said, "We speak of liberty as one thing, and of wealth, knowledge, invention and national strength as other things. But of all these, Liberty is the source. . . She is to wealth what sunshine is to grain."

How come that every socialist government in the world begs for billions from the nation whose system they despise?

Easing of Tension In Russian Crisis Is Seen in Cards

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 19. — An easing of tension in the so-called Russian crisis may be confidently expected soon. The moves being made indicate that Russia herself may have been surprised at the development of the crisis, believing instead that a continuance of her pressure tactics begun during the war period and maintained ever since would yield results without exciting the people of the United States.

The Iranian controversy has back of it a struggle for access to one or the richest oil fields in the world. The British have large interests in Iran, and the United States is anxious to see an internationalization of these resources. The Iranian government is being pressed by Russia to grant oil concessions in return for withdrawal of the Soviet troops.

Russian "Realism"

This method of bargaining is called Russian realism. It has, in this instance, run roughshod over an explicit pledge to withdraw troops from Iran. Likewise the looting of Manchuria has hurt the Russian position in this country.

Perhaps Moscow thought all this could be quickly remedied and that overnight Russia could withdraw her troops from Iran and give the impression that the whole thing was a tempest in a teapot. Certainly there seems no logical reason why, even in Russia's own interest, the crisis should have been permitted to go to the point where tension in relations to the United States was created.

Little is known of what goes on inside Moscow, but Russia is beginning to act as if she is as much amazed as are many Americans that out government took the whole thing so seriously. It must mean that the State department decided to try to keep the Russian tactics from becoming extreme and hence made a fuss about it, fearing that unless stopped now, Russia might precipitate further incidents which would really produce apprehension.

America Awakened

Whatever may be the motives of materialistic Russia—for the communist Soviet is as crude in its selfishness as any capitalistic empire ever was—the net result has been to awaken America. Demobilization of our army and navy may go on as scheduled, but authority will be voted by Congress to build up our military power through volunteers and through an extensino of the draft.

As for the atomic bomb, its secret will never be given to Russia. Persons who talk glibly about Russia's getting the secret anyhow in five years are guessing. They actually do not know what the secret is. It is believed that few men in this country really know the secret. Though many scientists may know a great deal about atomic energy itself, this is a far different thing from knowing how to use it in a weapon that can be detonated without destroying the detonators. Experiments are rather risky business.

Russia has managed her external affairs very badly. She has sought to drive a wedge between America and Britain on the theory that the United States would hesitate to side with Britain's efforts to maintain her Mediterranean influence.

Byrnes Supports Charter

While Secretary Byrnes quite naturally has deplored any talk of alliances and seemingly takes issue with Mr. Churchill, all he really is doing is supporting the United Nations charter as a substitute for alliances without in any way retreating on his earlier speech virtually accusing Russia of breaking her treaty pledge in Iran.

The notes which the American government has sent to Russia and which have for so long now gone unanswered stand as an indictment of Russian ineptitude. If Russia seriously wants peace—and there is every reason to think her people are tired of war—she is not adopting the best way to keep nations from thinking about her in terms of war. The Russian government has done more "war-mongering" in the last two months than a thousand speeches by Winston Churchill.

There will be no movement toward war for a while, because Russia needs at least five years for domestic recovery. So the moves which may soon emanate from Russia's side will tend to become conciliatory.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I attended one of those modern art exhibits the other day and, knowing how difficult it is to understand those surrealistic paintings, I took Colonna along to explain the brush-work.

Going to a modern art exhibit is really an interesting experience, but quite hard to describe . . . It's a sort of crossword puzzle in technicolor.

Most of those modern paintings have unusual titles, and I even saw one there called "Betty Grable." I couldn't understand it until the artist told me he painted it with leg-makeup?

I saw one painting I immediately took to my heart . . . but the attendant made me put it back. I know a good canvas when I see one, as I was a boxer once and had the opportunity to study them closely. No kidding, anyone in Hollywood can tell you I'm an expert in oil.

I noticed one guy studying a picture for hours before deciding to buy it. When I asked him if he was a great art collector, he said, "No . . . I just want to cover a hole in my wall."

I came across the painting of a house that was really a fine example of modern art . . . it had a "No Vacancy" sign in the window.

Better Health for Better Living

● The last three decades have brought many changes in matters pertaining to health. The normal span of life has been increased materially. Consider diabetes, for example. Diabetes was first recognized about the time of Moses, or 200 years before the birth of King Tut. Yet, it was not until 1922 that a specific remedy was discovered. Today, through the use of Insulin and a balanced diet, the diabetic can reasonably expect to live about as long as anybody. Your physician will promptly recognize the symptoms of diabetes. He knows all about the treatment. And remember this, all advertised cures for diabetes are fakes. Don't be victimized by the swindlers.

Buckwheat Comes Into Its Own

A RECENT NEWS ITEM conveyed the information that buckwheat plants are now being used as a source of rutin, a drug employed in treating conditions arising from high blood pressure. Hitherto, the item further stated, rutin has been taken from flue-cured tobacco, and research shows that $10 worth of buckwheat plants will produce as much rutin as $1,000 worth of tobacco.

Now there is something that should appeal to the raisers of the rightly famous buckwheat in Preston county, W. Va., in Garrett county, Md., and contiguous areas where conditions of weather and altitude are particularly favorable for it. And it should prove appealing to farmers in those counties who have not grown buckwheat.

To the mind of those who like buckwheat cakes—and their number is legion—anything that will stimulate the production and distribution of the grain and its flour is of importance in that with a profit incentive such as noted there may be still more and better buckwheat for the table as well as for medicinal purposes.

There is also another stimulus for the expansion of buckwheat production, this being the appeal by the federal government for the American people to eat buckwheat cakes instead of wheat cakes so that surplus wheat may be sent to the starving peoples of Europe and Asia.

To be informed that $10 worth of buckwheat has more rutin that $1,000 worth of tobacco is really interesting—more than one could have expected. But the opportunity for further utilization, which will bring added appreciation of the famous buckwheat of this region, is more than interesting because of its economic possibilities. Preston, Garrett and adjoining county people should sit up and take notice.

Bureaucratic Reluctance

ACTION by the OPA revising prices on men's suits with the announced object of permitting the release of thousands of these items without losses emphasizes the reluctance with which government control functions.

The government bureau announced that "many inequities and looseness of pricing" had crept into the control structure since 1943. To which butter consumers, among others, will add a fervent "amen." For some time an estimated 700,000 suits have been held back because so have marketed them at the old prices would have entailed a loss. During that time returning veterans have been combing the stores for civilia nclothes, often in vain.

Why the OPA could not have made this adjustment much earlier and relaxed the tightness of supply is a mystery. The only possible explanation is that procrastination generally enters into all the activities of a government bureau. Policy makers, as they call themselves, in Washington couldn't agree. While they were quarreling, the public did without the goods that would have been available had business been permitted to function in the American time-tested way of doing things.

It is to be hoped the OPA can crack some more bottlenecks through which goods are trickling to consumers when they might be coming in a flow. But perhaps that is too much to hope for, government control being what it is.

Hopeful Outlook For Prosperity

THERE IS so much dark news in the industrial picture that it comes as a relief to hear comment of brighter hue.

A portion of the latter was dished up by Benjamin H. Gordon, business consultant of the United States Department of Commerce, when he spoke before the Rotary club in New York city. He said that the business outlook was good not only for the fat years of pent-up demand which follow any war, but for many years to come, provided there is shown the necessary business acumen for the development of waiting markets.

He conceded that reconversion and full employment have been set back—four months, according to his estimate—as a consequence of strikes. But, except for areas which concentrated on war production, he said, "we already have converted all but ten per cent of our production facilities and by fall reconversion will be practically complete." He said he had found signs that retail profits for 1946 probably would exceed those of the year 1945, a record-breaker, by ten per cent.

Of course, there's always a fly in the ointment. Mr. Gordon, in looking beyond 1946 and 1947, said the time will come when urgent wants are filled and shelves are again restocked and uneemployment and deflation will threaten. To prevent these, he added, there will be needed technological improvements, which, in turn, will decrease costs so that lower-income bracket families will be able to buy products normally out of their reach. He also recommended development of distribution and advertising techniques, to make more readily available and more acutely desired, products which people have not been accustomed to buying.

Finally, he suggested a huge increase in foreign trade from the prewar level of $3,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000. He did not agree with those who say that industrialization of foreign countries will cut down American markets, contending that the greater the extent to which a foreign country becomes industrialized, the better customer it becomes as long as it specializes in the material and products it is best qualified to produce. He cited, as an example, Canada, which America helped to industrialize and which today is Uncle Sam's best customer in this hemisphere.

Of course, Mr. Gordon did not go into great details in his plans for bringing about the prosperity he sees possible. But he is on the right track. Salesmanship was neglected during the war when one single customer bought a great deal of the nation's goods. That art must be developed anew. Advertising also must prepare for the future. Foreign trade must be promoted if orders are to come to America. But when industry functions normally again, private enterprisee may be expected to make considerable progress in all these realms.

Significant Symptom Of Democratic Ferment

THE "MANIFESTO" issued by ex-Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes when he took over his new job as executive chairman of "The Independent Citizens' Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions" amounts to a declaration of independence by the leftish New Deal wing of the Democratic party.

This organization's purpose, Mr. Ickes said, is to mobilize the 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 independent voters of the nation. Its national president, James Roosevelt, added the significant comment that party labels are meaningless—an implied threat that Democratic leaders are not likely to overlook.

Mr. Ickes takes an optimistic view if he believe: that his organization can lead 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 independent voters out of the wilderness. Honest Harold is hardly that kind of Moses. It is significant that the membership of his committee is drawn largely from two geographical locations, New York and Hollywood—neither typical of the mass of America.

The average independent voter has little in common with Lillian Hellman, Orson Welles, Fiorella LaGuardia and Frank Sinatra, and he is likely to mistrust the lavish reiteration of that phrase, "peace and democracy." Those are good words, and the middle class independent believes in them, but he doesn't like the company they have been keeping recently.

Mr. Ickes's committee is a symptom of the ferment among the divergent elements that produced four Democratic victories, rather than a genuine mobilizaion of the independents. It represents an effort to hold the party of Franklin Roosevelt in line and keep it well to the left of center. Whether it can succeed, and, if so, whether that trend will suit the present mood of the American people, will be demonstrated in the elections of the next two years.

Crime Wave Calls For Swifter Justice

THE POSTWAR CRIME WAVE has started. The Federal Bureau of Investigation reveals a twelve per cent increase in serious crimes from 1944 to 1945. The increase was the highest in the fifteen years during which the FBI has been compiling nation-wide statistics.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark terms the report alarming and directs all federal attorneys to insist on "the severest penalties" for serious federal offenses. The situation is one also that should concern all state, county and municipal law enforcement authorities. If respect for law is to be restored all these officials must realize that redoubled effort and co-operation are imperative.

Swift and sure justice is the only answer. Not only do criminals take every advantage of antiquated police and sheriff methods in a day when speed must match speed, but they also know that they stand a good chance, if caught, of receiving mitigated sentences through endless delays in the courts. It is an interstate situation in which justice is called upon to keep abreast of the times.

Crime can be curbed by the certainty of punishment.

Winston Churchill says American universities should place emphasis on the study of the English language as "the means of contact between the most influential mass of human beings spread about the world." A lot of American newspaper editors will heartily indorse this for that and for other reasons also.

"Washington To Get World Bank"—headline. Translated, this means "World To Get Washington's Bankroll."

THE FIRST STITCH

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Thoreau tell of "Tom Hyde, the tinker, standing on the gallows." He was asked for a final statement, and his reply was: "Tell the tailors to remember to make a knot in their thread before they take the first stitch."

What a significant statement! It would save a world of crime and heartaches in this world if every boy, early in life, would tie a knot in honesty, in thrift, in decency of thought, and in dozens of other simple, fundamental virtues, and then go on to the important task of tailoring his life so that no part would remain weak in the seams.

The first stitch is like the first step. Its importance cannot be overestimated. FBI Hoover alarmingly states that juvenile delinquency is rapidly on the increase. Poor home training, or none at all, a disregard for the fundamentals of a good character, evil companions, and the love of cheap notoriety, each and all, pave the way for thousaands of Tom Hydes!

Men and women of principle and conviction live on, and stalk head high in any crowd. To them we give our love, our confidence and our fellowship, as well as our following. They embellish us with their deeds. One Lincoln overtops a thousand Napolecns, and whole brigades of pigmies, worshiping nothing but their dollars, their political power, or their cheap popularity.

The first stitch is the first lesson in securitly of character. With a knot in its thread, it paves the way to hope, the accomplishment of one's desires, and sets a standard for exemplary life.

A mother wrote to me of her boy in the war, to whom she had sent a clipping, which she asked him to read and abide by. The urge, one day, came to him to desert. He packed up his bag, and was about to leave, when the clipping fell from a diary which he kept. He picked it up, read it again, unpacked, and decided that he would not disgrace his mother and stayed at his post. That boy never came back, but a proud mother lives to revere the memory of a boy who had a knot tied to his first stitch!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 19—When former Congressman Joseph E. Casey, of Massachusetts, now a TWA executive, was in Ireland recently to attend the memorial services for the late Cardinal John Glennon, of St. Louis, he had several discussions with Prime Minister Eamon de Valera and Sean O'Kelly, president of the Irish Free State. He especially talked about the proposed $4,400,000,000 United States loan to Great Britain.

Much to Casey's surprise, both de Valera and O'Kelly told him that they strongly favored the British loan and sincerely hoped Congress would approve it. The loan would greatly help the economic stability of Great Britain, the Irish leaders argued, and this in turn would aid Ireland, which is dependent on Britain for most of its trade.

Note—Ireland ships large quantities of butter, eggs, ham, and other farm products to the British market; also linen.

Expensive Jackson Dinner

Some Democratic bigwigs in Washington are hot under the collar about having to pay what they consider a double price for the $100 Jackson day dinner, to be held next Saturday.

Last year, the Jackson day dinner in Washington was canceled because of Roosevelt's death — but after a great many of the $100 subscriptions to the banquet were already in. Some members of Congress had purchased as many as ten seats for the banquet, meaning that they shelled out $1,000.

Since they didn't get their money back, some of these politicoes think that the tickets they bought for last year's canceled dinner should be good for this year's affair.

However, the Democratic National Committee has replied, "No soap." It is telling the disgruntled politicoes that the tickets they bought for the 1945 dinner were technically subscriptions to "the $100 club," and they will have to dig down again if they want to attend this year's dinner.

Diplomatic Chaff

Last week Jimmy Byrnes and Secretary of War Patterson spoke to the House Military Affairs committee on the troubled international situation. However, both Byrnes and Patterson were not as frank as they might have been. If the crisis deepens and they tell Congress the truth, peacetime military conscription legislation will be reported out and passed in a week. . . . Gen. Jacob Devers, head of the army ground forces, plans to move a lot of desk officers back to active field duty in the next few weeks to provide the nucleus of a large field force—just in case President Truman decides to recall several million discharged combat veterans for a show of strength against Russia. . . . French Foreign Minister Bidault is putting pressure on the State department for a still stronger stand on Franco. While the State department is moderately willing, the labor government in England balks. The laborites are getting more like Tories every day.

Auto Price Boost

Gangling, Kentucky-bred Paul Porter expected no bed of roses when he became boss man of the Office of Price Administration. He hasn't been disillusioned. However, he didn't bargain for some verbal brickbats he received the other day from a group of liberal congressmen who he thought were his supporters.

The skirmish occurred at a closed-door meeting on Capitol Hill, at which congressmen protested the OPA's recent "announcement of "adjustable price increases" for new automobiles. This is a fancy name for another set of auto price boosts on top of the general increases announced last November.

It means that on autos sold after March 11, dealers may bill purchasers for additional amounts to be paid after new price schedules are announced by the OPA. Only three automobiles—Ford, Chrysler, and Hudson—were affected by the recent announcement, but others will be eligible for the added price hike upon application.

Inside fact is that this new policy was partly engineered by Fred Holder, assistant director of OPA's industrial materials and manufacturing division. By an interesting coincidence, Mr. Holder was formerly an executive of the Harrison radiator division of General Motors at Lockport, N. Y.

In fairness to him, however, it should be noted that the "adjustable price" formula will affect not only the auto industry, but all reconversion industries. It is based chiefly on pay increases to labor.

Holder the Talker

Holder accompanied Porter to the meeting and did most of the talking. He repeatedly emphasized that, due to higher labor and engineering costs, the auto makers faced losses on this year's models unless they got further price relief. To this argument the congressmen stubbornly insisted that OPA pricing policies had failed to take into account past profits of the auto makers, or increased labor production, or improved production techniques. The protesting congressmen included: Hook, of Michigan; Gore, of Tennessee; Biemiller, of Wisconsin; Holafield and Douglas, of California; Savage, of Washington; Sadowski, of Michigan, and others.

Congressman Hook bluntly charged that the OPA order violated the president's wage-price formula of February 14, which bases price relief on production profits for the next year.

"What can I say to my farmer constituents, who have been demanding higher prices for what they raise, if further auto price increases are allowed?" demanded young Congressman Gore.

"It looks mighty suspicious to me that this adjustable price announcement should come out just two days after the General Motors strike was settled," chimed in Michigan's Hook. He implied that GM waited until assured of higher prices before deciding to meet union wage demands.

OPA Boss Porter promised to make a complete study of the new price policy, but he did not indicate that he would change it. The chances are 100 to 1 he won't.

Merry-Go-Round

Final decision to recall Ed Pauley's nomination took place at a secret White House session last week attended by Pauley, Bob Hannegan, the president, and Maryland's Sen. Tydings. Tydings repeated what he had reported before, that there wasn't a chance of getting Pauley confirmed. Later that night, Pauley began drafting a letter asking the president to withdraw his name. He contacted at least three ghost-writers to help write the final whitewash memoranda in his case. . . . Republican Leader Joe Martin has again pledged his full support for the FEPC. . . . Postmaster General Bob Hannegan launched the most violent attack on the reactionary southern Democrats any Democratic chairman has ever made, the other night in Wilmington, Del. He accused them of thwarting the will of the majority of the American people.

Russian Friendship Is Seen Possible Despite Stalin

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Russia is one thing. Stalin is another. One can be a friend of Russia and yet oppose the tyranny of Stalin.

There is no reason why the Russian people and the the American people should not be friends. They have fewer friction points than almost any other people in the world. Each has vast resources and ample room to develop for decades without expanding their areas.

Others Progressed, Also

Our fellow travellers say that under Stalin the Russia people—those who survived!—have made long strides in education, manufacturing, farming, etc. But in these thirty years, what nation did not progress along technical lines, including Germany and Japan? But did communist butcheries advance or retard Russia's development? As pointed out in "Russia and the United States," by Pitirim Sorokin, a Russian liberal, Russia's population increased from 67,000,000 in 1850 to 176,000,000 before the Red revolution, a greater gain than we had, without benefit of any immigration. Seventy per cent of her children had primary schooling. All but ten per cent of arable land had already been restored to the peasants.

Russia, in 1914, had the world's fourth largest cotton industry; its railroad system was second only to ours; its coal industry tripled its production in the thirty years before 1914; her large scale industrial production quadrupled; she had 33,000 cooperative societies with 13,000,000 members; in the twenty years before World War I, Russia's inventions had doubled, her scientists were world-renowned; and in literature, music, drama and the ballet she held probably the foremost position in the world—all this under the czars.

Freedom Also Advancing

Before 1917 human freedom was advancing also. Serfdom was abolished in 1861; a constitutional monarchy was established in 1906; all citizens were equal before the law; all parties were represented in the Duma; the government was openly criticised in the Duma and in the press; the death penalty was abolished; the "Czarist prisons were a paradise compared with the communist infernos"; courts and juries often brought in verdicts of not guilty in political trials.

Then came the communist reign of terror. The rich, the middle and professional classes, the Kulaks or independent farmers, and finally communist leaders and workers themselves were liquidated in an orgy of blood. Free elections, free speech, free press, impartial courts, emigration and private business was blacked out. Millions were killed or starved including many of Russia's best brains; other millions were put—and are still held—in labor camps whose cruelties equal the Siberian of decades ago; at least twenty-eight bishops and 1219 priests were killed; churches were closed; religion was spat upon, and behind the iron curtain was erected the police state which "sees man as no more than an animal coming into the world without God—and then returning to the nothingness from which it came" to quote President O'Donnell, of Notre Dame university.

Quarantined for Years

For years the Russian people have been in quarantine. They are denied the fertilizing exchange of thoughts and ideas across the world's frontiers. They know only what they are told. Do their masters think that freedom would end their rule?

Does tyranny produce real progress? Can it be that Henry George was wrong when he said, "We speak of liberty as one thing, and of wealth, knowledge, invention and national strength as other things. But of all these, Liberty is the source. . . She is to wealth what sunshine is to grain."

How come that every socialist government in the world begs for billions from the nation whose system they despise?

Easing of Tension In Russian Crisis Is Seen in Cards

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 19. — An easing of tension in the so-called Russian crisis may be confidently expected soon. The moves being made indicate that Russia herself may have been surprised at the development of the crisis, believing instead that a continuance of her pressure tactics begun during the war period and maintained ever since would yield results without exciting the people of the United States.

The Iranian controversy has back of it a struggle for access to one or the richest oil fields in the world. The British have large interests in Irah, and the United States is anxious to see an internationalization of these resources. The Iranian government is being pressed by Russia to grant oil concessions in return for withdrawal of the Soviet troops.

Russian "Realism"

This method of bargaining is called Russian realism. It has, in this instance, run roughshod over an explicit pledge to withdraw troops from Iran. Likewise the looting of Manchuria has hurt the Russian position in this country.

Perhaps Moscow thought all this could be quickly remedied and that overnight Russia could withdraw her troops from Iran and give the impression that the whole thing was a tempest in a teapot. Certainly there seems no logical reason why, even in Russia's own interest, the crisis should have been permitted to go to the point where tension in relations to the United States was created.

Little is known of what goes on inside Moscow, but Russia is beginning to act as if she is as much amazed as are many Americans that out government took the whole thing so seriously. It must mean that the State department decided to try to keep the Russian tactics from becoming extreme and hence made a fuss about it, fearing that unless stopped now, Russia might precipitate further incidents which would really produce apprehension.

America Awakened

Whatever may be the motives of materialistic Russia—for the communist Soviet is as crude in its selfishness as any capitalistic empire ever was—the net result has been to awaken America. Demobilization of our army and navy may go on as scheduled, but authority will be voted by Congress to build up our military power through volunteers and through an extensino of the draft.

As for the atomic bomb, its secret will never be given to Russia. Persons who talk glibly about Russia's getting the secret anyhow in five years are guessing. They actually do not know what the secret is. It is believed that few men in this country really know the secret. Though many scientists may know a great deal about atomic energy itself, this is a far different thing from knowing how to use it in a weapon that can be detonated without destroying the detonators. Experiments are rather risky business.

Russia has managed her external affairs very badly. She has sought to drive a wedge between America and Britain on the theory that the United States would hesitate to side with Britain's efforts to maintain her Mediterranean influence.

Byrnes Supports Charter

While Secretary Byrnes quite naturally has deplored any talk of alliances and seemingly takes issue with Mr. Churchill, all he really is doing is supporting the United Nations charter as a substitute for alliances without in any way retreating on his earlier speech virtually accusing Russia of breaking her treaty pledge in Iran.

The notes which the American government has sent to Russia and which have for so long now gone unanswered stand as an indictment of Russian ineptitude. If Russia seriously wants peace—and there is every reason to think her people are tired of war—she is not adopting the best way to keep nations from thinking about her in terms of war. The Russian government has done more "war-mongering" in the last two months than a thousand speeches by Winston Churchill.

There will be no movement toward war for a while, because Russia needs at least five years for domestic recovery. So the moves which may soon emanate from Russia's side will tend to become conciliatory.

I attended one of those modern art exhibits the other day and, knowing how difficult it is to understand those surrealistic paintings, I took Colonna along to explain the brush-work.

Going to a modern art exhibit is really an interesting experience, but quite hard to describe . . . It's a sort of crossword puzzle in technicolor.

Most of those modern paintings have unusual titles, and I even saw one there called "Betty Grable." I couldn't understand it until the artist told me he painted it with leg-makeup?

I saw one painting I immediately took to my heart . . . but the attendant made me put it back. I know a good canvas when I see one, as I was a boxer once and had the opportunity to study them closely. No kidding, anyone in Hollywood can tell you I'm an expert in oil.

I noticed one guy studying a picture for hours before deciding to buy it. When I asked him if he was a great art collector, he said, "No . . . I just want to cover a hole in my wall."

I came across the painting of a house that was really a fine example of modern art . . . it had a "No Vacancy" sign in the window.

Better Health for Better Living

● The last three decades have brought many changes in matters pertaining to health. The normal span of life has been increased materially. Consider diabetes, for example. Diabetes was first recognized about the time of Moses, or 200 years before the birth of King Tut. Yet, it was not until 1922 that a specific remedy was discovered. Today, through the use of Insulin and a balanced diet, the diabetic can reasonably expect to live about as long as anybody. Your physician will promptly recognize the symptoms of diabetes. He knows all about the treatment. And remember this, all advertised cures for diabetes are fakes. Don't be victimized by the swindlers.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotional

Prepared by
DR. GAIUS GLENN ATKINS of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of America
Copyright 1946

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20

Who Is My Neighbor—now? "But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, and who is my neighbor?" Luke 10:20. Read Luke 10: 25-29.

The lawyer's question will not down. He had an implied answer for it himself. His neighbors, he thought, were of his own race, social position and religion, people he knew and found it easy to like. It was a kind of select-group neighborliness, far too narrow and essentially dangerous. Thef inal issue of that kind of neighborliness is select-group against select-group, faith against faith, race against race, nation against nation.

"Neighborliness is not that", said Jesus. "It is right human relations, then and now and always; nearness not in space and setting but in helps and healings asked and given". These alone hold us together. They do not belong to maps, they belong to the geography of the spirit and no frontiers should contain or limit them. This morning that lawyer's question asks for answers which reach round the world.

Prayer: Almighty God, from whom all help and good will proceed, teach us anew how much we need each other, deepen and extend our sympathies, widen our vision and through the ministry of Thy Son make all Thy children near in spirit though sundered far in space. In His name. Amen.

Blandford Will Head State's Food Program

BALTIMORE, March 19—(AP)—Joseph H. Blandford, state director of the Production and Marketing Administration, has been appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson to head Maryland's emergency food program.

Blandford added that prominent civic leaders in the state were being asked to help in the program and that committee membership would be announced in a few days.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20

Who Is My Neighbor—now? "But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, and who is my neighbor?" Luke 10:20. Read Luke 10: 25-29.

The lawyer's question will not down. He had an implied answer for it himself. His neighbors, he thought, were of his own race, social position and religion, people he knew and found it easy to like. It was a kind of select-group neighborliness, far too narrow and essentially dangerous. Thef inal issue of that kind of neighborliness is select-group against select-group, faith against faith, race against race, nation against nation.

"Neighborliness is not that", said Jesus. "It is right human relations, then and now and always; nearness not in space and setting but in helps and healings asked and given". These alone hold us together. They do not belong to maps, they belong to the geography of the spirit and no frontiers should contain or limit them. This morning that lawyer's question asks for answers which reach round the world.

Prayer: Almighty God, from whom all help and good will proceed, teach us anew how much we need each other, deepen and extend our sympathies, widen our vision and through the ministry of Thy Son make all Thy children near in spirit though sundered far in space. In His name. Amen.

Strong Spots Persist in Market Although Many Leaders Decline

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—Scattered strong spots persisted in today's stock market although many leaders, particularly "thin" ones, were thrown for losses of three to five points on relatively light dealings.

Transfers of 1,050,000 shares compared with 1,070,000 Monday.

Much of the bidding that appeared apparently was based on the further easing of international tension, hopes for price control relaxation and the idea more of a technical market comeback was in the cards. Skepticism over dividends and earnings, however, caused many customers to shelve accounts and stand aside.

American Airlines rose five points and finished up four on continued talk of another stock splitup. Ahead were American Tobacco, Liggett and Myers, Reynolds Tobacco, Philip Morris, Pfizer, American Distilling (aided by a favorable court ruling in a company's OPA suit), Bransdall, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, American Water Works, Santa Fe, Woolworth, International Harvester and Johns-Manville.

Casualties included Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Boeing, Aviation Corporation, Consolidated Vultee, United Aircraft, American Telephone, North American, Western Union "A," Texas Company, General Electric, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Anaconda and International Nickel.

Improved in the Curb were Cities Service, Fedders-Quigan, National City Lines, St. Regis Paper and Cuban Atlantic Sugar. Turnover here was 420,000 shares versus 410,000 yesterday.

Railroad liens generally gained ground in the bond market.

Changes for the most part were narrow, but some carriers moved forward a point or more.

Sales were $4,750,000 compared with $4,224,000 Monday.

United States governments generally were quiet on the stock exchange with the 2½s of 60-55 declining slightly.

Strong Spots Persist in Market Although Many Leaders Decline

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—Scattered strong spots persisted in today's stock market although many leaders, particularly "thin" ones, were thrown for losses of three to five points on relatively light dealings.

Transfers of 1,050,000 shares compared with 1,070,000 Monday.

Much of the bidding that appeared apparently was based on the further easing of international tension, hopes for price control relaxation and the idea more of a technical market comeback was in the cards. Skepticism over dividends and earnings, however, caused many customers to shelve accounts and stand aside.

American Airlines rose five points and finished up four on continued talk of another stock splitup. Ahead were American Tobacco, Liggett and Myers, Reynolds Tobacco, Philip Morris, Pfizer, American Distilling (aided by a favorable court ruling in a company's OPA suit), Bransdall, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, American Water Works, Santa Fe, Woolworth, International Harvester and Johns-Manville.

Casualties included Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Boeing, Aviation Corporation, Consolidated Vultee, United Aircraft, American Telephone, North American, Western Union "A," Texas Company, General Electric, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Anaconda and International Nickel.

Improved in the Curb were Cities Service, Fedders-Quigan, National City Lines, St. Regis Paper and Cuban Atlantic Sugar. Turnover here was 420,000 shares versus 410,000 yesterday.

Railroad liens generally gained ground in the bond market.

Changes for the most part were narrow, but some carriers moved forward a point or more.

Sales were $4,750,000 compared with $4,224,000 Monday.

United States governments generally were quiet on the stock exchange with the 2⅞s of 60-55 declining slightly.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 19 (AP)—The Production and Marketing Administration says soybeans evidently will be one answer for Maryland farmers to the feed shortage situation this year. The PMA's field service branch adds that soybeans would be a means of assuring protein concentrates for livestock.

Woman Gets Six Months On Vagrancy Charge; Appeals Decision

Arrested on a charge of vagrancy, Mrs. Esther Alger, a widow, Wheeling, W. Va., was sentenced to six months in the Maryland Reformatory for Women by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in trial magistrates court yesterday.

Mrs. Alger filed notice of an appeal and was committed to the county jail in default of bond.

Court attaches said the woman received a suspended sentence on a similar charge on September 15 and that she had been arrested here on drunkenness charges.

Robert Lee Horn, Route 1, Cumberland, paid a fine of $1 and costs imposed by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew on a charge of operating a motor vehicle at night without lights. Sgt. Thomas Hignutt, of the state police, made the arrest on Mechanic street.

Matthew M. Saber, Lonaconing, forfeited bond of $2.45 when he failed to appear for a hearing before Magistrate Perdew on a charge of passing when the way ahead was not clear. Sgt. Hignutt made the arrest on Route 40 in LaVale.

High West Virginia Court Agrees To Hear Murder Case Technicality

Decision May Establish Ruling on Admission of Evidence

KEYSER, W. Va., March 19.—The Supreme Court of West Virginia today informed attorneys in the case of the state versus William G. Davisson and Howard Dawson for murder that it will hear evidence regarding the admissability of testimony given by Floyd Hebb, the victim, who died on the witness stand in the course of a preliminary hearing.

Hebb, a former Cumberland railroad man, allegedly was beaten and robbed by Davisson and Dawson in Keyser last summer. At a preliminary hearing late in July, Hebb identified both Davisson and Dawson as the men who robbed and attacked him and then dropped dead before cross examination had been completed.

Davisson and Dawson were indicted for murder by the last grand jury but the lower court questioned the legality of admitting Hebb's testimony on a murder charge although the court indicated it would be admissable on a robbery charge. It was pointed out that Hebb, when he died, had been giving testimony regarding how he had been robbed and not regarding how he was murdered.

No Clear-Cut Ruling

As it happened, West Virginia and Virginia are believed to be the only two states in the union in which the question regarding the admissability of evidence in such cases has never been clarified. West Virginia attorneys point out that there has never been a clear-cut ruling on the legality of admitting such evidence.

Prosecutor Vernon E. Rankin, who admitted that his case depends largely on the admission of Hebb's testimony, pointed out that the victim's testimony could help to prove that blows he received in the course of the attack could have caused his death.

With the lower court uncertain regarding the legality of admitting Hebb's evidence on a murder charge, attorneys agreed to submit briefs to the high court requesting a ruling on the question—which, if finally settled, will prove of value to lower courts throughout the entire state, according to Rankin. Accordingly, the briefs were presented and Dawson and Davisson released on bond pending a solution of the technicality.

Yesterday, the supreme court informed those involved that the case would be admitted and Rankin said that he and Attorney General Ira J. Pardlow would appear before the court when the hearing is set.

Differs from Maryland

It might be explained at this point that in West Virginia, unlike Maryland, the high court rules on whether or not it will accept cases from lower courts, first passing on the merits of the case before attorneys are summoned. In Maryland, attorneys go up before the higher court as a matter of right.

Rankin received a telegram from the high court stating that the court had granted a "writ of error and supersedeas" in the case which means that it is willing to take up the matter and pass on it.

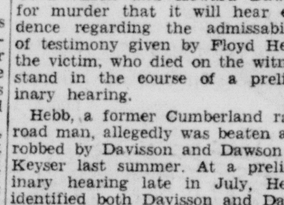

"This means that we are over our first big hurdle", Rankin said. "The outcome of this case will be watched with interest by attorneys all over the state."

THE POTOMAC EDISON COMPANY

Young Woman, Her Heart Broken Once, Now Fears Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

If you bit into a wormy apple, would you give up eating apples forever because you were afraid of getting another wormy one? Of course you wouldn't!

If you threw yourself into a chair that had a weak leg, and it broke and you sat down hard and got some beautiful bruises, would you sit on the floor the rest of your life rather than trust yourself to another chair? Well, hardly.

Or if you bought something in a store and when you got home found the clerk had short-changed you, would you stop shopping for all time? Certainly not.

What you would do in such cases would simply try to be more careful next time. That is, you would if you had the sense to learn from experience. If you didn't, naturally the same things would be likely to happen to you again.

What I'm leading up to is this: It wouldn't be any sillier to give up eating apples or sitting in chairs or shopping just because you got a bad break once when you did one of these things, than it would be to decide you daren't love anybody ever again just because someone once let you down.

Here's a girl who feels that way:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am 19 years old and I met a fellow in the air corps who is 23. He said he loved me and asked me to wait for him till he got his discharge. But he now has his discharge, and I have received only one letter from him, although he has been away from here for weeks.

"I have been going with another fellow whom I've known only a very short while, but I like him lots. Mom thinks I should wait to see if E. W. C. comes back before I start dating again, but I've waited so long for him it does look a little hopeless.

"You see, Miss Fairfax, my heart was broken once by a fellow I waited for three years, and I still love him terribly. I could never love E. W. C. or anyone else as much. I'm trying very hard to avoid another heartbreak. I'm really afraid to love anyone for that reason. I still love this man too much, I know, but he has a corner of my mind filled with his memories, and they just won't seem to let me alone. I'm also very much afraid this love I'm still holding will come between me any any fellow I marry. Understand, please. I don't want to hang on to this love that I know can never be, but I seem to be helpless.

"Should I wait for E. W. C. or go on having dates with other fellows? Do you think there's a chance of E. W. C. coming back?

"WORRIED MIND"

I'm afraid I can't agree with your mother in this. I think you should put E. W. C. out of your mind and go out with any other young man who invites you. If E. W. C. should come back, with a sound explanation of why you didn't hear from him, and you yourself wish to give him another chance, that's another matter. But I think you would be very foolish indeed to cross other boys off your list and just sit at home waiting.

As for being afraid to love anyone else because someone once treated you badly — well, I've already told you what I think about that. You've got to take a chance on people in this world. No guarantee comes with any of them. If one of them lets you down, it hurts, of course. But the sensible person just charges it off to experience and tries again, being a little more careful, if possible, to find out if the man is worth loving before giving him a heart to keep. You don't have to "hang on to this love" if you don't want to. Just keep going and it'll fade out of itself. That's the way Nature is about such things.

Junior Orchestra Gives Program

The opening song of the program was "America", sung by the student body. The orchestra presented a duet of lively numbers entitled "Simplicity March" and "Happy Days Waltz". In contrast Doris Platt played a violin solo entitled "Berceuse", accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Herbert Platt.

"Minuet", a melody, was played as a clarinet solo by Ronald Hoelger. "To a Wild Rose" (MacDowell) was played by Carol Conrad, and "The Deserted Farm," by Jean Franklin, as piano solos.

The much played, "Over the Waves" was a saxophone duet number presented by the Hiser brothers, James and William. William Hiser also played "Bell Bottom Trousers" on the accordion.

George Lyke presented Stephen Foster's "Beautiful Dreamer," on the baritone horn. To conclude the assembly program the orchestra played "Flag Day March".

The flag salute was given by Ray Goetz and scripture was read by Charlotte DeWitt.

Allegany Mentor Given Wrist Watch; Champs Take Two Trophies; "Jerry" Malloy Speaks

A surprise award in the form of a Gruen wrist watch was presented to Walter L. Bowers, veteran coach of athletic teams at Allegany high school since 1926, at the annual Times-News dinner honoring the city's three scholastic quints last night in the All Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The gift was presented by Eugene T. "Gene" Gunning, city editor of The Cumberland Evening Times, in behalf of the Times and Alleganian Company, and was given in recognition of Bowers's long and faithful service as coach of many athletic teams at the Campobello institution.

Expresses Gratitude

Bowers, who tutored Allegany's city and W.M.I. League championship basketball team this season, was completely taken by surprise and in accepting the gift expressed his gratitude to "all the boys who helped him, the newspapers for their part in boosting sports, the administrators of the school system for their co-operation and the parents who made many sacrifices for the welfare of their boys."

In stressing the part played by the parents in athletics, Bowers said that many were inconvenienced through being forced to serve late meals and added that in some instances the boys cooked their own means. In conclusion, the A.H.S. mentor said: "I wish to take this occasion to thank everyone from the bottom of my heart."

In his introductory remarks Gunning, who was pinch-hitting for John J. McMullen, president of the Times-News paper, sponsor of the annual dinners, referred to Bowers as a "thin guy who came to Allegany in 1926 and has coached many teams over a stretch of twenty-one year. Gunning described the gift as something Bowers was to receive in addition to the meal.

Gunning, who was introduced by Arthur J. Ramey, toastmaster, welcomed the guests in behalf of Mr. McMullen, presented two Times-News trophies to Allegany high school's basketball champions, The W. M. I. League trophy, won by the Blue and White in 1945 and 1946 went to Allegany for keeps. The city championship trophy, won for the first time by LaSalle in 1945, went to Allegany for one year. This prize becomes the outright possession of the school winning it twice. In presenting the W. M. I. trophy, Gunning laughingly remarked that it was Allegany's for keeps "but it was brought down so Fort Hill could see what it looks like."

Guest speaker of the evening was Gerald "Jerry" Malloy, of Hoboken, N. J., nationally prominent basketball referee, who was introduced by Toastmaster Ramey as a "jovial" Irishman, from Hoboken, the garden spot of the world. Ramey stated that Malloy handled LaSalle games in the ESCIT at Newport, R. I., and had appeared here on several other occasions in the role of speaker and official.

Malloy Boosts Coaches

Malloy discussed glamour coaches in some of the eastern colleges, admitting that they were great mentors, but stressed the point that the big job really is being done by the school coaches. He urged the boys never to let down their coaches.

On the humorous side, Malloy told his audience that he was a three-letter man—RAT—and when the train stopped in Cumberland with a jerk he got off. Speaking of Cumberland, "Jerry" said that the town was laid out nice but he wanted to know how long it had been dead. Then he gave his friend, Coach William V. Keegan, LaSalle mentor, a ribbing by asking when the clothes that "Bill" was wearing came back in style. Malloy said that when Keegan was a baby his picture was sent to Ripley but Ripley didn't believe it.

The New Jerseyite said he was happy to be in Cumberland. In fact, he added, he was happy to be anywhere. He praised the hospitality of Cumberland citizens and said the coaches in local schools were doing a swell job. "And don't ever forget them," he concluded.

Frank Sinatra Introduced

Malloy was accompanied here by Frank Sinatra, of Hoboken, but he was not the crooner and nobody swooned when he was introduced. Sinatra is a cousin of the favorite of America's bobby sockers and admitted that he couldn't sing a note.

A two-minute time limit was set by Toastmaster Ramey for all those called on for remarks and an alarm clock was used to bring all talks to an abrupt halt. All of the speakers offered congratulations to Coach Walter Bowers and his championship team. The guests got quite a chuckle whenever the alarm sounded, and several of the speakers charged that they were given a short count. Those who spoke briefly were Ralph R. Webster, principal of Allegany; Brother Clement, LaSalle principal; Victor D. Heisy, Fort Hill principal; John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, Fort Hill coach, and William V. Keegan, LaSalle coach.

Others introduced were Brother Gregory, director of athletics at LaSalle; John Long, LaSalle football coach and basketball referee; Ross W. Prysock and Suter Kegg, of the Times sports staff, and C. V. Burns, of the News.

The Rev. Charles W. Bogan, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church, asked the blessing.

COACHES BOYS

FIRST WOMAN COACH of a boys' high school swim team has been appointed. She is Helen Emmons, who is the coach of the Boone, Ia., team. Miss Emmons came to Boone as a girl's physical education teacher.

Pennock Spikes Report Phillies Are Dickering For Kurowski, Brecheen

MIAMI, Fla., March 19. (AP) — General Manager Herb Pennock, of the Philadelphia Phillies, said today reports that the Phils were dickering with the St. Louis Cardinals for Third Baseman Whitey Kurowski, a holdout, and Pitcher Harry Brecheen were strictly rumors.

"Kurowski? Brecheen? Certainly we'd like to have them," Pennock said, "Who wouldn't? But we're not in the market for them.

"We're definitely not planning any conference with Sam Breadon," Pennock declared. "We intend to help our pitching situation before the season opens, but no deals are imminent."

Thomas Is Appointed End Coach at VMI

ATHENS, Ga., March 19. (AP) — Carroll Thomas, an assistant to football Coach Wally Butts at the University of Georgia, has accepted a job as end coach at Virginia Military Institute.

Thomas, who was a star end in his playing days at Georgia and last year coached the Bulldog B team, will leave for Lexington this weekend to assume his new duties.

Montreal Cops Opener Of Hockey Series

MONTREAL, March 19 (AP)—The champion Montreal Canadiens smashed through Chicago's defenses in the second period for three goals tonight to trounce the Black Hawks 6-2 in the opening game of their best-of-seven semi-final Stanley Cup playoff series.

BLAME IT ON THE PIN SHORTAGE

EVERYTHING WAS GOING ALONG all right for little Vince Sebastian (right) until he tossed his Sunday punch at Joe Ippolito. It didn't work quite the way he had expected. Instead of his opponent, it was Vince's pants that began to fall. The small fry battlers were photographed taking part in a New York boxing carnival for kids when the bout was called a draw because of a drawstring.

The SPORTLIGHT By GRANTLAND RICE

They've Been Trying Too Hard

TAMPA, Fla., March 19—True pennant form, an inkling of which will be revealed when the box scores of April begin to blossom, will be in doubt for some time. And the basic reason is that returning veterans have been trying too hard, and too quickly, to prove they are as good as they ever were, or possibly better.

As a result they have been amassing a collection of sore arms, sore feet, charley horses and other ailments that have had managers bewildered, baffled and wondering how to cut down this supply of overenthusiasms and early hustle.

Here are two examples. Eddie Dyer of the Cardinals has over twenty able pitchers in his line-up but for the first two weeks of exhibiitno play he only had three who were able to work in winning form. The others had sore arms or sore backs and were of little help.

On another occasion the Tigers came to St. Petersburg to play the Yankees with their entire outfield too lame and stiff to play—Wakefield, McCosky and Mullin. Managers who have had from fifteen to twenty pitchers on the scene have been scrambling around to find as many as three who were ready to work three or four innings.

"I've never seen anything like it," Steve O'Neill the Tiger leader said, just after Hoot Evers, rookie centerfielder had broken an ankle. "There was a time when you had trouble making ball players work hard enough. Now I have to spend most of my time trying to keep them from overworking. Especially those who have come back to us from the service. They feel they have to prove in the first week or so that they haven't lost anything that they are still good, that they can still hit, run and throw as well as ever. I think they can. But absences of two or three years require extra time for the player to work his way back. Most of them have tried to get ready much too fast. Just how this early rush and this intense desire to make good in a hurry will affect their later form is anyone's guess."

While Steve O'Neill is trying to curb the daily operations of Hank Greenberg, Dick Wakefield and others, Lou Boudreau is having the same trouble with Bob Feller and Steve Gromek, two of his pitching aces. I've seen any number of returned servicemen who are now from three to five pounds under normal weight. They'll need this weight later with so many exhibition games and the long 154 game schedule ahead.

Baseball's Major Blunder

Major League baseball has gone far overboard on its spring and exhibition schedule. It has overdone its list of exhibition games in a way that you might call incredibly stupid. Practically every manager and every trainer I have talked to agrees with this line of thought.

Take the case of the Yankees—the best team in baseball today. They have played in the tropic heat of Panama. They have been in Florida for several weeks. They are ready to open the season tomorrow. They could and should head north after leaving Florida.

In the number of springs I've been watching baseball, I have never before seen an outfield and an infield as far advanced as the Yankees are now. This goes for hitting, fielding, throwing and running. But it's quite an extended hike from the middle of March to October, especially through a season where the opposition is as strong as it is.

No one understands this better than Joe McCarthy, who in addition to his many other managerial abilities, knows what conditions means.

"I know the problem I have," Joe told me. "Pennant races are not won in March or early April. To me every ball game counts, but I know the toughest part of any race is the stretch. I know the all-around strength we have to face in the Red Sox. I know the pitching power we must meet with the Tigers, and the Cleveland Indians. Both have four or five excellent starting pitchers, headed by such men as Feller and Newhouser. I've seen too many good ball clubs break up and crash after middle AUGUST. They were stale. And no one can play any game well when he is stale.

"This is something we'll have to watch on our way north. I happen to have the kind of ball club I like to handle—not only good ball players, but keen and intelligent athletes. But they have a long road and a tough road on beyond with the chance of losing some of that keen edge later on. As you say there are too many ex-service men who have been trying to prove too quickly how good they are. Some of these had better slow down just a little before the season opens."

Two Quints Reach Finals In Gold Medal Contests

Midgets Win on Basket by Gibson; Vogue Big Five and Lonaconing Legion Are Victors

Masons's All-Stars and the Sunday School Midgets moved into the finals of the 135 and 115 pound classes in the Gold Medal basketball tournament by winning games last night on the Central YMCA court.

The Mason quint downed the Fireflies, 22 to 13, and gained the right to play Harris's Spartans, of Frostburg, in the championship game Thursday night.

Don Gibson's field goal fifty seconds before the final gun gave the Sunday School Midgets a 14-13 decision over the Vagabonds and advanced the winners to the 115-pound finals with Armbruster's Radios scheduled to furnish the opposition on Thursday night.

St. Mark's Is Winner

St. Mark's Pony Express won an interesting game from the Frostburg Hicks, 41-33 in the junior unlimited class. The lineup of the winning team included several Ridgeley high school players. Bob Iser racked up fourteen points for St. Mark's while B. Truly registered ten for the losers.

The Vogue Big Five easily beat Mason's Collegians, 47-19, in the senior unlimited class. Geatz's smooth ball handling and steady shooting was the victors' big advantage. He marked up fifteen points on six field goals and three free throws.

In the fifth and final game of the evening, the Lonaconing American Legion, featuring a smooth passing team, with Frizzell and Muster setting up the plays, downed the "Y" Seniors, 43 to 23. Frizzell chalked up 17 points while Orr contributed an even dozen tallies.

Must Replay Quarter

Announcement was made last night by the tournament committee that Lacy's Delicatets and Keegan's Claimers must replay the fourth quarter of their Monday night game due to a mixup in the rules. Lacy's won this contest, 47-33. Play will be resumed about 9 o'clock from the start of the fourth period when the Claimers held a 26-25 lead. Lacy's must finish the game with four players, namely, Roby, Davis, Montgomery and Hoyle, due to "Chick" Snider being banished on personals.

Pairings for today's games are as follows:

8 p. m., Lonaconing Legion vs. Davis (W. Va.) Eagles.

9 p. m., St. Paul's Alumni vs. Racketeers.

10 p. m., Lacy's Delicatets vs. Vogue Big Five.

The tourney committee has decided to give awards to the winners and runners-up in each division. Medals will be given to all tourney teams in each division.

Coach Bowers Is Honored At Times-News Dinner

Allegany Mentor Given Wrist Watch; Champs Take Two Trophies; "Jerry" Malloy Speaks

A surprise award in the form of a Gruen wrist watch was presented to Walter L. Bowers, veteran coach of athletic teams at Allegany high school since 1926, at the annual Times-News dinner honoring the city's three scholastic quints last night in the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

The gift was presented by Eugene T. "Gene" Gunning, city editor of The Cumberland Evening Times, in behalf of the Times and Alleganian Company, and was given in recognition of Bowers's long and faithful service as coach of many athletic teams at the Campobello institution.

Expresses Gratitude

Bowers, who tutored Allegany's city and W.M.I. League championship basketball team this season, was completely taken by surprise and in accepting the gift expressed his gratitude to "all the boys who helped him, the newspapers for their part in boosting sports, the administrators of the school system for their co-operation and the parents who made many sacrifices for the welfare of their boys."

In stressing the part played by the parents in athletics, Bowers said that many were inconvenienced through being forced to serve late meals and added that in some instances the boys cooked their own means. In conclusion, the A.H.S. mentor said: "I wish to take this occasion to thank everyone from the bottom of my heart."

In his introductory remarks Gunning, who was pinch-hitting for John J. McMullen, president of the Times-News paper, sponsor of the annual dinners, referred to Bowers as a "thin guy who came to Allegany in 1926 and has coached many teams over a stretch of twenty-one year. Gunning described the gift as something Bowers was to receive in addition to the meal.

Gunning, who was introduced by Arthur J. Ramey, toastmaster, welcomed the guests in behalf of Mr. McMullen, presented two Times-News trophies to Allegany high school's basketball champions. The W. M. I. League trophy, won by the Blue and White in 1945 and 1946 went to Allegany for keeps. The city championship trophy, won for the first time by LaSalle in 1945 went to Allegany for one year. This prize becomes the outright possession of the school winning it twice. In presenting the W. M. I. trophy, Gunning laughingly remarked that it was Allegany's for keeps "but it was brought down so Fort Hill could see what it looks like."

Guest speaker of the evening was Gerald "Jerry" Malloy, of Hoboken, N. J., nationally prominent basketball referee, who was introduced by Toastmaster Ramey as a "jovial" Irishman, from Hoboken, the garden spot of the world. Ramey stated that Malloy handled LaSalle games in the ESCIT at Newport, R. I., and had appeared here on several other occasions in the role of speaker and official.

Malloy discussed glamour coaches in some of the eastern colleges, admitting that they were great mentors, but stressed the point that the big job really is being done by the school coaches. He urged the boys never to let down their coaches.

On the humorous side, Malloy told his audience that he was a three-letter man—RAT—and when the train stopped in Cumberland with a jerk he got off. Speaking of Cumberland, "Jerry" said that the town was laid out nice but he wanted to know how long it had been dead. Then he gave his friend, Coach William V. Keegan, LaSalle mentor, a ribbing by asking when the clothes that "Bill" was wearing came back in style. Malloy said that when Keegan was a baby his picture was sent to Ripley but Ripley didn't believe it.

The New Jerseyite said he was happy to be in Cumberland. In fact, he added, he was happy to be anywhere. He praised the hospitality of Cumberland citizens and said the coaches in local schools were doing a swell job. "And don't ever forget them," he concluded.

Frank Sinatra Introduced

Malloy was accompanied here by Frank Sinatra, of Hoboken, but he was not the crooner and nobody swooned when he was introduced. Sinatra is a cousin of the favorite of America's bobby sockers and admitted that he couldn't sing a note.

A two-minute time limit was set by Toastmaster Ramey for all those called on for remarks and an alarm clock was used to bring all talks to an abrupt halt. All of the speakers offered congratulations to Coach Walter Bowers and his championship team. The guests got quite a chuckle whenever the alarm sounded, and several of the speakers charged that they were given a short count. Those who spoke briefly were Ralph R. Webster, principal of Allegany; Brother Clement, LaSalle principal; Victor D. Heisy, Fort Hill principal; John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, Fort Hill coach, and William V. Keegan, LaSalle coach.

Others introduced were Brother Gregory, director of athletics at LaSalle; John Long, LaSalle football coach and basketball referee; Ross W. Prysock and Suter Kegg, of the Times sports staff, and C. V. Burns, of the News.

The Rev. Charles W. Bogan, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church, asked the blessing.

Pennock Spikes Report Phillies Are Dickering For Kurowski, Brecheen

MIAMI, Fla., March 19. (AP) — General Manager Herb Pennock, of the Philadelphia Phillies, said today reports that the Phils were dickering with the St. Louis Cardinals for Third Baseman Whitey Kurowski, a holdout, and Pitcher Harry Brecheen were strictly rumors.

"Kurowski? Brecheen? Certainly we'd like to have them," Pennock said. "Who wouldn't? But we're not in the market for them.

"We're definitely not planning any conference with Sam Breadon," Pennock declared. "We intend to help our pitching situation before the season opens, but no deals are imminent."

Thomas, who was a star end in his playing days at Georgia and last year coached the Bulldog B team, will leave for Lexington this weekend to assume his new duties.

Montreal Cops Opener Of Hockey Series

They've Been Trying Too Hard

TAMPA, Fla., March 19—True pennant form, an inkling of which will be revealed when the box scores of April begin to blossom, will be in doubt for some time. And the basic reason is that returning veterans have been trying too hard, and too quickly, to prove they are as good as they ever were, or possibly better.

As a result they have been amassing a collection of sore arms, sore feet, charley horses and other ailments that have had managers bewildered, baffled and wondering how to cut down this supply of overenthusiasms and early hustle.

Here are two examples. Eddie Dyer of the Cardinals has over twenty able pitchers in his line-up but for the first two weeks of exhibiitno play he only had three who were able to work in winning form. The others had sore arms or sore backs and were of little help.

On another occasion the Tigers came to St. Petersburg to play the Yankees with their entire outfield too lame and stiff to play—Wakefield, McCosky and Mullin. Managers who have had from fifteen to twenty pitchers on the scene have been scrambling around to find as many as three who were ready to work three or four innings.

"I've never seen anything like it," Steve O'Neill the Tiger leader said, just after Hoot Evers, rookie centerfielder had broken an ankle. "There was a time when you had trouble making ball players work hard enough. Now I have to spend most of my time trying to keep them from overworking. Especially those who have come back to us from the service. They feel they have to prove in the first week or so that they haven't lost anything that they are still good, that they can still hit, run and throw as well as ever. I think they can. But absences of two or three years require extra time for the player to work his way back. Most of them have tried to get ready much too fast. Just how this early rush and this intense desire to make good in a hurry will affect their later form is anyone's guess."

While Steve O'Neill is trying to curb the daily operations of Hank Greenberg, Dick Wakefield and others, Lou Boudreau is having the same trouble with Bob Feller and Steve Gromek, two of his pitching aces. I've seen any number of returned servicemen who are now from three to five pounds under normal weight. They'll need this weight later with so many exhibition games and the long 154 game schedule ahead.

Baseball's Major Blunder

Major League baseball has gone far overboard on its spring and exhibition schedule. It has overdone its list of exhibition games in a way that you might call incredibly stupid. Practically every manager and every trainer I have talked to agrees with this line of thought.

Take the case of the Yankees—the best team in baseball today. They have played in the tropic heat of Panama. They have been in Florida for several weeks. They are ready to open the season tomorrow. They could and should head north after leaving Florida.

In the number of springs I've been watching baseball, I have never before seen an outfield and an infield as far advanced as the Yankees are now. This goes for hitting, fielding, throwing and running. But it's quite an extended hike from the middle of March to October, especially through a season where the opposition is as strong as it is.

No one understands this better than Joe McCarthy, who in addition to his many other managerial abilities, knows what conditions means.

"I know the problem I have," Joe told me. "Pennant races are not won in March or early April. To me every ball game counts, but I know the toughest part of any race is the stretch. I know the all-around strength we have to face in the Red Sox. I know the pitching power we must meet with the Tigers, and the Cleveland Indians. Both have four or five excellent starting pitchers, headed by such men as Feller and Newhouser. I've seen too many good ball clubs break up and crash after middle AUGUST. They were stale. And no one can play any game well when he is stale.

"This is something we'll have to watch on our way north. I happen to have the kind of ball club I like to handle—not only good ball players, but keen and intelligent athletes. But they have a long road and a tough road on beyond with the chance of losing some of that keen edge later on. As you say there are too many ex-service men who have been trying to prove too quickly how good they are. Some of these had better slow down just a little before the season opens."

BOSTON, March 19 (AP)—While directing an accurate fire on their rink's east-end goal, the Boston Bruins opened their fifth National Hockey League play-off series in the last six years with the Detroit Red Wings with a 3-1 victory tonight before a packed 13,000 crowd at the Boston Garden.

Two Quints Reach Finals In Gold Medal Contests

Masons's All-Stars and the Sunday School Midgets moved into the finals of the 135 and 115 pound classes in the Gold Medal basketball tournament by winning games last night on the Central YMCA court.

The Mason quint downed the Fireflies, 22 to 13, and gained the right to play Harris's Spartans, of Frostburg, in the championship game Thursday night.

Don Gibson's field goal fifty seconds before the final gun gave the Sunday School Midgets a 14-13 decision over the Vagabonds and advanced the winners to the 115-pound finals with Armbruster's Radios scheduled to furnish the opposition on Thursday night.

St. Mark's Is Winner

St. Mark's Pony Express won an interesting game from the Frostburg Hicks, 41-33 in the junior unlimited class. The lineup of the winning team included several Ridgeley high school players. Bob Iser racked up fourteen points for St. Mark's while B. Truly registered ten for the losers.

The Vogue Big Five easily beat Mason's Collegians, 47-19, in the senior unlimited class. Geatz's smooth ball handling and steady shooting was the victors' big advantage. He marked up fifteen points on six field goals and three free throws.

In the fifth and final game of the evening, the Lonaconing American Legion, featuring a smooth passing team, with Frizzell and Muster setting up the plays, downed the "Y" Seniors, 43 to 23. Frizzell chalked up 17 points while Orr contributed an even dozen tallies.

Must Replay Quarter

Announcement was made last night by the tournament committee that Lacy's Delicatets and Keegan's Claimers must replay the fourth quarter of their Monday night game due to a mixup in the rules. Lacy's won this contest, 47-33. Play will be resumed about 9 o'clock from the start of the fourth period when the Claimers held a 26-25 lead. Lacy's must finish the game with four players, namely, Roby, Davis, Montgomery and Hoyle, due to "Chick" Snider being banished on personals.

Pairings for today's games are as follows:

8 p. m., Lonaconing Legion vs. Davis (W. Va.) Eagles.

10 p. m., Lacy's Delicatets vs. Vogue Big Five.

The tourney committee has decided to give awards to the winners and runners-up in each division. Medals will be given to all tourney teams in each division.

Garden Tourney Finals Will Be Staged Tonight

Calverley May Lead Underdog R. I. State To Win over Kentucky

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — Thimble-sized Ernie Calverley has won New York's basketball fanatics with one of the game's most fascinating Cindrella stories.

And if the skinny Rhode Island State star leads the New England Rams to victory over Kentucky in tomorrow night's final of the National Invitation tournament the shrieks of the dribble loonies probably will shake the rafters at Madison Square Garden.

Little 145-pound Ernie, who at first glance seems lost among a forest of big six-shooters, has been synonymous with Rhode Island basketball for the last two years but never before has he soared to the spectacular heights he did in helping put the Rams in the finals.

Sinks 55-Foot Shot

But the wagering fraternity, which established the Ohioans as twelve-point favorites, reckoned without Calverley. His keen floor generalship, his bullet-like passes, his feints, his elusive dribbling and accurate shooting built up to a terrific climax—his fifty-five-foot shot in the last two seconds that tied the score at 74-74 and led the Rams' 82-79 overtime triumph.

It was the most spectacular toss in the Garden's ten years of basketball. Thousands who missed the game asked ushers later "where did Ernie shoot from?" Ned Irish, executive vice president of the garden, is thinking of marking the exact spot on the floor.

West Virginia vs. Muhlenberg

Against Muhlenberg in the semi-finals last night the Rams were five-point underdogs, but again Ernie demonstrated he deserves to rank with the best players. He tossed in twenty-seven points as the Rams romped home, 59-49. One of his eleven baskets was a forty-footer.

West Virginia and Muhlenberg meet in a consolation tilt that opens the twin bill at 8 p. m. (EST) before another expected sellout of more than 18,000.

Donald Hay Named To Handle Wagering At Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., March 19—President Albert J. Boyle of the Charles Town Jockey Club, today signed J. Donald Hay of Baltimore, Md., to handle wagering during the 46-day race meeting, starting May 29.

Hay has served in the wagering departments of every first class track in America and Canada for the past thirty years. He is one of the few directors of wagering, who can handle any position, including calculating; therefore, he should prove invaluable to the host organization.

Bluege Turns Attention To Senators' "B" Team

ORLANDO, Fla., March 19. (AP)—Manager Ossie Bluege, of the Washington Senators, turned his attention to "B" team players today now that his entire squad is again together.

He is particularly interested in the batting ability of Outfielder Ray Goolsby and First Baseman Jack Sanford, righthanders who might fit into the Senators' preponderantly lefthanded batting order.

The first team returned from Cuba with six victories in seven games and $10,000 in gate receipts, showing a profit of $5,000 for the trip to Havana.

High Shine, Kentucky Derby Hope, Defeated

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 19 (AP)—The Kentucky Derby hopes of Warren Wright's Calumet Farm received a jolt here today when High Shine, unbeaten in four previous races, bowed by two lengths to the Canadian-owned Gregalach in the six furlong Enniskillen purse.

Although he carried 126 pounds, conceding gobs of weight to six rival three year olds, High Shine went postward a 3 to 5 favorite. Gregalach, a non-Derby colt which had won one of eight 1946 starts for R. S. McLaughlin, got in at 114 pounds and paid $11.

Arnold Hanger's Red Board was third, three additional lengths behind. Over a track termed fast but which was slightly dull, Gregalach finished in 1:11 3-5 under Nick Wall.

Why Fishermen Crab

TATHRA, Australia (AP) — A crab weighing twenty and one-half pounds with a red and pink mottled body and black nippers was caught in a trawler's net off the south coast of New South Wales. It measured three feet seven inches from tip to tip.

MOORE'S FAILURE TO APPEAR FOR FIGHT PUZZLES MANAGER

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — Light-Heavyweight Contender Archie Moore failed to show up for a fight in Baltimore last night, and his manager, iron-hat Jimmy Johnston, is just as mystified about it as anyone. If anything, Iron-hat Jimmy is even more in the dark, because two weeks ago he wired Archie $200 carfare to get to the fight.

At that time—March 5—the ranking light-heavyweight challenger was at San Diego, Calif., on personal business. He wired Johnston for the $200, explaining he expected to leave for the east about March 7. He did not say he expected to walk.

"You're boxing Buddy Walker in Baltimore March 18, which will add another knockout to your record," Jimmy wired Archie with the money.

Jimmy paid no more attention to it. As he explained, "We always tell Moore where and when he's to fight—he goes to whatever place it is by himself." Ordinarily, Archie does his training in Harlem, and the only time Johnston sees him is when he checks in to Jimmy's office for one thing or another.

Jimmy, himself, wasn't in Baltimore last night. He was on the way back from a fast Florida trip.

The mystery, however, thickened still farther while he was away. Archie's brother phoned Jimmy's son from St. Louis to say he'd received a letter from the fighter four or five days ago and at that time Archie was in Encino, Calif. Jimmy assumes Archie got the $200.

At any rate, the Baltimore Boxing Commission supended both Moore and Jimmy.

Feed Your Dog as Many Famous Breeders Do

Mrs. R. E. Duty, owner of Charminel Kennels, Tulsa, Oklahoma, writes: "I prefer Kellogg's GRO-PUP meal over every other form of dry dog food for our 17 Cocker Spaniels. I feed it with cooked or ground meat ... and they like it and thrive on it."

MOST breeders and veterinarians use and recommend a foundation diet of good dry dog food fed with scrap meat, including fat. So many feed Kellogg's GRO-PUP because it provides all the vitamins and minerals dogs are known to need for growth and vigor.

Kellogg's GRO-PUP is thrifty. And dogs love its hearty, meaty flavor.

Get this scientifically formulated dog food in 3 forms: Ribbon, Meal, or Pel-etts—at your grocer's or pet shop. Made by KELLOGG'S of Battle Creek.

Garden Tourney Finals Will Be Staged Tonight

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — Thimble-sized Ernie Calverley has won New York's basketball fanatics with one of the game's most fascinating Cindrella stories.

And if the skinny Rhode Island State star leads the New England Rams to victory over Kentucky in tomorrow night's final of the National Invitation tournament the shrieks of the dribble loonies probably will shake the rafters at Madison Square Garden.

Little 145-pound Ernie, who at first glance seems lost among a forest of big six-shooters, has been synonymous with Rhode Island basketball for the last two years but never before has he soared to the spectacular heights he did in helping put the Rams in the finals.

Sinks 55-Foot Shot

The last team picked in the eight-team tournament field, the Rhodies were given scant chance of surviving their first-round game against Bowling Green's towering Don Otten and Company.

But the wagering fraternity, which established the Ohioans as twelve-point favorites, reckoned without Calverley. His keen floor generalship, his bullet-like passes, his feints, his elusive dribbling and accurate shooting built up to a terrific climax—his fifty-five-foot shot in the last two seconds that tied the score at 74-74 and led the Rams' 82-79 overtime triumph.

It was the most spectacular toss in the Garden's ten years of basketball. Thousands who missed the game asked ushers later "where did Ernie shoot from?" Ned Irish, executive vice president of the garden, is thinking of marking the exact spot on the floor.

West Virginia vs. Muhlenberg

Against Muhlenberg in the semi-finals last night the Rams were five-point underdogs, but again Ernie demonstrated he deserves to rank with the best players. He tossed in twenty-seven points as the Rams romped home, 59-49. One of his eleven baskets was a forty-footer.

West Virginia and Muhlenberg meet in a consolation tilt that opens the twin bill at 8 p. m. (EST) before another expected sellout of more than 18,000.

Donald Hay Named To Handle Wagering At Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., March 19—President Albert J. Boyle of the Charles Town Jockey Club, today signed J. Donald Hay of Baltimore, Md., to handle wagering during the 46-day race meeting, starting May 29.

Hay has served in the wagering departments of every first class track in America and Canada for the past thirty years. He is one of the few directors of wagering, who can handle any position, including calculating; therefore, he should prove invaluable to the host organization.

Bluege Turns Attention To Senators' "B" Team

ORLANDO, Fla., March 19. (AP)—Manager Ossie Bluege, of the Washington Senators, turned his attention to "B" team players today now that his entire squad is again together.

He is particularly interested in the batting ability of Outfielder Ray Goolsby and First Baseman Jack Sanford, righthanders who might fit into the Senators' preponderantly lefthanded batting order.

The first team returned from Cuba with six victories in seven games and $10,000 in gate receipts, showing a profit of $5,000 for the trip to Havana.

High Shine, Kentucky Derby Hope, Defeated

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 19 (AP)—The Kentucky Derby hopes of Warren Wright's Calumet Farm received a jolt here today when High Shine, unbeaten in four previous races, bowed by two lengths to the Canadian-owned Gregalach in the six furlong Enniskillen purse.

Although he carried 126 pounds, conceding gobs of weight to six rival three year olds, High Shine went postward a 3 to 5 favorite. Gregalach, a non-Derby colt which had won one of eight 1946 starts for R. S. McLaughlin, got in at 114 pounds and paid $11.

Arnold Hanger's Red Board was third, three additional lengths behind. Over a track termed fast but which was slightly dull, Gregalach finished in 1:11 3-5 under Nick Wall.

Why Fishermen Crab

TATHRA, Australia (AP) — A crab weighing twenty and one-half pounds with a red and pink mottled body and black nippers was caught in a trawler's net off the south coast of New South Wales. It measured three feet seven inches from tip to tip.

Mrs. R. E. Duty, owner of Charminel Kennels, Tulsa, Oklahoma, writes: "I prefer Kellogg's GRO-PUP meal over every other form of dry dog food for our 17 Cocker Spaniels. I feed it with cooked or ground meat . . . and they like it and thrive on it."

MOST breeders and veterinarians use and recommend a foundation diet of good dry dog food fed with scrap meat, including fat. So many feed Kellogg's GRO-PUP because it provides all the vitamins and minerals dogs are known to need for growth and vigor.

Kellogg's GRO-PUP is thrifty. And dogs love its hearty, meaty flavor.

Get this scientifically formulated dog food in 3 forms: Ribbon, Meal, or Pel-etts—at your grocer's or pet shop. Made by KELLOGG'S of Battle Creek.

MOORE'S FAILURE TO APPEAR FOR FIGHT PUZZLES MANAGER

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) — Light-Heavyweight Contender Archie Moore failed to show up for a fight in Baltimore last night, and his manager, iron-hat Jimmy Johnston, is just as mystified about it as anyone. If anything, Iron-hat Jimmy is even more in the dark, because two weeks ago he wired Archie $200 carfare to get to the fight.

At that time—March 5—the ranking light-heavyweight challenger was at San Diego, Calif., on personal business. He wired Johnston for the $200, explaining he expected to leave for the east about March 7. He did not say he expected to walk.

"You're boxing Buddy Walker in Baltimore March 18, which will add another knockout to your record," Jimmy wired Archie with the money.

Jimmy paid no more attention to it. As he explained, "We always tell Moore where and when he's to fight—he goes to whatever place it is by himself." Ordinarily, Archie does his training in Harlem, and the only time Johnston sees him is when he checks in to Jimmy's office for one thing or another.

Jimmy, himself, wasn't in Baltimore last night. He was on the way back from a fast Florida trip.

The mystery, however, thickened still farther while he was away. Archie's brother phoned Jimmy's son from St. Louis to say he'd received a letter from the fighter four or five days ago and at that time Archie was in Encino, Calif. Jimmy assumes Archie got the $200.

At any rate, the Baltimore Boxing Commission supended both Moore and Jimmy.

Van Johnson Is To Be in Sinatra Radio Program

By JEAN MEEGAN

NEW YORK, March 19. (AP) — Proudly the announcement has been made by Van Johnson's managers that he will make his first appearance with Frank Sinatra Wednesday night at 9 on Sinatra's CBS show. When they were asked what the bobby soxers' blockbuster was going to do to entertain on the show, one of the gentlemen replied: "Why he won't have to do anything—except lift his arm. The kids will go crazy." So will the listeners.

Wednesday seems like the lowliest night in the week in radio. Mutual promises a new show but as of this writing details were lacking. There is a drawn, dull, dry look to the schedules. The hottest guest star (except Mr. Johnson, of course,) propably is Orson Welles on "Ellery Queen" at 7:30 on CBS.

Judging by the advance dope sheets the biggest stunt of the day will be on "Bride and Groom" when two of the participants, Irving Moore, assistant director and casting assistant at Columbia pictures, and Miss Forrest Dickson, actress for the same company, receive as a wedding present from the show a B-17 Flying Fortress. Now that's a handy thing to have for a couple of kids just starting out!

Convert Town Clock

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 19 (AP)—Conversion of the old town clock on St. Anne's Episcopal church, condemned as dangerous to passersby, has been started. The new works will be electrical, making possible removal of the formerly-used heavy weights.

Stolen Car Is Found Off Oldtown Road

State police reported late yesterday afternoon that a car found abandoned in a field off the Oldtown road yesterday by Sgt. Frank A. Shober was listed as stolen by the Baltimore police department Monday.

The city motor sergeant located the stolen car, a 1942 Plymouth sedan, while checking for rubbish dropped from trucks. All marks of identification such as license tags and registration cards, had been removed, police said.

Sgt. Thomas M. Hignutt, of the LaVale state police barracks, said a check of the serial number of the car revealed that Maryland tags No. 71,558 werei ssued to the vehicle which was listed as stolen in the state police bulletin of Monday.

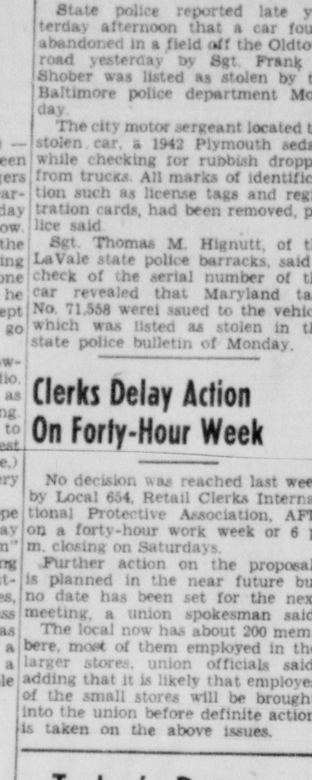

Clerks Delay Action On Forty-Hour Week

No decision was reached last week by Local 654, Retail Clerks International Protective Association, AFL, on a forty-hour work week or 6 p. m. closing on Saturdays.

Further action on the proposals is planned in the near future but no date has been set for the next meeting, a union spokesman said.

The local now has about 200 members, most of them employed in the larger stores, union officials said, adding that it is likely that employes of the small stores will be brought into the union before definite action is taken on the above issues.

Man Gets Thirty Days In Jail in Disorder Case at Cresaptown

Arrested last week following an altercation at the Chatterbox, Cresaptown, Mike Stottlemyer, Cresaptown, was arraigned before Magistrate Roy Bowman Monday night and sentenced to the county jail for thirty days on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Two women, Dolly Engles and Delores Morris, Narows Park, also arrested in the case, were fined $5 and costs each on disorderly conduct charges.

State police said Stottlemyer and another man, one they termed an innocent bystander, became involved in an argument and that the woman later took part in the dispute. Two booths were torn from the walls of the Chatterbox in the altercation.

Local Man Is Fined $20 in Police Court

N. W. Anderson, 930 Maryland avenue, was fined $20 in police court yesterday morning after he was found guilty of a charge of interfering with an officer.

The local man was arrested Monday at 11 p. m. after he tried to wrest a club from Officer Joseph H. Stitcher, who was called to a Front street tavern to arrest Luther Huff, this city, and Mrs. Blanche Huff, his wife. Huff and his wife each paid $5 fines on charges of drunkenness.

A charge of disorderly conduct against Claude M. Moore, 19 Putnam street, was dismissed in police court yesterday after the prosecuting witness failed to appear at the hearing.

Man Gets Thirty Days In Jail in Disorder Case at Cresaptown

Arrested last week following an altercation at the Chatterbox, Cresaptown, Mike Stottlemyer, Cresaptown, was arraigned before Magistrate Roy Bowman Monday night and sentenced to the county jail for thirty days on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Two women, Dolly Engles and Delores Morris, Narows Park, also arrested in the case, were fined $5 and costs each on disorderly conduct charges.

State police said Stottlemyer and another man, one they termed an innocent bystander, became involved in an argument and that the woman later took part in the dispute. Two booths were torn from the walls of the Chatterbox in the altercation.

Local Man Is Fined $20 in Police Court

N. W. Anderson, 930 Maryland avenue, was fined $20 in police court yesterday morning after he was found guilty of a charge of interfering with an officer.

The local man was arrested Monday at 11 p. m. after he tried to wrest a club from Officer Joseph H. Stitcher, who was called to a Front street tavern to arrest Luther Huff, this city, and Mrs. Blanche Huff, his wife. Huff and his wife each paid $5 fines on charges of drunkenness.

A charge of disorderly conduct against Claude M. Moore, 19 Putnam street, was dismissed in police court yesterday after the prosecuting witness failed to appear at the hearing.

Thomas S. Post Is Re-elected Mayor of Cumberland

Solid South Cumberland Turns Tide for Mayor against Davis; Edwards Polls 4,510 Votes

Thomas S. Post was re-elected mayor of Cumberland in yesterday's municipal election, defeating Frank J. Davis, South Cumberland plumber by 847 votes. Post polled 4,516 votes to 3,669 for Davis.

William J. Edwards, only incumbent for city council, was returned to office by an overwhelming vote of 4,510 to lead the council ticket.

Clifton E. Fuller, Elm street candidate, was second man in the council race poling a total of 4,252 votes. William V. Keegan, Cumberland street, was third man in the council race with 3,796 votes. The fourth councilman to be elected was Myers G. Light, East Prince George street, who polled 3,651 votes.

The first returns reported to the News office last night came from Ward three, Precinct three, Bedford street, which gave Post ninety-two votes and Davis ninety-one votes.

One Post Man Wins

Returns from West Side precincts followed this first report revealing that Davis and Post were engaged in a standoff fight. While Davis was holding a lead in these early reports observers in the field of city politics confidently predicted that Davis's lead was not sufficient to withstand the precinct totals that did not start rolling in from the "Solid South" in South Cumberland until after 11 p. m.

When the "Solid Sixes" started coming in it was clearly indicated that Mayor Post would return to his office in City Hall for another term.

While Edwards, Fuller and Keegan all made impressive showings in the rest of the city, it was revealed that South Cumberland was not only supporting Mayor Post but also his slate of candidates, namely, H. Frank Hinze, former first sergeant of Company G of the One Hundred Fifteenth Infantry, John E. Sharp and Light.

8,937 Votes Cast

Despite the impressive showing of the mayor and his slate of candidates in the South End, heavy balloting for Edwards, Fuller and Keegan throughout the city insured the fact that Light alone, of the three Post candidates, will have a seat in the new council. However, all three of Post's candidate's made a creditable showing it was generally conceded.

A total of 8,397 votes were cast in yesterday's election out of a possible 17,728. This means that Mayor Post was re-elected by approximately forty-seven per cent of the total voters in the city.

Edwards, 4,510; Fuller, 4,252; Keegan, 3,796; Light, 3,651; Hinze, 3,479; Sharp, 3,144; Leslie E. Chaney, 2,992; and Luther Hutter, Sr., 2,240.

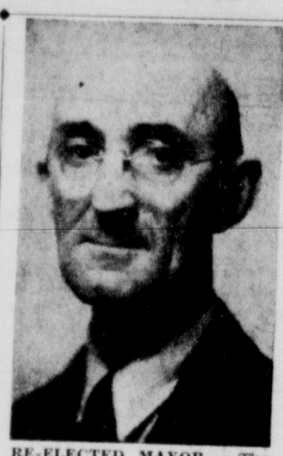

Hinze and Sharp, the only World War II veterans on the ticket, finished fifth and sixth respectively in the council race.

Davis Congratulates Post

Frank J. Davis, contacted by telephone at 1 a. m. said, "I wish to congratulate Mayor Post upon his re-election, and assure him that as a citizen of Cumberland, I shall always be ready to co-operate with any project or undertaking for the good of the community as a whole. I wish to thank all the splendid people who supported me in the campaign, and who came out yesterday and voted. I am grateful for their support and their confidence.

To the workers who gave their time in my behalf, I wish to say a special word of thanks. Many people rallied to my support voluntarily and it is gratifying to know that in my first venture in politics, that

Grandview Firm To Build Airport At Frederick

Firm Moves Equipment from Cumberland; Work Starts Monday

The Grandview Construction Company, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., which completed excavation and grading work on Cumberland's municipal airport in November, is moving its equipment to Frederick to begin work on an airport job there on Monday, Arnold Cribari, project manager of the company, said yesterday.

A Civil Aeronautics Administration contract for the work at Frederick has been awarded to the Grandview firm and calls for the excavation of approximately half a million yards of earth. Well over a million yards of earth and rocks was excavated on the job here.

The Frederick project probably will be a six months job, according to Cribari, who added that the Grandview firm will do all the excavation and grading work for that city's planned three-runway airport.

Marks First Time

While some of the company's equipment previously was moved from Cumberland, transportation of some other equipment to Frederick started Monday and marked the first time heavy earth-moving scrapers, known as turnapulls that move on 2100 by 21 pneumatic tires, have been moved under their own power over steep mountains such as mark Route 40 between this city and Frederick, Cribari said.

He added that two turnapulls left Cumberland at 10 a. m. Monday and arrived in Ferderick about 2:30 p. m. yesterday. He said turnapulls are very difficult to handle on steep downgrades and that ordinarily they are operated on generally level ground. Other equipment is being moved to Frederick by truck.

Pleasant Association Here

When work gets underway in Frederick, Cribari said the company will have in operation four turnapulls, five 22-yard W scrapers, four D-8 tractors and four D-8 bulldozers.

Cribari said that association with business houses and residents of Cumberland has been most pleasant in the company's sixteen-months stay here. Residents, he said, were very gracious.

Three Persons Treated Following Accidents

John E. Hare, 35, 17 Bellevue street, was treated in Allegany hospital last evening for a mashed big toe of the right foot. The B. and O. Bolt and Forge worker told attaches he was injured at work.

James McGreevy, 4, 638 North Centre street, was treated in the same hospital last evening for a laceration on the forehead. Attaches were told the boy was injured when he fell against a gate.

Paul Davidson, 17, 439 Williams street, was treated in Memorial hospital last evening after the tip of his right thumb was cut off. The B. and O. worker told attaches he was injured at his home.

U. S. Should Stay Out of Internal Affairs in Spain, Richards Says

Interference by the United States with the internal affairs of Spain would be inadvisable, Rotarians were told yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Central Y. M. C. A. by William W. Richards, of the export staff of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Richards was in Spain for some time and in addition to looking after business interests was also engaged in doing whatever was possible to counteract the German influence and to aid the Allied cause during the war.

Political and commercial factors are pretty well comingled in Spain, the speaker said, in view of which many complications exist that do not obtain in other nations.

Great Britain cannot be expected to interfere with the Spanish regime to any great extent, it was stated, because the British hold a majority interest in many of the industries there and are content to let things remain in status quo so long as their dividends are coming in.

One thing to be considered, Richards said, is the possible extent of communism in Spain, which is hated by the Franco regime, and which might spread under a change of government into Spanish North Africa and cause undue trouble.

A nominating committee, headed by W. Donald Smith, submitted a list of names to be voted on for directors at the first meeting of the club in April.

The list, which was left unchanged by floor nominations, comprised Adolph Blunk, Arthur J. Weber, Dr. A. H. Hawkins, Henry C. Swearingen, Somerville Nicholson, Dr. F. U. Davis, the Rev. David C. Watson, Henry W. Price, John R. Wilkinson and Charles L. Kopp.

Five are to be elected from the list.

Garland L. Johnston, president, announced the appointment of Dr. Harry F. Butler to take charge of arrangements for the annual district conference to be held the first week in May at Altoona, Pa.

Election Day Highlights

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

Yesterday afternoon between 2 and 5 p. m. a News reporter made his usual election day tour of the city's twenty polling places, just to look things over and get an idea of how many persons were casting ballots. After the first couple of stops it became evident voting was considerably heavier than on the day of the primary election, two weeks ago.

Trying to reach each polling place at about the same time as on primary day, the same route was followed. Each polling place had an increase over the primary vote, and at the end of the tour, total figures showed that by 5 p. m. 4,371 ballots had been cast, compared to 3,123 at the end of the same tour two weeks before. This represents an increase of 1,248, or a total vote of twenty-four percent of the registration, compared to eighteen percent on primary day.

Using these figures as a basis, it became evident there should be about 8,000 or more ballots cast in the city election, if voting in the last two hours was a heavy as on primary day.

It was noted on the tour that there was considerable more activity by workers than on primary day. Traffic around polling places was heavier, and dozens of cars bearing banners and signs boosting some particular candidate were much in evidence.

DeLisle E. Chaney, candidate for council seemed to have the best over-all advertising. His cars were in evidence at every polling place.

Probably second place in this honor went to Frank J. Davis, candidate for mayor. He seemed to have his supporters at every precinct.

William V. Keegan seemed to be concentrating his efforts in North End. That's the only place any of his cars were noticed by this reporter, but he had some friends on the West Side, button-holing voters.

When we reached Ward 6, Precinct 7, we had a chance to stop and shake hands with Davis, who was out on a final tour of goodwill. Davis, genial as always, was confident, but told us confidentially that he planned to "go into hiding tonight and await the returns." He was considerate enough to tell us where we could reach him for a statement, to win, lose or draw. Thank you Frank, we respect your confidence, and don't blame you for "holing up for the night".

We also saw Chaney out cruising around. He had his "hide-out" all arranged, so he wouldn't be disturbed while the returns came in, and also told us "in strictest confidence" where he could be found. Thank you, Lisle.

It means much to workers on the press, who have the job of running down the news, when people like these gentlemen help make that task a little easier. It isn't any fun trying to find one man out of 25,000 or more, at 2 o'clock in the morning, especially if he has "holed up" to keep away from everyone for a few hours.

Incidentally, most of the other candidates took the newspapermen into their confidence as to where they could be reached. But there was one who "wasn't sure".

When we stopped at John Humbird school, that's where voters of Ward 6, Precinct 5, cast their ballots, H. Frank Hinze, candidate for council, drove up in his car. Asked how things looked, Frank smiled and said, "Along about this time, I guess all the candidates wish they could look". We asked him if he was nervous and he replied, "I don't

CO-ORDINATING COUNCIL FAVORS EXTENSION OF LIBRARY FACILITIES

The Allegany County Coordinating Council, composed of representatives from educational, fraternal, religious and welfare groups, has gone on record as favoring the expansion of the library facilities of the Cumberland Free Public Library to extend its use to residents throughout the entire county.

Meeting at the Central YMCA, the organization passed the resolution favoring the county's participation in the new act passed by the last legislature whereby the county would receive aid in the event the library expansion program is approved.

It was also announced that plans are being made to hold a public meeting early in April at the city hall to discuss the library project. Three speakers are tentatively scheduled to talk and an open forum will follow.

Roy W. Eves, vice chairman of the organization, presided at the meeting in the absence of James Spitznas, chairman. The meeting was well-attended with all groups represented.

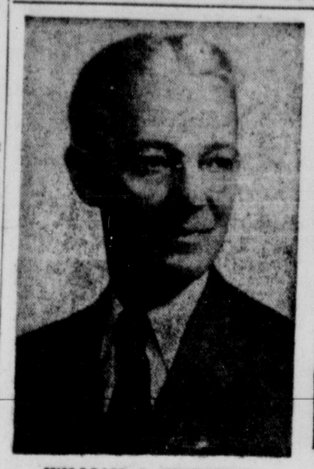

Local News in Brief

"The Example to Men" will be the subject of a sermon to be delivered tonight at 7:30 o'clock, in the Living Stone Church of the Brethren, by the Rev. W. Clark Main, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, at the union midweek services being held during Lent, by the churches of South Cumberland under the sponsorship of the South Cumberland Ministerial Association. The general theme for the Lenten services is "The Saviour of the World."

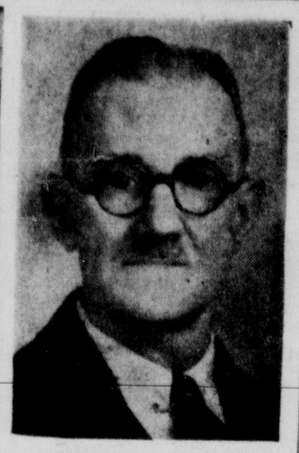

West Side firemen answered a false alarm from Box 134, Fayette and Karns avenue, yesterday morning at 8:08 o'clock.

Officers will be elected by Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks at a meeting of the lodge to be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Elks home.

Lloyd Rawlings Is Honored at YMCA Directors' Dinner

Lloyd Rawlings, president of the board of directors of Central YMCA for two years before he was succeeded in January by Edmund S. Burke, was honored at a dinner meeting of the board yesterday evening in the clubrooms at the "Y."

Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins presented Rawlings with a framed copy of a resolution praising his work, drawn up by C. William Gilchrist. In a brief speech, Rawlings thanked the board and the staff of Central YMCA for their co-operation with him during his two years as president. Burke presided at the meeting.

The nineteen members who attended the dinner went on record as approving the youth and government program, sponsored by YMCA groups throughout the state.

Members of the local committee sponsoring the program, which is planned to give young people a firsthand idea of the workings of state government, will meet with advisors of the various Hi-Y clubs today at 4 p. m. to plan for a pre-

4-YEAR-OLD BOY IS SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN HIT BY CAR

A 4-year-old local boy, David Null, was in a "fairly good" condition last evening in Memorial hospital where he was admitted at 6:10 o'clock for treatment of serious injuries suffered when he was struck by a car in front of his home, 120 Seymour street.

Hospital attaches said the lad was admitted at 6:10 p. m. suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, a fracture of the right leg above the knee and lacerations of the left leg between the knee and ankle. He was suffering somewhat from shock when admitted, attaches added.

Funeral Services For Train Victims To Be Held Friday

Funeral services will be held on Friday for an Allegany county soldier and a discharged serviceman who were killed instantly at 1:10 a. m. yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck and demolished by a westbound Baltimore and Ohio railroad troop train at the Childs avenue crossing in Piedmont, W. Va.

The victims are Pvt. Harold George Smith, 20, Franklin, near Westernport, whose funeral will be held Friday afternoon, and Marshall L. Clark, 23, Stoney Run, whose funeral will be held Friday morning.

West Virginia State Police said the car was owned and apparently was operated by Clark when it was hit by the train and carried 1,092 feet up the track.

Trooper L. E. Proudfoot said the automobile was hooked on the pilot and the left cylinder of the locomotive and that a railroad crew had to move the car before Smith's body could be removed. He added that Clark's body fell out of the machine when the train stopped.

Whistle Was Blown

The officer said witnesses told him the locomotive's whistle was blown before it reached the crossing.

He listed the engineer of the train as W. A. B. Liller, Cumberland, and said the conductor was W. A. Steerman, Parkersburg, W. Va.

Pvt. Smith, who was at the home of a sister, Mrs. Alma Braithwaite, Franklin, on a ten-day furlough from Fort Knox, Ky., prior to reporting to Camp Pickett, Va., and shipment overseas, had been in the army thirteen months.

He was a native of Waverly, N. Y., and a son of the late Arthur and Rosa Lambert Smith. After his father died in 1926, his mother returned to Westernport.

Besides his sister, Mrs. Braithwaite, he is survived by a half-sister, Miss Charotte Jones, a student at Bruce high school.

Smith's body is at the Fredlock funeral home. Rites for him will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday at his sisters' home, with the Rev. Edgar Barricks, Westernport, former pastor of the Assembly of God church, Cross, W. Va., officiating. Interment will be in Duckworth cemetery, Stoney Run.

Discharged February 10

Clark, discharged from the army on February 10 as a private first class, served in Italy and Germany two years with the Two Hundred and Seventy-eighth field artillery. Before he entered the service he was employed at the Luke plant of

Beer Dealers in Ridgeley Close While Cumberland Holds Election

Took Action To Preserve Limited Supply for Regular Customers

An example of voluntary rationing by retailers was seen here yesterday, when all beer bars in Ridgeley, W. Va., were closed to conserve their limited stock for regular customers.

Due to the election in Cumberland, all dispensers of alcoholic beverages in Cumberland were closed until 8 p. m., and no beer or liquor was available, unless a fellow had a friend with some at home, or had some at home.

Across the Potomac river in the neighboring town of Ridgeley, beer dispensers closed voluntarily, because they learned that many beer drinkers from Cumberland visited the town on primary election day two weeks ago, and consumed considerable beer.

Yesterday, many beer drinkers flocked to Ridgeley with the idea of quenching their thirst, but there was no beer to be purchased in the town, because the places were closed.

Acted Voluntarily

Rumor got around that the town officials closed the places as a gesture of goodwill toward Cumberland. But Major Obert Poling, of Ridgeley, said last night no such action was taken and no executive or police orders to close had been issued. He stated beer retailers closed voluntarily, to protect their stocks. The West Virginia State Liquor Store remained open as usual.

Several beer retailers in the town were contacted and they confirmed the mayor's statement. They explained there had been no meeting or co-ordinated plan to close. Their places were closed, so regular customers could be taken care of, and a lot of peoples from "out of town" didn't consume the limited supply of beer available. Asked if there had been a meeting of beer dealers, they all said the same thing. "There was no meeting. We just closed because that was the sensible thing to do."

Since March 1, breweries have been required to cut production thirty per cent, by federal order. Local beer manufacturers have complied with this order and an official of one local brewery said last night that no draught beer is being made here.

The brewery official explained that almost as much beer is being bottled as before, and the reduction was taken in draught beer. An effort is being made, he stated to take care of local and nearby markets as far as possible and to supply all dealers and distributors in this area on an equitable basis.

Shortage Will Increase

When told that Ridgeley dealers had closed yesterday, he commented, that is an idea of what will happen more and more. As the shortage increases and weather gets warmer, there will doubtless be days when plenty of places will not have beer. The breweries are doing everything to meet the demand, he said, but a thirty per cent cut in production is bound to make itself felt.

Another thing that happens in a case like this, he continued, is the fact that some out of town beer distributors and manufacturers who have been shipping beer to Cumberland in the past, have stopped their shipments to this city entirely, while others have reduced their shipments as much as one-half and will probably make further cuts. They do this so they can care for markets closer to their plants, he said.

As these shipments of other beers cease to come into this city and territory, the demand for local beer increases and the shortage becomes more acute, he added.

The best to hope for, he concluded, is that no further reduction will be made and that production will get back to normal sometime. In the meantime, he predicted, there is now, and will be a beer shortage here and everywhere else for sometime.

Labor Group To Meet

The Maryland Labor Unity Conference will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in Teamsters hall, North Mechanic street. Permanent officers will be named at the meeting, according to plans formulated at a recent reorganization meeting of the group representing CIO, AFL, Brotherhoods and independent unions of Allegany county.

Donald F. Brake To Become Pastor Of Local Church

Middletown Minister Accepts Call by St. John's Lutheran Congregation

The Rev. Donald F. Brake, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, Middletown, for the past eight years, has accepted a call to the pastorate of St. John's Lutheran church, this city, to succeed the Rev. Edward P. Heinze, who resigned in November.

Arthur J. Weber, chairman of a congregational committee to obtain a new pastor, said the Rev. Mr. Brake will assume his duties here about May 1.

Preached at McConnellsburg

He was graduated from seminary about fifteen years ago and for seven years thereafter was pastor of the Lutheran church at McConnellsburg, Pa. He left McConnellsburg to assume the pastorate at Zion church, Middletown.

Since the Rev. Mr. Heinze resigned in November to become pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Hagerstown, St. John's church here has been without a minister. The pulpit has been filled on Sundays, however, by supply pastors from Gettysburg.

While a resident of Middletown, the Rev. Mr. Brake has been active in affairs of the Middletown Lions Club, and in 1945 was district governor of Lions International. He appeared in Cumberland frequently in his capacity as district governor of the Lions.

Although the Rev. Mr. Brake has never preached in St. John's church, members of the congregation have heard him preach at Middletown.

Selected by Committee

He was selected to fill the St. John's vacancy by a committee composed of Weber, E. F. Avers and R. K. Lathrum. This committee recommended the Rev. Mr. Brake to the church council which in turn submitted his name at a congregational meeting on March 10.

The Rev. Mr. Brake informed the Zion congregation Sunday of his intention to come to Cumberland.

210 Members Reported In Grocers' Group; 1946 Goal Is 250

A total of 210 members was reported yesterday evening by William C. Bier, chairman of the membership committee of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland, at the monthly meeting held in Central YMCA.

Bier expressed confidence that the goal of 250 members for 1946 will be reached by March 31, the deadline for reporting new memberships to the state association.

Plans were discussed for attending the state grocers' convention May 5 and 6 at Carvel hall, Annapolis. Joseph G. Jackson, secretary of the local group, explained that under a state association ruling, any member who attends the convention will automatically become a delegate.

For this reason, no formal delegates were chosen, but approximately fifteen members indicated they would attend the convention.

The Cumberland delegation will be headed by George F. Garlitz, president of the local association. Garlitz presided at yesterday's meeting.

Taxpayers' League and Sportsman Oppose "Bookmobile" for County

The proposed "bookmobile" library previously indorsed by a number of womens' organizations and individuals began to take on the appearance of an issue yesterday with the county commissioners receiving two point-blank protests against the project—one from representatives of the Allegany County Taxpayers' League and the other from a Cumberland sportsman.

Under an act passed last year by the legislature, the county may levy funds for the project at the rate of two cents on the tax rate and receive about $5,000 from the state. The appropriation is not mandatory but may be made at the descretion of the board. With the exception of Commissioner C. N. Wilkinson, the board members have not as yet committed themselves regarding the matter but have been studying the proposal. Commissioner Wilkinson has given his unqualified support to the project.

Reasons Are Given

In a communication signed by Shaefer, he stated:

"The Cumberland Free Public Library is open to all the citizens of the county and is solely maintained by the City of Cumberland and in view of the fact that all roads lead to Cumberland it is not a difficult matter for anybody or everybody to seek any reading matter they may desire, and education that is worth acquiring is worth seeking, but not at the expense of the City of Cumberland, which would then be paying a maintenance tax both by the county and city."

Shaefer pointed out that he had no objection to the various rural sections having the project for their convenience providing they bear the expense of the library. In referring to the children in rural areas, Shaefer said that "most all schools are equipped with an adequate library for the benefit of the pupils and if the school children study their history, grammar and physiology books I think they would derive as much benefit from these subjects as they would from any

Solid South Cumberland Turns Tide for Mayor against Davis; Edwards Polls 4,510 Votes

Thomas S. Post was re-elected mayor of Cumberland in yesterday's municipal election, defeating Frank J. Davis, South Cumberland plumber by 847 votes. Post polled 4,516 votes to 3,669 for Davis.

William J. Edwards, only incumbent for city council, was returned to office by an overwhelming vote of 4,510 to lead the council ticket.

Clifton E. Fuller, Elm street candidate, was second man in the council race poling a total of 4,252 votes. William V. Keegan, Cumberland street, was third man in the council race with 3,796 votes. The fourth councilman to be elected was Myers G. Light, East Prince George street, who polled 3,651 votes.

The first returns reported to the News office last night came from Ward three, Precinct three, Bedford street, which gave Post ninety-two votes and Davis ninety-one votes.

One Post Man Wins

Returns from West Side precincts followed this first report revealing that Davis and Post were engaged in a standoff fight. While Davis was holding a lead in these early reports observers in the field of city politics confidently predicted that Davis's lead was not sufficient to withstand the precinct totals that did not start rolling in from the "Solid South" in South Cumberland until after 11 p. m.

When the "Solid Sixes" started coming in it was clearly indicated that Mayor Post would return to his office in City Hall for another term.

While Edwards, Fuller and Keegan all made impressive showings in the rest of the city, it was revealed that South Cumberland was not only supporting Mayor Post but also his slate of candidates, namely, H. Frank Hinze, former first sergeant of Company G of the One Hundred Fifteenth Infantry, John E. Sharp and Light.

8,937 Votes Cast

Despite the impressive showing of the mayor and his slate of candidates in the South End, heavy balloting for Edwards, Fuller and Keegan throughout the city insured the fact that Light alone, of the three Post candidates, will have a seat in the new council. However, all three of Post's candidate's made a creditable showing it was generally conceded.

A total of 8,397 votes were cast in yesterday's election out of a possible 17,728. This means that Mayor Post was re-elected by approximately forty-seven per cent of the total voters in the city.

Forty eight per cent of all voters in South Cumberland cast ballots in yesterday's election.

Final tabulations in the council race were:

Edwards, 4,510; Fuller, 4,252; Keegan, 3,796; Light, 3,651; Hinze, 3,479; Sharp, 3,144; Leisle E. Chaney, 2,992; and Luther Hutter, Sr., 2,240.

Davis Congratulates Post

Frank J. Davis, contacted by telephone at 1 a. m. said, "I wish to congratulate Mayor Post upon his re-election, and assure him that as a citizen of Cumberland, I shall always be ready to co-operate with any project or undertaking for the good of the community as a whole. I wish to thank all the splendid people who supported me in the campaign, and who came out yesterday and voted. I am grateful for their support and their confidence.

To the workers who gave their time in my behalf, I wish to say a special word of thanks. Many people rallied to my support voluntarily and it is gratifying to know that in my first venture in politics, that

Firm Moves Equipment from Cumberland; Work Starts Monday

The Grandview Construction Company, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., which completed excavation and grading work on Cumberland's municipal airport in November, is moving its equipment to Frederick to begin work on an airport job there on Monday, Arnold Cribari, project manager of the company, said yesterday.

A Civil Aeronautics Administration contract for the work at Frederick has been awarded to the Grandview firm and calls for the excavation of approximately half a million yards of earth. Well over a million yards of earth and rocks was excavated on the job here.

The Frederick project probably will be a six months job, according to Cribari, who added that the Grandview firm will do all the excavation and grading work for that city's planned three-runway airport.

Marks First Time

While some of the company's equipment previously was moved from Cumberland, transportation of some other equipment to Frederick started Monday and marked the first time heavy earth-moving scrapers, known as turnapulls that move on 2100 by 21 pneumatic tires, have been moved under their own power over steep mountains such as mark Route 40 between this city and Frederick, Cribari said.

He added that two turnapulls left Cumberland at 10 a. m. Monday and arrived in Ferderick about 2:30 p. m. yesterday. He said turnapulls are very difficult to handle on steep downgrades and that ordinarily they are operated on generally level ground. Other equipment is being moved to Frederick by truck.

Pleasant Association Here

When work gets underway in Frederick, Cribari said the company will have in operation four turnapulls, five 22-yard W scrapers, four D-8 tractors and four D-8 bulldozers.

Cribari said that association with business houses and residents of Cumberland has been most pleasant in the company's sixteen-months stay here. Residents, he said, were very gracious.

Three Persons Treated Following Accidents

John E. Hare, 35, 17 Bellevue street, was treated in Allegany hospital last evening for a mashed big toe of the right foot. The B. and O. Bolt and Forge worker told attaches he was injured at work.

James McGreevy, 4, 638 North Centre street, was treated in the same hospital last evening for a laceration on the forehead. Attaches were told the boy was injured when he fell against a gate.

Paul Davidson, 17, 439 Williams street, was treated in Memorial hospital last evening after the tip of his right thumb was cut off. The B. and O. worker told attaches he was injured at his home.

Election Day Highlights

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

Yesterday afternoon between 2 and 5 p. m. a News reporter made his usual election day tour of the city's twenty polling places, just to look things over and get an idea of how many persons were casting ballots. After the first couple of stops it became evident voting was considerably heavier than on the day of the primary election, two weeks ago.

Trying to reach each polling place at about the same time as on primary day, the same route was followed. Each polling place had an increase over the primary vote, and at the end of the tour, total figures showed that by 5 p. m. 4,371 ballots had been cast, compared to 3,123 at the end of the same tour two weeks before. This represents an increase of 1,248, or a total vote of twenty-four percent of the registration, compared to eighteen percent on primary day.

Using these figures as a basis, it became evident there should be about 8,000 or more ballots cast in the city election, if voting in the last two hours was a heavy as on primary day.

It was noted on the tour that there was considerable more activity by workers than on primary day. Traffic around polling places was heavier, and dozens of cars bearing banners and signs boosting some particular candidate were much in evidence.

DeLisle E. Chaney, candidate for council seemed to have the best over-all advertising. His cars were in evidence at every polling place.

Probably second place in this honor went to Frank J. Davis, candidate for mayor. He seemed to have his supporters at every precinct.

William V. Keegan seemed to be concentrating his efforts in North End. That's the only place any of his cars were noticed by this reporter, but he had some friends on the West Side, button-holing voters.

When we reached Ward 6, Precinct 7, we had a chance to stop and shake hands with Davis, who was out on a final tour of goodwill. Davis, genial as always, was confident, but told us confidentially that he planned to "go into hiding tonight and await the returns." He was considerate enough to tell us where we could reach him for a statement, to win, lose or draw. Thank you Frank, we respect your confidence, and don't blame you for "holing up for the night".

We also saw Chaney out cruising around. He had his "hide-out" all arranged, so he wouldn't be disturbed while the returns came in, and also told us "in strictest confidence" where he could be found. Thank you, Lisle.

It means much to workers on the press, who have the job of running down the news, when people like these gentlemen help make that task a little easier. It isn't any fun trying to find one man out of 25,000 or more, at 2 o'clock in the morning, especially if he has "holed up" to keep away from everyone for a few hours.

Incidentally, most of the other candidates took the newspapermen into their confidence as to where they could be reached. But there was one who "wasn't sure".

When we stopped at John Humbird school, that's where voters of Ward 6, Precinct 5, cast their ballots. H. Frank Hinze, candidate for council, drove up in his car. Asked how things looked, Frank smiled and said, "Along about this time, I guess all the candidates wish they could look". We asked him if he was nervous and he replied, "I don't

The Allegany County Coordinating Council, composed of representatives from educational, fraternal, religious and welfare groups, has gone on record as favoring the expansion of the library facilities of the Cumberland Free Public Library to extend its use to residents throughout the entire county.

Meeting at the Central YMCA, the organization passed the resolution favoring the county's participation in the new act passed by the last legislature whereby the county would receive aid in the event the library expansion program is approved.

It was also announced that plans are being made to hold a public meeting early in April at the city hall to discuss the library project. Three speakers are tentatively scheduled to talk and an open forum will follow.

Roy W. Eves, vice chairman of the organization, presided at the meeting in the absence of James Spitznas, chairman. The meeting was well-attended with all groups represented.

Lloyd Rawlings Is Honored at YMCA Directors' Dinner

Lloyd Rawlings, president of the board of directors of Central YMCA for two years before he was succeeded in January by Edmund S. Burke, was honored at a dinner meeting of the board yesterday evening in the clubrooms at the "Y."

Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins presented Rawlings with a framed copy of a resolution praising his work, drawn up by C. William Gilchrist. In a brief speech, Rawlings thanked the board and the staff of Central YMCA for their co-operation with him during his two years as president. Burke presided at the meeting.

The nineteen members who attended the dinner went on record as approving the youth and government program, sponsored by YMCA groups throughout the state.

Members of the local committee sponsoring the program, which is planned to give young people a firsthand idea of the workings of state government, will meet with advisors of the various Hi-Y clubs today at 4 p. m. to plan for a pre-

4-YEAR-OLD BOY IS SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN HIT BY CAR

A 4-year-old local boy, David Null, was in a "fairly good" condition last evening in Memorial hospital where he was admitted at 6:10 o'clock for treatment of serious injuries suffered when he was struck by a car in front of his home, 120 Seymour street.

Hospital attaches said the lad was admitted at 6:10 p. m. suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, a fracture of the right leg above the knee and lacerations of the left leg between the knee and ankle. He was suffering somewhat from shock when admitted, attaches added.

Police said the child was taken to the hospital by the driver of the car, John E. Smith, 27 Arch street.

Beer Dealers in Ridgeley Close While Cumberland Holds Election

Took Action To Preserve Limited Supply for Regular Customers

An example of voluntary rationing by retailers was seen here yesterday, when all beer bars in Ridgeley, W. Va., were closed to conserve their limited stock for regular customers.

Due to the election in Cumberland, all dispensers of alcoholic beverages in Cumberland were closed until 8 p. m., and no beer or liquor was available, unless a fellow had a friend with some at home, or had some at home.

Across the Potomac river in the neighboring town of Ridgeley, beer dispensers closed voluntarily, because they learned that many beer drinkers from Cumberland visited the town on primary election day two weeks ago, and consumed considerable beer.

Yesterday, many beer drinkers flocked to Ridgeley with the idea of quenching their thirst, but there was no beer to be purchased in the town, because the places were closed.

Acted Voluntarily

Rumor got around that the town officials closed the places as a gesture of goodwill toward Cumberland. But Major Obert Poling, of Ridgeley, said last night no such action was taken and no executive or police orders to close had been issued. He stated beer retailers closed voluntarily, to protect their stocks. The West Virginia State Liquor Store remained open as usual.

Several beer retailers in the town were contacted and they confirmed the mayor's statement. They explained there had been no meeting or co-ordinated plan to close. Their places were closed, so regular customers could be taken care of, and a lot of peoples from "out of town" didn't consume the limited supply of beer available. Asked if there had been a meeting of beer dealers, they all said the same thing. "There was no meeting. We just closed because that was the sensible thing to do."

Since March 1, breweries have been required to cut production thirty per cent, by federal order. Local beer manufacturers have complied with this order and an official of one local brewery said last night that no draught beer is being made here.

The brewery official explained that almost as much beer is being bottled as before, and the reduction was taken in draught beer. An effort is being made, he stated to take care of local and nearby markets as far as possible and to supply all dealers and distributors in this area on an equitable basis.

Shortage Will Increase

When told that Ridgeley dealers had closed yesterday, he commented, that is an idea of what will happen more and more. As the shortage increases and weather gets warmer, there will doubtless be days when plenty of places will not have beer. The breweries are doing everything to meet the demand, he said, but a thirty per cent cut in production is bound to make itself felt.

Another thing that happens in a case like this, he continued, is the fact that some out of town beer distributors and manufacturers who have been shipping beer to Cumberland in the past, have stopped their shipments to this city entirely, while others have reduced their shipments as much as one-half and will probably make further cuts. They do this so they can care for markets closer to their plants, he said.

As these shipments of other beers cease to come into this city and territory, the demand for local beer increases and the shortage becomes more acute, he added.

The best to hope for, he concluded, is that no further reduction will be made and that production will get back to normal sometime. In the meantime, he predicted, there is now, and will be a beer shortage here and everywhere else for sometime.

Funeral Services For Train Victims To Be Held Friday

Funeral services will be held on Friday for an Allegany county soldier and a discharged serviceman who were killed instantly at 1:10 a. m. yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck and demolished by a westbound Baltimore and Ohio railroad troop train at the Childs avenue crossing in Piedmont, W. Va.

The victims are Pvt. Harold George Smith, 20, Franklin, near Westernport, whose funeral will be held Friday afternoon, and Marshall L. Clark, 23, Stoney Run, whose funeral will be held Friday morning.

West Virginia State Police said the car was owned and apparently was operated by Clark when it was hit by the train and carried 1,092 feet up the track.

Trooper L. E. Proudfoot said the automobile was hooked on the pilot and the left cylinder of the locomotive and that a railroad crew had to move the car before Smith's body could be removed. He added that Clark's body fell out of the machine when the train stopped.

Whistle Was Blown

The officer said witnesses told him the locomotive's whistle was blown before it reached the crossing.

He listed the engineer of the train as W. A. B. Liller, Cumberland, and said the conductor was W. A. Steerman, Parkersburg, W. Va.

Pvt. Smith, who was at the home of a sister, Mrs. Alma Braithwaite, Franklin, on a ten-day furlough from Fort Knox, Ky., prior to reporting to Camp Pickett, Va., and shipment overseas, had been in the army thirteen months.

He was a native of Waverly, N. Y., and a son of the late Arthur and Rosa Lambert Smith. After his father died in 1926, his mother returned to Westernport.

Besides his sister, Mrs. Braithwaite, he is survived by a half-sister, Miss Charotte Jones, a student at Bruce high school.

Smith's body is at the Fredlock funeral home. Rites for him will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday at his sisters' home, with the Rev. Edgar Barricks, Westernport, former pastor of the Assembly of God church, Cross, W. Va., officiating. Interment will be in Duckworth cemetery, Stoney Run.

Discharged February 10

Clark, discharged from the army on February 10 as a private first class, served in Italy and Germany two years with the Two Hundred and Seventy-eighth field artillery. Before he entered the service he was employed at the Luke plant of

Donald F. Brake To Become Pastor Of Local Church

Middletown Minister Accepts Call by St. John's Lutheran Congregation

The Rev. Donald F. Brake, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, Middletown, for the past eight years, has accepted a call to the pastorate of St. John's Lutheran church, this city, to succeed the Rev. Edward P. Heinze, who resigned in November.

Arthur J. Weber, chairman of a congregational committee to obtain a new pastor, said the Rev. Mr. Brake will assume his duties here about May 1.

Preached at McConnellsburg

He was graduated from seminary about fifteen years ago and for seven years thereafter was pastor of the Lutheran church at McConnellsburg, Pa. He left McConnellsburg to assume the pastorate at Zion church, Middletown.

Since the Rev. Mr. Heinze resigned in November to become pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Hagerstown, St. John's church here has been without a minister. The pulpit has been filled on Sundays, however, by supply pastors from Gettysburg.

While a resident of Middletown, the Rev. Mr. Brake has been active in affairs of the Middletown Lions Club, and in 1945 was district governor of Lions International. He appeared in Cumberland frequently in his capacity as district governor of the Lions.

Although the Rev. Mr. Brake has never preached in St. John's church, members of the congregation have heard him preach at Middletown.

Selected by Committee

He was selected to fill the St. John's vacancy by a committee composed of Weber, E. F. Avers and R. K. Lathrum. This committee recommended the Rev. Mr. Brake to the church council which in turn submitted his name at a congregational meeting on March 10.

The Rev. Mr. Brake informed the Zion congregation Sunday of his intention to come to Cumberland.

210 Members Reported In Grocers' Group; 1946 Goal Is 250

A total of 210 members was reported yesterday evening by William C. Bier, chairman of the membership committee of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland, at the monthly meeting held in Central YMCA.

Bier expressed confidence that the goal of 250 members for 1946 will be reached by March 31, the deadline for reporting new memberships to the state association.

Plans were discussed for attending the state grocers' convention May 5 and 6 at Carvel hall, Annapolis. Joseph G. Jackson, secretary of the local group, explained that under a state association ruling, any member who attends the convention will automatically become a delegate.

For this reason, no formal delegates were chosen, but approximately fifteen members indicated they would attend the convention.

The Cumberland delegation will be headed by George F. Garlitz, president of the local association. Garlitz presided at yesterday's meeting.

U. S. Should Stay Out of Internal Affairs in Spain, Richards Says

Interference by the United States with the internal affairs of Spain would be inadvisable, Rotarians were told yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Central Y. M. C. A. by William W. Richards, of the export staff of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Richards was in Spain for some time and in addition to looking after business interests was also engaged in doing whatever was possible to counteract the German influence and to aid the Allied cause during the war.

Political and commercial factors are pretty well comingled in Spain, the speaker said, in view of which many complications exist that do not obtain in other nations.

Great Britain cannot be expected to interfere with the Spanish regime to any great extent, it was stated, because the British hold a majority interest in many of the industries there and are content to let things remain in status quo so long as their dividends are coming in.

One thing to be considered, Richards said, is the possible extent of communism in Spain, which is hated by the Franco regime, and which might spread under a change of government into Spanish North Africa and cause undue trouble.

A nominating committee, headed by W. Donald Smith, submitted a list of names to be voted on for directors at the first meeting of the club in April.

Five are to be elected from the list.

Garland L. Johnston, president, announced the appointment of Dr. Harry F. Butler to take charge of arrangements for the annual district conference to be held the first week in May at Altoona, Pa.

Taxpayers' League and Sportsman Oppose "Bookmobile" for County

The proposed "bookmobile" library previously indorsed by a number of womens' organizations and individuals began to take on the appearance of an issue yesterday with the county commissioners receiving two point-blank protests against the project—one from representatives of the Allegany County Taxpayers' League and the other from a Cumberland sportsman.

Under an act passed last year by the legislature, the county may levy funds for the project at the rate of two cents on the tax rate and receive about $5,000 from the state. The appropriation is not mandatory but may be made at the descretion of the board. With the exception of Commissioner C. N. Wilkinson, the board members have not as yet committed themselves regarding the matter but have been studying the proposal. Commissioner Wilkinson has given his unqualified support to the project.

Reasons Are Given

In a communication signed by Shaefer, he stated:

"The Cumberland Free Public Library is open to all the citizens of the county and is solely maintained by the City of Cumberland and in view of the fact that all roads lead to Cumberland it is not a difficult matter for anybody or everybody to seek any reading matter they may desire, and education that is worth acquiring is worth seeking, but not at the expense of the City of Cumberland, which would then be paying a maintenance tax both by the county and city."

Shaefer pointed out that he had no objection to the various rural sections having the project for their convenience providing they bear the expense of the library. In referring to the children in rural areas, Shaefer said that "most all schools are equipped with an adequate library for the benefit of the pupils and if the school children study their history, grammar and physiology books I think they would derive as much benefit from these subjects as they would from any
